Kent News

SATURDAY, APRIL 28, 1923

The Commissioners of Kent county endorse "Hog Cholera Prevention Year" and commend this work to the farmers of Kent and urge that they assist the co-operating authorities in every way. They urge farmers to refrain from feeding garbage or swill containing scraps of pork to hogs, to use care in introducing new hogs into their herds and to observe the rules of the State Board of Agriculture.

HELP THIS CAMPAIGN

Postmaster T. D. Bowers has sent a letter to every rural patron on routes emanating from his office with the hope that every one will co-operate in the campaign to beautify our highways and country homes. This campaign means much for the thrift and beauty of our country homes and roads. and it is sincerely hoped that every one of the rural patrons will comply with the postmaster's request to paint or whitewash his mail box. and either to number or place the name of the patron thereon.

SPORTING NOTES

The baseball season was opened in fine style Friday afternoon when both Washington College and the Chestertown High School won their initial victories of the season, the former defeating the strong Tank Corps team from Quantico, Va., 8 to 1, while the High School team took the Centreville High School team into camp by score of 5 to 1.

Archibald, of Kennedyville. pitched for Krebs team against New Castle Saturday and lost by score of 2 to 0. He did his part.

"Bush" Wright. the former Washington College twirling ace, has affixed his John Hancock to a Milford contract. Last year he started with Cambridge, but was later secured by the White Clouds. of Salisbury.

BEAUTIFUL OPERETTA

Emmanuel P. E. Church presented a most pleasing Operetta "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," in Chestertown Lyceum Theatre Monday and Tuesday evenings. They were assisted by the children of other schools whose services were appreciated. The cast was as follows:

Snow White, Miss Helen Connelly; Prince, Jack Stenger; Queen (Step-Mother to Snow White, Mrs. D. B. Ford; Carl, the Huntsman, Rev. C. L. Atwater; Arbutus, Miss Catherine Ford; Daffodil. Miss Emily Jewell; Violet, Miss H. Janet Atwater; Max D. B. Ford, Jr.; Hans. Sterling Townshend; Dwarfs, D. B. Ford, Frank B. Hines, Sterling Townshend, Harry Fallowfield. Harry Lewis, Parks Rasin. William Atwater. Fairies. Misses Ann Welch, Queen; Elizabeth Hopkins, Ann Kreeger, Lucile Rasin, Catherine Baker, Margaret Malin. Anna Lewis, Theodosia Chapman, Louise Simpers, Margaret Rasin, Ida Spielberger, Nancy Jean Usilton. Grace Wright. Little Fairies, Misses Maud Duyer, Harriet Rogers, Margaret Mason, Mary Westcott, Elizabeth Westcott. Henrietta Duyer, Fern Blackway, Mary G. Rogers, Carrie Schreiber. Orchestra, Pianist, Robt. Pippin; 1st violin, N. Graves; cornet, C. A. Bacon; violins. R. H. Rogers, Josepph N. Wheatley, David B. McMennamin.

Story Of The Operetta

The Princess Snow White, being found to be more beautiful than her stepmother, the Queen, is condemned to be taken into the woods and slain. Carl, the hunstman, however, permits her to go free. and under the guidance of the fairies she is led to the hut of the seven fairies, who take care of her. The queen learns that she is alive, and going in disguise to the dwarfs, makes two attempts on Snow White's life. The queen of the fairies, however. has given her a charm which will overcome the stepmother's magic. Accordingly the two attempts are frustrated; in the first instance by the dwarfs, who remove the bewitched girdle, and in the second by the Prince, who removes the poisoned apple from her lips. The story closes with the wedding of Snow White and the Prince in the latter's country.

The Operetta cleared about $200.

Colored laborers are still leaving Kent for Chester and other Northern points. The harvest is great but laborers are scarce.

MINUTE TALKS BY THE BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION

The Association is co-operating closely with the Asparagus Growers Association and a definite schedule has been worked out whereby asparagus will be hauled direct from Chestertown and calling points to the city markets of Baltimore and Philadelphia, Pa.

Trucks operated by Mr. Shallcross will leave Cross street opposite the Ford Garage beginning Monday, Apr. 30th, at 5.30 a. m. and 1 p. m., picking up asparagus at any place on the way to Baltimore. He will charge for hauling and delivery to Baltimore buyers at 25 cents per crate of 24 bunches. and each added bunch one cent extra.

E. M. Peck will load in Chestertown from 1 to 2 p. m.. Kennedyville at 2.45 p. m. and Galena at 3.30 p. m. Asparagus will be paid for in cash or by check on a local bank. Mr. Peck will haul to Philadelphia and will remain personally in this vicinity to give the buying his supervision and to assist the growers in grading for the best price.

It is advisible to have good crates in good condition and grade the asparagus carefully as the price is based on quality and packing.

This Association will be advised daily of market prices in shipping towns. For further information phone Chestertown 321 between 10 and 11 o'clock a. m.
