THE VOICELESS.

We count the broken lyres that rest
Where the sweet wailing singers slumber,
But o'er their silent sister's breast
The wild flowers who will stoop to slumber?
A few may touch the magic string,
And noisy fame be proud to win them;
Alas for those who never sing,
But die with music in them!

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone,
Whose song has told their heart's sad story,
Weep for the voiceless who have known
The cross without the crown of glory!
Not where Leucadian breezes sweep
O'er Sappho's memory-haunted pillow,
But where the glistening night-dews weep
O'er nameless sorrow's church yard pillow.

O hearts that break and give no sign
Save whitening lip and fading tresses,
Till death pours out his cordial wine,
Slow-dropped from misery's crushing presses,
If singing breath or echoing chord
To every hidden pong were given,
What endless melodies were poured
As sad as earth, as sweet as heaven!

CONTENT.

Content is a fortune to its possessor though he be clad in rags; the discontented man is poor though he wear velvet.—There are some things which money cannot buy, and of these the chief is happiness. He who is thoroughly satisfied with his lot has attained the summit of mortal felicity. The Vermonter who considered himself rich with three hundred dollars clear of the world, was a wealthy man.—Not comparatively, perhaps, but positively so; wealthy in his own opinion, and what better criterion of wealth could we assume?

Yet, useful as perfect content is to the individual, a certain degree of individual discontent is necessary to the State. Stagnation in the people is fatal to national progress. Were we satisfied to remain in the positions into which chance has cast us, the world would still be in its root-digging instead of its railroad-building epoch.

It is the restless striving for something better, some condition beyond our present reach, or some possible good beyond our present vision, that has lifted mankind to its lofty position. Though discontent have its base phases, there is a certain thirsting after perfection that is full of nobleness, a desire to escape from low conditions and debasing toil that more than aught else has contributed to the world's advance.

There is besides a species of refined discontent yet more noble; a revolt against darkness where light exists; a strife for knowledge, which has unlocked the gates of a thousand mysteries, and won from the heart of Nature her choice secrets. With utter contentment we would yet be savages. Discontent has proved the world's evangel, lifting it from poverty and ignorance into wealth and knowledge.

WHAT CAUSES SLEEP.—A curious and ingenious theory has been propounded on the advantage of a small per centage of carbonic acid in the air as a conducive to sleep. The sedative nature of this gas is well known, and with most animals in a state of nature sleep comes on at the time when plants commence to develop carbonic acid—that, is, at sunset; and it relaxes its hold about sunrise, when plants begin to exhale oxygen. Further, when man and animals compose themselves to sleep, they not only do so in the position which gives the greatest relaxation to the muscles, but "they place the head so as to favor the accumulation of that gas about it, and consequently its inhalation. The head of a man, when at rest, generally lies low, on a soft depressed pillow; those of most quadrupeds couched between their paws; and those of birds nestled among the feathers of their backs or wings;" so that in all cases, owing to the low and confined position of the mouth and nostrils, much of the air must be inhaled again and again, and become gradually mixed with a larger proportion of carbonic acid. The fact is also adduced that the carnivora who are nocturnal in their habits retire during the day to deep and narrow caverns, in which the air, becoming vitiated by their respiration, tends to promote sleep.

A LITTLE thoughtful attention, how happy it makes the old! They have outlived most of the friends of their early youth. How lonely their hours! Often their partners in life have long filled silent graves; often their children they have followed to the tomb. They stand solitary bending on their staff, waiting till the same call shall reach them. How often they must think of absent, lamented faces; of the love which cherished them, and the tears of sympathy which fell with theirs, now all gone. Why should not the young cling around and comfort them, cheering their gloom with songs and happy smiles?

AS MY FATHER used to say of women, you must study their nature. When he lived at Sheffield, and his establishment was small, he never rang the bell for the maid, but when he wanted her, always went out into the street to call her, for he said, women were sure to be found looking out of the window. In like manner, he always hired the prettiest girls he could find; they waited for the men to run after them, but the ugly ones always wasted their time running after the men; one stayed at home and the other didn't.

ECONOMY.—Lord Bacon says, "It is more honorable to refrain from petty indulgences than to descend to petty means of obtaining money to afford them." In this rule, we are confident, consists the whole scheme which renders it possible for a poor man to be independent and of good cheer.

BOUNDLESSNESS OF CREATION.

