BANK CREDITORS TO GET DIVIDEND

Thomas W. Perkins, receiver for the Second National Bank of Elkton, will start within the next few days sending out Christmas presents to the creditors of the institution, in the shape of checks for a third dividend of 10 per cent. Two previous dividends, each for 10 per cent., have already been paid.

The money from which the coming dividend will be paid, does not include the $100,000 to be paid by the Eastern Electric Company, for the purchase of the Gilpins' Falls Electric Company, sold under order of the Circuit Court by Receiver Perkins. As soon as the title to the property is finally passed upon by the courts this money will be forthcoming, and which means at least another dividend of 30 per cent. to the bank creditors.

Several of the suits instituted by Receiver Perkins against the directors of the bank, have been compromised, and from this source the creditors have been benefited. The receiver expects the bank to eventually pay the creditors between 70 and 75 per cent., of their claims.

PROHIBITIVE TAX ON SEED OYSTERS

Conservation Commissioner Now Considering It—Would Stop Removal Of Seed Stock From State.

A prohibitive tax upon all seed oysters taken out of the State is suggested by Conservation Commissioner Harrison W. Vickers in a letter to Delegate-elect Robert C. Harrison, of Talbot county.

The Democratic platform contains promises to pass legislation either prohibiting or regulating the removal of seed oysters from the State. During the past few years they have been taken from the bay and river beds in great quantities and transplanted to Virginia, New Jersey and other States that go in for transplanting on a large scale than Maryland.

Commissioner Vickers in his letter said he realized the urgent needs for legislation along this line and asked Mr. Harrison, who took the lead in oyster legislation at the last session of the Assembly for his views on the matter.

Mr. Vickers first pointed out that it must be remembered that the demand to supply seed oysters for Maryland's needs of planting approximately 6000 acres of bottom a year was not sufficient to justify oyster catchers in supplying the local demand alone. As a result, he wrote, "there would be comparatively few bushels of seed oysters caught for Maryland planters. He continued:

"In my opinion, there is a real demand for some legislation to prevent seed oysters being taken from this State, and some legislation along this line should be passed, but it must be recognized that a great deal of this hue and cry against the removal of oysters from this State for planting purposes has come from mistaken viewpoints.."

Mr. Vickers continued to state in his letter that a great many oysters taken from the State last spring for planting purposes were actually of marketable size. He pointed out that this brings up the question whether or not all oysters should not be kept in the State. If such legislation were passed, he pointed out, provision could be made so that such a law should not apply to oysters shipped out in bags or barrels.

Mr. Vickers continued:

"As another alternative, we might pass a law imposing [illegible] per-haps 20 cents a bushe[illegible] ters taken out of the State [illegible] purpose. This would not prevent the planting of marketable oysters when once beyond the jurisdiction of Maryland.

"This of course, has the same effect as my previous suggestion." wrote Mr. Vickers, "since it limits the catcher practically to local market in supplying seed for the State."
