GREAT STEAMBOAT DISASTER.

We find in the St. Louis papers the particulars of the explosion of the boiler of the steamboat Sultana, eight miles above Memphis, on the 27th ult., by which 1,400 or 1,500 lives were lost. A dispatch to the St. Louis Republican says:

Two thousand two hundred people were on board, and 1,966 of these were paroled soldiers, including thirty-five officers, on their way home from rebel prisons at Andersonville, Ga. Of this immense cargo of precious lives only 600 are known to be saved. Of course more will yet be found, but the outside of the terrible margin of 1,300 or 1,400 lives will, in all probability, have to stand to the credit of this calamity. The soldiers belonged principally to Western regiments.

The accident occured when all were asleep except the officers and employees of the boat, and the boat had started out from Memphis one hour before with only enough steam to propel her eight miles during the hour. I conversed with the first mate of the illfated steamer, Wm. Rowbery, who, in company with six others, clung to a plank, from which five fell off, before they were rescued, from exhaustion, and were drowned; and he thinks there must have been some infernal machine put in the coal as the boat at the time was running very steady and so little steam that explosion was impossible.

Mr. Rowberry describes the scene after the explosion as terrible in the extreme. He was standing in the pilot-house, and was blown into the river, where were struggling the living mass of drowning humanity, some with limbs broken, some scalded, over which scene the wreck, that immediately took fire, commenced to throw its ghastly glare. No succor was at hand, and only the best swimmers, aided by fragments of the wreck, could hope to be saved. There were fifteen women on board, but two of whom are known to be saved.—Some of the people were borne down as far as Memphis, this being the first intimation that reached that point. A yawl was immediately sent out, and picked up fifty-seven. The troops were of various regiments, but belonged principally to Indiana and Illinois.

In twenty minutes after the explosion, the whole boat was in a sheet of fire. A dense mass of people, estimated at five hundred, took refuge on the bow of the boat, while the flames were driven aft by the wind, but the boat soon turned down stream, reversing the flames, when the entire mass perished together, many literally being roasted while clinging to the boat.

Rumored Plot to Burn Philadelphia.

On Sunday afternoon a telegraphic dispatch was received in this city, from Washington, that a plot had been discovered for setting fire to Philadelphia on Sunday night. Soon after the reception of the dispatch by GeneralCadwalader and Mayor Henry, measures were taken to notify proprietors of hotels to keep an extra watch during the night, and to scan closely persons seeking lodgings. Military guards were placed around all the government buildings, and every other precaution was taken to defeat the ends of the incendiaries if any should make their appearance. In some of the churches the congregations were notified of the contents of the telegraph dispatch, and in one place the worshipers became so excited that it was found necessary to stop the service and close the doors. No attempt, however, was made to fire the city. The guard and precautions instituted on Sunday night will be continued by the authorities.—Phila. Ledger.

It appears by the Star that the alleged plot to burn Philadelphia was discovered in Washington on Friday night, under the following circumstances: Sergeant McKenny observed two suspicious persons at the 6th street wharf, and following them, he was fired on and slightly wounded. The two men then escaped, but dropped a letter, which the Sergeant picked up and took to Col. Ingraham. "This letter," says the Star, "revealed the fact that there was a deliberately planned plot on foot to burn Philadelphia, in which a large number of conspirators were to take part, and contained a request urging certain parties (supposed to be the two men alluded to above,) to be in Philadelphia on the 30th of April, as the attempt to destroy the city would be made on the 1st day of May, when the final blow would be struck, and the torch not lowered until the city was in ashes and their pockets filled with treasure.

WHERE THE ASSASSINS ORGANIZED.—The Washington Republican says: It is positively ascertained, and the evidence is in possession of the government, that the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, the Vice President, and the heads of the several Departments of the government, and Lieutenant General Grant, was well understood in Richmond among the leading traitors there, and that the infernal work was planned in all its details in Canada. Men who have heretofore been prominently connected with the government of the United States are known to have been active in the murderous work. It it also in evidence how much money was paid to the assassins, and who paid it.

THE FOREIGN NEWS indicates how rapidly American credit is to rise in Europe, under the influence of the restoration of peace in this country, under the basis of the integrity of the Union. The last several steamers have reported quite an advance in American securities, and the advices by the steamer Scotia, up to the 23d ultimo, show that United States 5-20's have reached 66 1-2 and 66 3-4. This is an improvement of about 20 per cent. on the rate at which for a long time past they have ruled. Cotton, which had for some time been declining, has taken a turn upward, and the market has become buoyant. The English papers consider the war over, and this would indicate a revival of manufactures.

The Rebel ram Albemarle has been raised and is now at the Norfolk Navy Yard, where she will be put in sea-going order and fitted out as a first-class ironclad.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN BEEHIVES.

Ahead of Everything of the Kind that has yet been Patented.

A SURE PREVENTIVE AGAINST MOTH.

On receipt of one dollar a circular containing a fine engraving with full directions will be forwarded, which will enable you to construct this hive (no difficulty whatever in the mechanism,) or to attach the fixtures to any other hive. The common box hive fixed in this way would, in my humble judgment, be rendered far superior to any of the two hundred and twenty-five hives that have been patented since the burning of the Patent Office in 1836.

Bees delight to work in these hives.

$2500 REWARD. To any person who will produce a more effective preventive against the bee moth, to say nothing of its great simplicity and cheapness over all others, the above reward will be given.

This advertisement will appear in this paper but this once. Therefore secure this valuable invention by ordering at once as it is positively worth to any person engaged in the bee business more than twenty-five times the price asked for it. All orders should be addressed to

GOLD BEARING BONDS.

These bonds are worth a premium which increases the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, and its exemption from State and municipal taxation adds from one to three per cent. more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable in currency semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

20 "	" "	$1000	"

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions, and the notes forwarded at once. The interest to 15th June next will be paid in advance. This is now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the Great Popular Loan of the People.

Less than $300,000,000 of the Loan authorized by the last Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being assorbed, will all be subscribed for within four months when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.