About the time of the invention of the telescope, another instrument was formed, which laid open a scene no less wonderful, and rewarded the inquisitive spirit of man. This was the microscope. The one led us to see a system in every star; the other leads us to see a world in every atom. The one taught us that this mighty globe, with the whole burden of its people and its countries, is but a grain of sand on the high field of immensity; the other teaches us that every grain of sand may harbor within it the tribes and families of a busy population. The one told us of the insignificance of the world we tread upon; the other redeems it from all insignificance; for it tells us, that in the leaves of every forest, and in the flowers of every garden, and in the waters of every rivulet, there are the glories of the firmament. The one has suggested the thought, that beyond and above all that is visible to man, there may be fields of creation which sweep immeasurably along, and carry the impress of the Almighty's hand to the remotest scenes of the universe. The other suggests that beneath all that minuteness which the aided eye of man has been able to explore, there may be a region of invisibles—and that could we draw aside the mysterious curtain which shrouds it from our senses, we might see a theatre of as many wonders as astronomy has unfolded—a universe within the compass of a point so small as to elude all the powers of the microscope, but nevertheless, where the wonder-working God finds room for the exercise of His attributes—where he can raise another mechanism of worlds, and fill and animate them all with the evidences of his glory.

BEAUTY OF THE HEAVENS.

How delightful to contemplate the heavens! We find no limit, no boundary. Millions of miles may be traversed from any given point of space, and still the heavens appear illimitable. Infinity is stamped upon them. And with what gorgeous splendor and magnificence is that curtain adorned! In every direction it is studded with worlds, suns and systems, all harmoniously moving in perfect and undeviating obedience to the Almighty will. The soul, in such a contemplation, is absorbed. Earth ceases to hold us with its silver chain. The mind, set free from grovelling pursuits, mounts up as if on the wings of an eagle, and soars away through immensity of space, surveying and admiring the innumerable revolving orbs, which, like so many "crowns of glory" and "diadems of beauty," spangle that firmament "whose antiquity is ancient of days," and which so wonderfully attest that "the hand that made them is divine!"

The immense distance of the fixed stars claims our attention, and awakens the most enrapturing feelings in the mind.—Reason is compelled to give the reins to imagination, which tells us that there are stars so distant that their light has been shining since the creation, and yet, amazingly rapid as light travels, no ray from them has yet reached us!

THE TIME TO LAY ASIDE BITTER FEELINGS.—Now that the fall elections are over and the verdict of the people has been rendered upon the great issues of the hour, we trust that that acquiescence of all parties in the result, and the obliteration of all the acrimonious feelings engendered during the contest—which Europeans credit us with at the close of our political campaigns—will be even more complete than upon any previous occasion of like character. The canvass, in some localities, at least, has been exceedingly hot and angry, and in more than one part of the country we have had threats of disturbance on a large scale. There has been a great deal of very violent language, and there have been very atrocious charges and counter-charges, while partizans of the more ultra stamp have tried to rouse and inflame the baser feelings of the basest portions of the community. There is nothing now to be gained by continuing this sort of thing, so, for the time being, let us have an end of it.—N. Y. Times.

GEN. SHERMAN'S SYMPATHY WITH THE PRESIDENT.—Lieutenant Gen'l Sherman, when in Washington, made no secret of his support of the President's policy. On one occasion he said: "Soldiers have something else to do now besides fighting. We fought the rebels as long as there were any rebels to fight. What we have to do now is to secure the object for which we fought. We fought to restore the Union; let us now restore it." He frequently expressed his surprise and indignation that the Southern States were deprived of the right of representation so long after the termination of the war.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

A TEAMSTER stopped at an inn to breakfast, and having drank a cup of what was given to him, the servant asked, "What will you take sir, tea or coffee?" "That depends upon circumstances," was the reply; "if what you gave last was tea, I want coffee; if it was coffee, I want tea; I want a change."

A young man recently wrote to his sweet-heart, saying: "There is not a globule of blood in my heart which does not bear your photograph." He had it bad, hadn't he?

TRUSTEE'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE of a Decree of the Circuit Court for Kent county, as a Court of Equity, the undersigned will expose to Public Sale, on

TUESDAY, 27th November, 1866,

at twelve o'clock, M., at the Voshell House, in Chestertown, kept by Mr. S. V. Farson, the following Real Estate of the late Jeremiah Stull, deceased:

No. 1.

A Farm of 102 Acres

occupied by Mr. Thomas A. Merredith, and near Stull Town, and within a short distance of Locust Grove, and on the public road leading from the Stage road near Locust Grove, through Matthew's, Janvier's & Wolf's lands, to a Landing on Sassafras River. The soil is kind and susceptible of improvement; in a good neighborhood and location, convenient to Churches, Schools, Post Office, Stores and Mechanics. THE BUILDINGS consist of a one and a half story FRAME DWELLING, three rooms below and three above stairs, in fair condition, part of it being new. A good Meat and Poultry House; there is the frame of a large Barn, needing roofing and weather-boarding. Fencing in fair condition.

