DEATHS

Alfred T. Deshne died at his home in Galena recently after a long illness. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annie T. Deshane, and three children, William Deshane, Mrs. May Legg and Samuel Deshane, also by several grandchildren, one brother, William H. Deshane and one sister, Mrs. M. A. Templeman. Funeral services were held at home on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, in charge of Rev. Gordy, rector of St. Stephenson's Parish, Cecil county. The pall bearers were Messrs. Alexander and Andrew Wilson, Samuel G. Caldwell, William A. Hyland, George C. Johnson and Robert Ferguson.

After a three weeks' illness from kidney trouble and a nervous breakdown, brought on, it is said, by the condition of affairs of the Second National Bank, which closed its doors on January 20, William T. Warburton, the president of the bank, died at his home in Elkton Tuesday morning at 11.30 o'clock. For the past ten days he had been in a critical condition, and his death was not a surprise to his family or to the community at large. Born on a farm near Bay View, Cecil county, on July 16, 1852, William T. Warburton was the son of Thomas Warburton, a local preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was a descendant of Bishop Warburton, of Gloucestershire, England. We received his early education at West Nottingham Academy, and later at the University of Delaware, graduating from that institution in 1871. For many years Mr. Warburton was a leading figure in that county and in the state. He was prominent as an orator and a strong advocate of temperance. He was a Republican in politics and was a leader of that party in his county. He was a delegate to the convention that nominated Harrison and Taft. He was a candidate for governor several years ago. He was well known by the lawyers of the Chestertown bar and by the people of the county generally.

Walter T. Newsome, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Newsome, died at the home of his parents, near town, Friday evening of heart trouble, following an attack of pneumonia, aged 14 years. Funeral services were held on Monday at 11 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Omar E. Jones, pastor of the M. E. Church, interment in Still Pond cemetery. The pall bearers were: John, Homer and William Smith, Clifford and Elmer Newsome and Edward Smith. W. T. Hicks, undertaker.

Rev. Geo. T. Conaway, 86 years old, a retired minister of the Wilmington Conference of the M. E. Church, died at his home in Smyrna, Del., last Wednesday morning. He retired from the ministry in 1906, after serving 44 years with the Wilmington Conference.

Rev. Zach H. Webster, who was a member of the Wilmington Conference of the M. E. Church for 35 years, died at Denton last Wednesday night, after a long illness.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE MEETS

Second Annual Meeting Held February 28 In The Court House Here

About ninety Kent Co. farmers attended the second annual meeting of the Kent Co. Produce Exchange held last Tuesday, Feb. 28, in the Court House. The president, Dr. H. P. Copeland, in his annual address, pointed out the accomplishments of the Produce Exchange during the past two years, and the important subjects to come before the meeting.

A report on the wool marketing project was made by County Agent Derrick. It was reported that during 1921 4000 pounds of wool were marketed in the form of blankets and motor robes so as to net the farmers 55 to 57½ cents per pound for their wool. This meant a saving of about $1600. The County Agent also suggested that a sheep and wool committee be appointed to take up that phase of the work of the Exchange. This was passed in the form of a motion.

A very interesting address on tomato growing was given by Mr. Radebaugh, now County Agent of Cecil Co. and formally a very successful farmer of Harford Co.

A five-minute talk on the National "Canned Goods Week," March 1 to 8, was given by Mrs. A. L. Harris.

The tomato situation on the Eastern Shore was then heard, after which a discussion of the local situation was taken up. The Produce Exchange decided to recommend 25 cents per basket as a fair price for farmers to produce tomatoes for this year. It was further recommended, and considered most important, that not more than 5 per cent of the tillable land of any farm be devoted to tomatoes this year, with a minimum acreage of 5 acres for farms of 100 acres or less. This recommendation is favorable for small farms.

The treasurer's report was received and approved. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Pres., Dr. H. P. Copeland; V. P., H. C. Willis; Sec., A. L. Harris; Treas., D. W. Ingersoll; and the following Board of Directors in addition to the above officers: E. A. Corey, Edgar Pennington, H.S.Startt, A.W.Cochran, B. F. Rash, Albert C. Groves, Albert Jervis, John H. Clendaniel, Ralph Williams, Samuel J. Comly, J. E. Spear, John Wood and Dane E. Rianhard.
