...PEOPLE WANT.

...G that the people of this Town
... County are often driven to the necessity of going to the city to obtain many articles which ought to be furnished in Chestertown, I therefore have made it my business to examine and buy upon the best terms in Philadelphia and New York, the largest stock ever offered in Chestertown in my line. All kinds of the most fashionable

Jewelry, Watches,
AND CLOCKS,

and can and will sell them lower in many instances than they can be bought in the city at retail, having purchased from the factories, and living and rents being much less. All goods warranted as represented when sold, and will be redeemed whenever differing from representation. NOTIONS.—Fine French and American Toys, the prettiest and most in quantity ever before seen in this market, fresh from the maker's hands. Pocket Books, pen-knives, best scissors, razors, combs and brushes, ink stands, and almost any such thing you can think of. Nothing but an examination can give you any idea of the extent of the stock.—Call and look at THE LARGE JEWELRY STORE in Chestertown.

FAMILY, SABBATH SCHOOL and CHURCH ORGANS, for sale.

REPAIRING.—Long experience in this department, and a first-rate stock of the best materials, enables me to assure the public that they shall have their work well done, and on the most moderate terms. All work warranted. Jewelry repaired while the customer waits if desired. J. V. SMITH.

The Latest News

FROM Europe, is that Maxamilian has left Mexico, but the latest news in Chestertown worth hearing is that

B. STRAUS

HAS JUST ARRIVED from the city with his COMPLETE STOCK OF READY-MADE CLOTHING,

and Gents' Furnishing Goods of all styles, and would respectfully announce to his friends and the public that he has now on hand a Stock of Clothing never surpassed in this market, and would invite all now in want of Clothing to give him a call before purchasing.

He has rented the store room on High Street, lately occupied by Mr. H. W. Earnest as a Magistrate's office, for the balance of the year; but can be found at the New Store Room, corner of High and Cross Sts. after Jan. 1st, 1867.

THE winter season is now fully upon us, and reminds us of the necessity of buying our clothing where we can get the best on the most reasonable terms. Our young friend, STRAUS, offers inducements which cannot fail to satisfy all purchasers. His complete stock and prices are worthy of their attention. Never misrepresenting goods, you can rely upon what he says.—The business suits he has on hand comprise all grades, cassimeres, meltons, satinets, &c., and his overcoats are manufactured from such standard grades as Moscow, Esquimaux, American beavers, Chanchillas, Whitneys, English and American meltons. He also makes garments to order from patterns of the latest designs. In connection with the above, his line of gents' furnishing goods surpass all the novelties of the season; in fact, it is such an establishment as we can advise our friends to patronize.

Teeth Extracted Without Pain!
NITROUS OXIDE.

I DESIRE to call the attention of those suffering from bad teeth, (as there is nothing more calculated to undermine the constitution than decayed teeth,) that the time has come, and now is, when they can have their teeth taken out without pain, and that in Chestertown. When I first introduced this powerful esthetic, I was called upon to vouch for its innocency, and the happy effect it was said to produce.—That I could not then do except upon the authority of other responsible parties. But, as I now have practical knowledge in its operation, it gives me great pleasure to say, I feel no hesitancy in vouching for it, surpassing as it does my expectation in its happy effect.

...And scarce permit them to be seen.
And so, in truth, good deeds should be
Concealed in sweet humanity.

The peaches redden on the wall,
Close set upon low branching trees;
And any hand may easy touch
The gifts that the eye easy sees.
And so with us, 'tis well for each
To keep within the other's reach.

The peaches redden on the wall;
They take the kisses of the sun,
The joy tears of the flying cloud,
The darkness when the day is done.
And thus, well used, the changing hour
Will help us to a larger power.

The peaches redden on the wall,
To drop when chilly winds shall blow;
But careful hands are swift to stay
Their fragrant lives from ending so.
And surely thus a Hand will save
The good from falling in the grave.

The peaches redden on the wall—
But look up higher overhead,
Where all the vastness of the sky
With faintest, calmest blue is spread.
And what is that from where we stand,
But blue mist hiding Fatherland?

The peaches redden on the wall,
Though night's dark curtain drips with dew;
The white stars show themselves, and shine
Through mounded cloud and hovering blue.
And oh, to feel "past fruit and tree,
The Lights of Home shine forth for me!"

OUR LITTLE ONE.

Of all the prayers that test my faith,
This is the hardest one,
To gaze on that dear face in death
And say, "Thy will be done."
In the wild struggle nature fails
And sinks affrighted down;
A mortal grief o'er faith prevails,
The cross obscures the crown!

So fast upon her pale, sweet clay
Came down my blinding tears,
They veiled awhile her shining way
To the celestial spheres.
O Thou who hast with hand unseen
Removed the loved to Thee,
Come now with helping grace between
The little child and me.

THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER.—A cotemporary, in the following paragraph, hits a large class of persons pretty hard who reside in this locality. It says:

"The greatest bug bear we have met with, is the complaint that they already take so many city papers, that they cannot afford to take their local paper! thus, by withholding their patronage from their local paper, they force it to languish and die, while they utter mournful howls that their local paper is not good for anything! Now, we conceive it to be the duty of every man to support his local paper first, and then carry his patronage wherever he pleases. Men who will not support their local paper, are not apt to be very high minded—they go upon the principle that "darkness is better than light," and probably fearing that their neighbors may have too much of the latter, borrow the paper from them."

If the above should trouble the conscence of any BORROWER of the "NEWS," he can send two dollars and we will enter his name as a subscriber for one year.