Mr. Merredith will shew the premises to any who may call.

No. 2.

A SMALL FARM

OF 98 ACRES,

called "JOHNSON'S POINT," lying between the lands of Mr. W. N. E. Wickes and Mr. Wm. Janvier's, on Freeman's Creek, and adjoining the lands of Mr. William O. Shallcross. It lies about one-fourth of a mile from part No. 1.

It has no Buildings, but about one-half of the land is in valuable

CHESNUT TIMBER.

The Chesnut is said to be very good, of superior quality, and in large abundance, covering about one-half the property, which lies on the public road leading through Messrs. Janvier and Wickes' Farms to Sassafras River.

No. 3.

A Dwelling House,

at Locust Grove, on the Main road from Chestertown to Galena, frame, one-story, three rooms below and two above stairs. Garden and Yard attached.

Also, Store House,

one room above and one below. The latter is occupied by Mr. Samuel Melvin. Post-Office kept in store room.

No. 4.

A FARM in Queen Ann's County,

CALLED "POCK HICKORY,"

commonly called "FORESTVILLE," formerly the property of Benjamin Holding, situated on the South side of the main road leading from Millington to Peters' Corner, and about five miles from the former place, containing

407 ACRES,

More or Less, and occupied by Mr. Samuel Lane as tenant.

More than one-half the property is in WOOD.

There is a DWELLING and several smaller Tenements on the land.

Mr. Lane will shew the premises.

The Terms of Sale are:

One-fourth part of the purchase money to be paid in six months; one-fourth in twelve months; one-fourth in eighteen months, and one-fourth in two years from the day of sale, with interest from the first day of January next, and to be secured by the bond of the purchasers to the Trustee, with security to be approved by him.

The State of Maryland.

BY HIS EXCELLENCY
THOMAS SWANN.

A PROCLAMATION
FOR A
DAY of PUBLIC THANKSGIVING AND PRAISE.

BY the Providence of ALMIGHTY GOD, the People of the State of Maryland have been vouchsafed another year of prosperity. The civil war which desolated so large a portion of our country, has been succeeded by the blessings of Peace. Our harvests have been abundant; labor everywhere actively employed, and profitably rewarded; commerce resuming its accustomed channels, and opening up new avenues of productive wealth; and the incentives to enlarged and vigorous enterprise—within our borders—never so encouraging as at the present moment. Added to all this the Pestilence, which hung like a cloud over this land, has been stayed in its work of death and desolation.

It becomes us to humble ourselves as a People, for the bounties thus so liberally bestowed upon us, and to offer our heartfelt acknowledgment to the Great Author of our being, for the protecting arm which has been extended over us.

And let us further beseech Him, that by the cultivation of virtue, by brotherly love, by Christian charity and moderation, by honest dealing and submission to the laws, we may continue to prove ourselves worthy of His Divine Mercy.

For the furtherance of this object, I hereby recommend to the good people of this Commonwealth, the observance of

THURSDAY,

The Twenty-ninth day of November inst.,

as a day of THANKSGIVING AND PRAYER, and that they assemble in their respective places of Worship to humble themselves before God.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, at Annapolis, this 9th day of November, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, and of the Independence of the United States, the ninety-first.

THO. SWANN.

By the Governor:
JNO. M. CARTER,
Secretary of State.

WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT.

BELIEVING that the people of this Town and County are often driven to the necessity of going to the city to obtain many articles which ought to be furnished in Chestertown, I therefore have made it my business to examine and buy upon the best terms in Philadelphia and New York, the largest stock ever offered in Chestertown in my line. All kinds of the most fashionable and can and will sell them lower in many instances than they can be bought in the city at retail, having purchased from the factories, and living and rents being much less. All goods warranted as represented when sold, and will be redeemed whenever differing from representation. NOTIONS.—Fine French and American Toys, the prettiest and most in quantity ever before seen in this market, fresh from the maker's hands. Pocket Books, pen-knives, best scissors, razors, combs and brushes, ink stands, and almost any such thing you can think of. Nothing but an examination can give you any idea of the extent of the stock.—Call and look at THE LARGE JEWELRY STORE in Chestertown.

FAMILY, SABBATH SCHOOL and CHURCH ORGANS, for sale.

REPAIRING.—Long experience in this department, and a first-rate stock of the best materials, enables me to assure the public that they shall have their work well done, and on the most moderate terms. All work warranted. Jewelry repaired while the customer waits if desired. J. V. SMITH.
