HIS HAND UPON THE LATCH.

My cottage home is filled with light,
The long, long summer day,
But ah! I dearer love the night,
And hail the sinking ray.
For eve restores me one whose smile
Doth more than morning's match—
And life afresh seems dawning while
His hand is on the latch!

When autumn fields are thick with sheaves
And shadows earlier fall,
And grapes grow purple 'neath the eaves
Along our trellis'd wall—
I dreamy sit—the sleepy bird
Flies twittering in the thatch—
To wake to joy when soft is heard
His hand upon the latch!

In the shortest winter afternoon
I throw my work aside,
And through the lattice, whilst the moon
Shines mistly and wide,
On the dim upland paths I peer,
In vain his form to catch—
I start delighted as I hear
His hand upon the latch!

Yes! I am his in storm and shine!
For me he toils all day;
And his heart I know is mine,
Both near me and away:
And when he leaves our garden gate
At morn, his steps I watch—
Then patiently till eve await
His hand upon the latch!

SATURDAY NIGHT.

Pause, my soul! a week hath ended,
One the less for thee below;
In this week there hath been blended
Hope and fear, and joy and woe;
Weary heart, thou canst not murmur,
O'er thy sky a bow is cast;
One week to thy haven nearer,
Courage gather from the past.

Pause, my soul! a week hath ended;
What its record borne for thee?
Whom oppressed hast thou befriended?
Who the happier been for thee?
Hast thou love for hate requited?
To thy neighbor wert thou true?
What, my soul, hast thou neglected?
What performed thou shouldst not do?

Pause, my soul! a week hath ended;
Time is bearing thee away;
Only for awhile extended
Is the life we live to-day.
What may be upon the morrow,
God in mercy hides from thee;
But so live, come joy or sorrow,
As thy day thy strength shall be.

MARRIAGE.

Whatever faults Voltaire may have had he certainly showed himself a man of sense when he said, "The more married men you have, the fewer crimes there will be. Marriage renders a man more virtuous and more wise." An unmarried man is but half of a perfect being, and it requires the other half to make things right; and it cannot be expected that in this imperfect state he can keep the straight path of rectitude any more than a boat with one oar, or a bird with one wing, can keep a straight course. In nine cases out of ten where men become drunkards, or where they commit crimes against the peace of the community, the foundation of these acts was laid while in a single state, or where the wife is, as is sometimes the case, an unsuitable match. Marriage changes the whole current of a man's feelings, and gives a centre for his thoughts, his affections and his acts. Here is a home for the entire man, and the counsel, the affections, the example, and the interests of his "better half" keep him from erratic courses, and from falling into a thousand temptations to which he would otherwise be exposed. Therefore the friend to marriage is a friend to society.

THE CHOLERA.

To avoid the cholera, the following rules among others, must be observed:

Don't get it on the brain, and to this end, avoid reading the daily papers.

Endeavor if possible, to keep a clean conscience, and two or three clean shirts.

Rise with the lark, but avoid larks in the evening.

Be above-ground in all your dwellings, and above board in all your dealings.

Love your neighbors as yourself, but don't have too many of them in the same house with you.

Eat when you are hungry, drink when you are thirsty, and sleep when you are sleepy; but be careful what you eat, what you drink, and where you sleep.

Avoid long dresses, (this is to women,) and leave the sweeping of the streets to the city contractors.

Tell the doctors that "whenever they come within a mile of your house, they are welcome to stay there all night!"

Don't get scared before you're hurt—nor even then.

Get your life insured.

Make your will.

HOW TO GET UP REFRESHED.—Every person who toils daily upon a farm in warm weather should be careful to practice a system of ablution at the close of each day's labor. Sometimes he may be so exhausted as to render this anything but an inviting performance; yet, by its omission, he loses much of the refreshment which the hours of repose are designed to impart. Cleanliness of person is essential to sound and refreshing slumber, hence the labor of keeping one's person clean is amply repaid by the elasticity which follows from nightly ablutions before retiring to rest. These are especially requisite during the haying and harvesting season, when profuse perspiration is a certain concomitant of hard and protracted labor.—Keep clean and sleep soundly—go to bed unwashed and rise in the morning unrefreshed, with a feeling of lassitude which the exertions of the day will hardly be able to remove.—Rural New Yorker.

REGISTRATION.

