FLOUR by the barrel or sack. WESTCOTT & DODD.

A feeling of dullness, languor, and depression means that your liver isn't doing its part. That means impure blood, to begin with, and all kinds of ailments in the end.

But you can stop them in advance. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, and rouses every organ into healthy action. It prevents and cures all diseases arising from a torpid liver or from impure blood. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp Diseases—even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula), in its earlier stages, all yield to it.

The makers of the "Discovery" claim for it only what it will do. They guarantee that it will do it. If it fails to benefit or cure, in any case, they'll return the money. Nothing else that claims to purify the blood is sold in this way; which proves, no matter what dealers may offer, that nothing else can be "just as good." Therefore, don't accept a substitute.

THE STILL POND FARMERS.

Live Questions Discussed by the Farmers at Their April Meeting.

STILL POND, April 28, 1892.

The Farmers' Club met to-day at the residence of Mr. H. L. Crew. The weather was splendid, and the attendance very large. Many visitors were here on their first, but we trust not their last visit. The names of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jarrell were added to the list of members. After the usual opening exercises, the question was asked, How many of the members intend to experiment for a large yield of corn?

Mr. J. S. Harris said he was going to try what he could do with one ton of a special fertilizer.

E. B. Pennington said he was another (meaning himself); he said he should try the special alongside of acid S. C. Rock.

W. D. Pennington said he had already planted his, and he intended to give it all the show possible.

Mr. H. L. Crew said he had the ingredients for the making of 100 bushels to the acre, in his barn, and he intended that he should succeed in doing it, in so far as his aid could accomplish it. He was making all possible haste to get his ground ready. A long discussion followed as to the kinds of fertilizers and methods of planting to be used in the experiments, but I will leave this until the reports are made.

Mr. J. W. Hickman said he had a very interesting report on corn growing from the Massachusetts Experiment Station, in which it appeared that potash was the prime ingredient for both grain and fodder.

Mr. E. B. Pennington asked if stalks 12 inches apart in the drill, were too close, with the rows 3 feet 8 inches apart.

Mr. Hickman said, no; many year ago he had grown 105 bushels to the acre at those distances. It would, of course, depend somewhat upon the strength of the land; if that was thin, better results would be obtained by thinning out to a greater distance.

Mr. E. B. Pennington said that seasons made a very great difference in the returns from the use of commercial fertilizers, especially if nitrogen entered largely into the compound.

Mr. J. S. Harris said that that was a matter worth looking into. A few years ago it was thought that nitrogen was indispensible, while of late it was scarcely used at all.

The discussion was here rudely interrupted by an alarm of fire; the members rushed out and found one of the tenant houses belonging to our host, and occupied at the time by a colored man who was confined to his bed from a wound, in a light blaze. The wind was blowing hard, and it was soon seen that nothing could be done towards saving the building. The wounded man was carried out on his bed, and some furniture hastily thrown into the yard. The occupant's loss on furniture was variously estimated from 75 cts. to one dollar and a quarter. The balance of the furniture was loaded on a wheelbarrow and hauled to a place of safety. No explanation of the fire could be given, except the theory that a spark from the chimney caught on the roof. A more complete destruction of a building, I never saw; the bricks of the fallen chimney and the foundation were all there was left to tell that a house ever stood there; even the ashes had been spread abroad by the wind.

In less than an hour the members had reassembled and settled themselves down to business.

Mr. J. S. Harris asked why we so seldom get a good stand of clover of late years.

Mr. E. B. Pennington said, that he supposed all the members had heard of clover-sick land, and he thought that that is what is the matter with ours. He said he never heard of an old peach orchard being sown with clover and not taking; that was because the land was in the same condition that the balance of our land was twenty years ago, when we could get a good stand of clover every time we sowed. The scarlet clover men are not so much pleased with that article as they were during the winter. It was found that the severe weather during March had greatly retarded its growth, if it had not permanently injured it. This appears to be the northern limit, and only in very open winters will it succeed in making a growth that will be of any great value by the time it should be plowed under.

The question of liming was then brought up and discussed. All the old arguments were used, but the fact remains that the use of lime has been almost entirely abandoned, as the discussion plainly showed.

Mr. W. D. Pennington asked what was the best fertilizer for pear trees.

