The Kent News

SATURDAY, MARCH, 7, 1931

The last vestige of the old wooden bridge which spanned Chester river here for more than a century and which has been replaced by a new $300,000 concrete bridge, has been removed by the State Roads Commission, which has taken over the supervision of the new bridge.

CENTREVILLE ASKS FOR $50,000 FOR HIGH SCHOOL

The County Commissioners of Queen Anne's County were asked last Tuesday to raise $55,000 for two wings with four rooms each to be added to the Grammar School in Centreville. This request was made by the Parent-Teachers' Association, backed by the Board of Education and a very large number of citizens and taxpayers in and around Centreville, the total delegation numbering something around 150.

THE KENT NEWS FORUM

Your name and address must accompany each communication as an evidence of good faith. Your name will not be published unless you wish it, but signed letters will be given the preference.

Mr. Editor, Dear Sir:

Our attention has just been called to an article in the "KENT NEWS FORUM." underdate of Feb. 7th and we wish to thank the Editor for his kind note.

Our kind friend, who ever he may be doesn't seem very consistent in his critisism of the Chestertown merchants inasmuch as he says there is where he spends his money, then goes on to say that he spent it in Balto, Phila., and Wilmington, and not in Chestertown at all.

While I have never met any of these Gentlemen of Chestertown personally Judging from heir nice stores they must be pretty good merchants, and not very uncurteous to their patrons otherwise they would not be so successful.

In reference to ourselves, our truck does not go to Kennedyville, altho we do have some customers there who send us their work and so far as I can k now they are perfectly satisfied with our work. At least we have had no complaint, and we try very hard to please everyone.

If this gentleman did have all this bad experience, it would have been mightly white of him to have gone to the parties interested and made the complaint instead of spending his money elsewhere and trying to injure them through publicity.

While its true things don't always go as you would like them and try to have them, I am sure that 99 out of every 100 business men will do most anything (consistent) to rectify any error or repair any damage that may occur. At least I know that is the policy of The Dover Laundry.

To the Editor:

Sir: At a meeting recently of the Dairymen's Association the poor farmers were advised to produce less milk. Why if that is his main business should the farmer's business be cut off and others go on? If that is a surplus, why not cut down the price, which is still 15 cents per quart? Reduce the price, let every unemployed and those in the bread line have milk daily, and let the president and vicepresident of the association and all the various secretaries, sitting at their mahogany desks, take from their salaries and not from the farmer.

Also, Mr. Earle tells how plentiful oysters are and they are not selling. What becomes of them? Why not reduce the price again and allow every man to enjoy them? Take it offthose who draw the big money for little work and not off the laborer. We in our State are blessed indeed to be able to produce plenty of food. Why lessen the production when so many are hungry.

A CITY VISITOR.

Mr. Taxpayer, are you watching the proceedings of your State Legislature How would you enjoy being taxed to pay pensions to the Welfare Board, the employes of the House of Correction and Penitentiary Such a bill has been introduced by a delegate, whose name does not indicate that he is an American. Would you think there was a man in the Maryland Legislature that had the gall to offer such a bill under present business conditions? Pensions seems to be occupying considerable of the members' time, but I have failed to see where any suggestion has been made by even our rural members to give a pension to any of our old worn out, homeless and helpless farmers. Old men don't dispair. I see it is suggested that the nine counties on the Eastern Shore should build a $450,000 almshouse, where you can repair to with all the honors attending the occupancy of such a pretentious home.

ANTI-PENSION.

(A number of other letters are omitted on account of lack of space. They will be publishel in KENT NEWS next week.—Editors.)

FARM BUREAU DATES

James D. Davis, Jr., secretary of the Kent County Farm Bureau has announced the March meeting dates for the Kent county locals as follows:

Rock Hall, at Edward's Hall, on Tuesday, March 10th.

Massey, at Firemen's Hall, Millington, Wednesday, March 11th.

Fairlee, at School House, Tuesday, March 17th.

Chestertown at Elementary School Wednesday, March 18th.

Worton, at Worton Hall, Thursday, March 19th.

One of the features of the March meetings has been the invitation extended to all Parent-Teachers groups and all parents of school age children to attend and discuss the Kent county school question in general and the consolidation plan, which would close sixteen county schools, in particular.

The officials of the Kent County Farm Bureau feel that through these open discussions they can be of benefit to the community and are urging all interested people to attend.

OLEMARGARINE BILL SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

The President signed the bill amending the law in relation to the Federal tax on olemargarine.

This measure was sponsored in the interest of four million dairymen.

The bill imposes a tax of ten cents a pound on olemargarine where it is colored yellow, whether by use of artifical coloring or use of ingredients that produce a yellow product. It restores the law passed in 1922 which a Treasury ruling disrupted 6 months ago.

HALF MILLION LEFT TO FORMER SHERIFF

Former Sheriff Ira K. Caulk, of near Newcomb, six miles from Easton, who for years has been engaged in buying cattle and all kinds of live stock, and is well known, has just received news that he had been left by a friend in Los Angeles, California, a half a million dollars.

John C. North, of Easton, his attorney, is looking after Mr. Caulk's interest in securing the legacy.