Governor Swann will soon appoint the Registers of voters for this State. Of course loyal men are to be Registered, and none others. The only question, then, is, who are the loyal men? When the Registers were discharging their duties last fall one of the great tests of loyalty was support of the President. When you asked why this was, you were told that "the President is the Government; and to abuse the President is to abuse the Government." Now, if the President was the Government in 1865, he must be in 1866, and those who abuse him in 1866 are just as disloyal as those who abused him in 1865. The principle cannot be changed, and if men were not qualified to vote in 1865 because they disagreed with the President, men in 1866, who disagree with and malign him are not entitled to vote, and if those who supported him in 1865 were only entitled to vote, those who support him in 1866 are the only qualified voters. We cannot make the President the Government one year, and qualify his friends to exercise their high privilege as citizens of a great Republic, and the next year disqualify the friends of the same man. While we adopt no such creed as our creed, yet our motto is to fight the Devil with fire, and if the Radicals exercise such law upon others, let the same law be exercised upon them, that they may feel its sting the more sensibly.

MODESTY.

The character of true virtue is modesty. When reason alone leads to the performance of a good action, we are then tempted to be proud of the effects which it costs. But what sentiment inclines us to do good, instead of admiring ourselves, we say: "I desire no praise, I have only followed my inclination and the impulse of my heart." Have you ever seen a miser in the act of conferring a present? He does it with a pomp and ostentation, which prove how little he is accustomed to perform such an action, and how vain he is of it. Observe, on the contrary, the noble simplicity with which a generous person knows how to give. Thus common minds are vain of good actions, because they find them painful, and consequently think them highly meritorious; whereas great souls are preserved from this pride by their very elevation, and by the sublime propensity that impels them to everything that is honest and virtuous. This reflection ought to make men in love with modesty, or at least to induce those who are destitute of that quality, to conceal their pride with care, to forbear boasting of any praiseworthy action they may have performed, since a different conduct tends only to expose the narrowness of their minds, and the little love they bear to virtue.

A CHEAP DISINFECTANT.—A correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette gives the following recipe for a cheap deodoriser, which is worth remembering:

Let every family procure, say two pounds of dry chloride of lime, costing about ten cents per pound, and four pounds of common washing soda, costing five cents per pound. Dissolve the soda in six gallons of water, in a keg or barrel, and gradually add the chloride of lime, stirring it until it is all mixed in, then let it settle, and you have the chloride of soda, of which take a pint or so and sprinkle around where bad smells arise, and this should be done every week, say twice.—The vessel it is in should be kept in a dark place and covered closely or stopped up tight.

Thus for 40 cents you have some six gallons of chloride of soda strong enough for disinfecting, &c., purposes, and sufficient to keep your premises pure and clean for the whole summer, and if everybody would use it, we should have a very pure city indeed.

LIVES LOST BY THE REBELLION.—The War department computes the number of deaths in the Union armies since the commencement of the war at 250,000 and of the Southern soldiers at least 225,000, making at least 475,000 lives that have been lost, a part of the costly price paid for the defence of the nation's life. At Gettysburg 23,000 Union soldiers were killed, wounded or taken prisoners—our greatest loss during one campaign. Gen. Grant's losses, from the time he crossed the Rapidan until Lee's surrender, were about 90,000. Great as were our losses, they were far below those incurred in European wars, owing to our superior medical and sanitary arrangements, and the care of the government for its troops.

As four or five darkies were passing an agricultural implement store yesterday, one of them, pointing to a cultivator said, "A man kin jist sit on that thing and ride while he's a plowin!" "Golly," replied another, "dey was too sharp to tink o' dat 'fore de niggers was free!"

REFUSING to pay your printer's bills and robbing a hen roost are the same thing in dutch only a little differently expressed.

A GOOD chorus for a man who has to sleep out in the field, "Too-rual! Too-rual! Too-rual-i-lay."

To be cheerfully disposed at the time of meals is one of the best signs of health.

A MAN, hearing that a raven would live two hundred years, bought one to try.

A FOP is like a cinnamon tree—the bark is worth more than the body.

MONUMENTAL AUTOMATIC
Gas Machine Co.
OF BALTIMORE,

IS prepared to furnish Machines of capacity sufficient for Private Residences, Public Buildings, Hotels, Churches, Schools, Factories, &c.

The apparatus is a simple and reliable fixture which any person can operate, and furnishes a beautiful, brilliant light, at an expense of only two dollars per thousand feet, or less than three-quarters of a cent an hour for each light.

No heat is required, and the risk and trouble attending its use are far less than with the ordinary lamps.

Persons residing in the country can enjoy the greatest of city luxuries at a small expense.

The gas is conveyed through the ordinary gas pipes, and emits no odor. If the pipes are not in your building, they can be put in at a small cost, and without injury to it. Gasoline, the material from which the gas is made, can be obtained from us or from any Coal Oil Refinery.