Mr. J. S. Harris replied that stable manure was; next to that, a fertilizer compounded on the same basis of component parts. He said he had an old orchard that five years ago was doing poorly; he then procured such a fertilizer and applied at a rate nearly equal to ten tons of manure to the acre, and since that time the orchard had born well and the fruit was very fine. The fertilizer, however, was too costly for yearly applications, the price being forty-two or forty-three dollars per ton.

The club then adjourned for dinner.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

After the reading and approval of the minutes, the minutes of the ladies' morning session were read. They have selected the question, "What is woman's place in church work?" for general discussion at their next meeting. As I am pretty well acquainted with Mr. Bowers and all his family, I will endeavor to secure a place where I can overhear how far they will commit themselves, and let you know what they gwine t' do.

The committee on market-train was continued. The host then welcomed the members and visitors in a few words, but declined to make an address.

The question of fertilizing pear trees was then resumed and discussed by a number. Stable manure or its equivalent was conceded to be the only fertilizer worth applying.

The next question was, "What effect will sulphate of iron have on fruit trees?"

Mr. Hickman said that oxide of iron, which was similar to sulphate, lessened the crops of fruit. He, therefore, would not advise its use.

Mr. H. L. Crew handed in the following question: "The foliage on all varieties of pear trees is in advance of the bloom, this is an unusual occurrence. What effect will it have on the setting and growth of the fruit?"

There was considerable speculation as to the effect, some thinking it would be injurious, for the reason that the sap would be diverted from the fruit to the leaf, and others thought that the leaves would be beneficial as a protection in case of heavy rains or frosts. The outcome will be watched with interest.

The next question was secretly handed to the secretary, and I am unable to tell whether it came from a lady or gentleman. It was: "What is the best way to spend a honeymoon?" This brought all the married members to their feet at once except Brother Bowers. A sardonic smile betrayed the fact that he had heard the question, however. A lady got in the first answer, which was, to take a trip to Washington twenty years after marriage. Many other suggestions were offered. Mr. J. W. Hickman related a case that came under his observation, and he advised a very practical honeymoon, especially for people in moderate circumstances. None of the suggestions were sufficiently romantic to warrant publication. The young members were bluffed off, and the question seemed to grate on the nerves of the married folk.

To our otherwise kind-hearted president, the question suggested barbed-wire, and he immediately asked which was the best kind to make a fence with. The linked kind seemed to have the preference, as it was the easiest handled. Seven strans were thought to be less dangerous to stock than five.

Mr. Pennington then asked where should the large varieties of cherries be planted, in sod or cultivated ground. He was advised to get natural stock, plant in the fall, in sod, but not to let the grass grow around the trunks of the trees; then in the spring, to have them grafted into whatever variety he wanted.

The regular question, the growing and marketing of small fruits was then taken up and opened by Mr. J. S. Harris, who said that this section, being within easy reach of the markets of the four great cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, was especially adapted to the growing of small fruits, and with the exception of the strawberry, which was not used for canning, it was not likely that we would ever grow more than we could find a market for.

He was followed by E. B. Pennington, who gave a description of growing strawberries. He said he had one patch of 11 acres which had returned him over nine thousand dollars in ten years.

Mr. H. L. Crew gave a description of strawberry culture.

W. H. Bowers and W. D. Pennington spoke on cherries.

Very little was said about blackberries, but they were recognized as one of the paying crops.

W. D. Pennington said in berry-growing it was an item to get crates that would carry either pint or quart boxes, as the expense of providing separate crates for raspberries and blackberries was too great. He said he had been offered crates by R. P. Stewart, of Philadelphia, at very reasonable figures.

The hour for adjournment having arrived, the club selected the question: "The best way to raise a large crop of turkeys?" for discussion, and the residence of W. H. Bowers was selected as the next place of meeting on the last Thursday in May. A. R., in Transcript.

THE following curious puzzle beats the celebrated "13 15 14" enigma of a few years ago, and is well worth investigation. Take a strip of card-board or paper 13 inches long and 5 wide, thus giving a surface of 65 inches. Now cut this strip diagonally, as true as you can, the result being two pieces in shape of triangles. Now measure exactly 5 inches from the larffest end of each strip, and cut each in two pieces. Take your four pieces and put them in the shape of an exact square, and it will appear to be just 8 inches each way, or 64 square inches—a loss of 1 square inch of superficial measurement, with no diminution of surface. The question is, what becomes of that inch.
