The Farm Bureau is builded naturally from the ground up. The County Farm Bureau is the first and most important, receiving and expending the greater share of the individual member's fee. County Farm Bureaus are joined into a State Farm Bureau Federation which serves its members in all problems affecting their interest in a nation-wide way and provides for the farm family a national voice and means of accomplishment.

The strength of any organization depends upon the number of loyal, enthusiastic members who work together under the urge of a common need.

Join with us in the farm cause that the Farm Bureau stands for, first, last and all the time.

The Farm Bureau is the biggest organization of farmers the world has ever seen.

The Farm Bureau is an organization of the farmers, by the farmers, for the farmers.

The Farm Bureau is a business-like service organization developed by experience to meet every problem of American agriculture that can be solved through concerted effort of farming people. It springs from the determination of farmers to bind themselves together in order to advance the business of farming, the education of farm people, and the improvement of social life in the open country.

COMMITTEE: D. W. Ingersoll, Chairman. J. F. Shahan, E. Thos. Massey, N. V. Walters, Sam'l. Comly, Merrick Clements, Edgar Pennington, Albert Jervis, Arthur Brice, Sewell Lee, B. F. Rash, James E. Morris, Tilden Brice, Jr., Earle Nicholson, M. P. Edwards.
