THURSDAY

John D. Rollison et al vs. Sadie B. Rollison et al. First issue, yes; second issue, yes; third issue, yes; fourth issue, no.

Court adjourned until July, 1922.

Judge Wickes presided over the entire session of this court with the exception of the first day.

Mr. Robert R. Ayres, who was elected Clerk of the Circuit Court last fall, served his first court term in a most efficient manner, and will, doubtless, make a most painstaking and competent official. He was ably assisted by Mr. Thomas Dixon, who served many years with his father in the same capacity.

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHESTERT'N:

It is with gratification that we review the results of the Town Election of last Monday. It seems to us that the PROGRESSIVE, GO-AHEAD SPIRIT of this age has become imbedded in our people and that they are anxious that this town should take its place with the other progressive towns on the shore.

We are standing today before our County as the County Seat, and, naturally, therefore, should be the leading spirit towards accomplishing those results which mean a bigger, better and finer Chestertown.

When people become satisfied with their conditions, when they cannot see room for improvement and betterment along all lines, then those people are not going forward. It is a long established truth that we cannot stand still—that we must either go forward or backward.

With the election now a thing of the past, we must turn our faces to the future and look with longing eye towards Monday, May 15th, at which time the same people of Chestertown will have an opportunity of voting in favor of the Bond Issue.

Let us look at this as a clear-cut issue of progress, and not of politics, laying aside all thoughts of Democracy or Republicanism, and vote with a clean conscience in favor of the Bond Issue, feeling certain that with its passage will come an opportunity to make this good old town of our a bigger and better place in which to live.

All Young Americans within our midst—those in the schools and colleges—are heartily in favor of progress. They want the Bond Issue to be passed. They want those town improvements which have been needed for such a long, long time.

Now let us all put our shoulder to the wheel in a spirit of co-operation; in a spirit of helpfulness, and lay aside all personal or political animosity and pull with a long, long pull for Chestertown.

It is indeed a pleasure for me as your new Town Commissioner to send these few words to you and at the same time I wish to thank you all for the honor bestowed. I look forward with the same pelasure to having a big majority vote on Monday, May 15th, in favor of the Bond Issue.

Respectfully,

C. A. GOODWIN.

JACKIE COOGAN IS REAL "BAD BOY" IN "PECK'S BAD BOY

Although he is but six years of age, Jackie Coogan is the most talked about youngster in filmland today. We have all heard how Charles Chaplin found him and realized his screen possibilities; and how the fomed comedian wasted no time in signing Jackie to portray the title role of the now famous "The Kid."

That was the first picture young Mr. Coogan appeared in. It is seldom indeed that a player ascends the ladder to stardom via a single photoplay. But Jackie Coogan is the exception. He not only won his spurs as a silent drama celebrity, but has won a warm spot in the heart of every picture fan in the world.

And speaking of winning hearts—it would be heard to describe the feeling of friendship that exists between Jackie Coogan and Charles Chaplin. When Jackie severed business relations with Mr. Chaplin to assume the starring role of "Peck's Bad Boy," it makes no difference in their friendliness. Not a bit of it. Suffice it to say that Charles Chaplin and this little wonder boy of the silver sheet are pals—have been pals from the very start—will always be pals.

The producers of "Pecks Bad Boy," in which Jackie, of course, assumes the "bad boy" character, felt that at some time or another, everybody likes to think back on childhood days and remember the happy times spent in play—times when worries and worldly burdens were someting unknown. "Peck's Bad Boy" will refresh memories on this score. Those recollections will be made vivid when Jackie's Associated First National feature is flashed on the silver sheet of the Lyceum Theatre tonight, Saturday, April 29th. Don't Miss It.