HAVE the courage to show your respect for honesty, in whatever guise it appears; and your contempt for dishonest duplicity, by whomsoever exhibited.

Have the courage to do without that which you do not need, however much your eyes may covet it.

Have the courage to wear your old suit until you can pay for a new one.

Have the courage to obey your Maker, at the risk of being ridiculed by man.

Have the courage to prefer comfort and propriety to fashion in all things.

Have the courage to take your county paper, and pay for it in advance.

SAVING HIS BACON.—A good story is told of a Western farmer and a candidate for Congress, whose neighbour was in the habit of stealing his hogs, and was finally caught in the act. Anxious to secure the man's vote and his own pork at the same time, the farmer went to him and said:—"Now, I'll make this proposition: If you will let my hogs alone in the future, I will not only say nothing of the past, but when I kill in the fall, I'll put into your cellar five barrels of as good pork as I make." The fellow reflected a moment, and replied: "Well, Squire, that's a fair proposition, any how, and seeing as it's you I'll do it. But I vow I believe I shall lose pork by the operation."

"TURN out! turn out!" cried a roystering teamster to some one he was meeting, "turn out, or I'll serve you as I did the other man." The stranger in astonishment complied; but when John was nearly opposite, called to him with, "Pray, sir, how did you serve the other man?" "Why, sir," said whip, tipping a wink, "I told him to turn out, and he wouldn't, so I turned out myself."

A WIFE'S love is the golden chain which unites her to her husband; it has a thousand delicate links, forged by sympathy, self-espect and mutual confidence; sever but one of them and the chain is completely broken, as though a hundred were destroyed.

Charity.

"A friend should bear a friend's infirmities."

There is no virtue, in which men are more deficient, than in the exercise of that spirit of charity, "which beareth all things, and hopeth all things." Though we should never countenance error, yet ought we to view and reprove with tenderness the faults of others. The pride of our hearts, which is ever leading us astray, impels us to detect and expose the errors of our neighbors, and thus triumph in our fancied superiority. We place our character as a model, and every difference and deficiency receives our condemnation. Unmindful of the endless diversity of character, the peculiar constitution of different minds, and the variety of motives which govern human actions, we mark out one path of thought and action for the whole,—an attempt as absurd and impracticable, as to prescribe one orbit for all the planets which glitter in the firmament.

...his
...t the "land
...age for the "land of
Beulah," and the only way to reach this promised land was to sail across the Pacific, whose gentle waves were constantly showing their affection by embracing each other. Fanned by gentle breezes, soft as Italian zephyrs, we glided gently and swiftly onward, and almost before we were aware, cast the anchor of Hope in the harbor of "Social Sympathies." Here we were welcomed by our friends Hospitality, Sociability and Good-will, with great warmth and ardor. We then passed on thro' the flourishing and thriving towns, Society, Friendship and Love, seeking the metropolis of the country. We proceeded slowly onward, admiring the beautiful scenery by which we were surrounded, and refreshed by the soft and balmy atmosphere of love and affection, we soon saw gleaming in the distance the lofty spires with which the city was filled.—"Hope scattered our pathway with flowers," and entering the city Association, the first building that attracted our attention was Hospitality, whose windows were thronged with smiling faces; the next in order was the humble cottage, Meekness, then Mercy, and next was the superb mansion Truth, next the good and substantial fanes Industry and Honesty, and then the magnificent temple Patience; and last but not least was the indispensable mansion Cheerfulness; these were all situated on Prudence street. By this time we had arrived at the centre of the city, and there we beheld the trio, Faith, Hope and Charity; and in different parts of the city were situated the mansions, Health, Virtue, Temperance, Benevolence, Hall of Liberty, and the House of Justice, the residence of the Governor. There is no need of infirmaries or asylums here, for sickness and insanity are never known.—The rivers, too, which intersect this country, are as clear as crystal, and whose "waters are for the healing of the nations." The officials, too, are quite clever, as mayor Isolation, Cruelty and Hypocrisy have long since been imprisoned and their places occupied by Companionship, Humanity and Sincerity; and here also when Friendship begins to wither and die, it is renewed by refreshing showers of love and harmony.

I find everything I could expect or desire—I feel as though I were in Fairy Land—indeed the Land of Beulah. Then why should I return? "Henceforth I will live and die" in this secluded spot, and "here also shall I be buried;" and if you would see me again I will willingly send you the clipper Congeniality, which will bear you from the land of Marah and transport you to the Promised Land.

NEW USE FOR CALOMEL — DOCTORING FRUIT TREES.—A gentleman of Rochester was lately in Saratoga county, New York, and was there shown an apple tree in fine healthy condition, which had been ill, subjected to treatment with calomel and thoroughly cured. This tree was afflicted with insects, which were destroying it and rendering it unproductive. A hole was bored into the body of the tree nearly through the sap, and two grains of calomel inserted. As soon as this calomel was taken up by the sap, the vermin on the tree died, and it began to bear fruit and has done so for three years, to the entire satisfaction of the owner. Sulphur may be mixed with the calomel and produce a good effect. This is a fact worth knowing.

HINTS TO YOUNG MEN.—Have always a good book within your reach, which you may catch up at your odd minutes: a single thought made your own may be an invaluable treasure to you, and give color to your whole life. Fifteen minutes a day saved in this way will give you, in one year, a fund of valuable information, which no young man of enterprise can afford to spare; and how much may thus be accomplished in a lifetime who can tell?

WORTH KNOWING.—A poison of any conceivable description and degree of potency, which has been swallowed intentionally or by accident, may be rendered almost instantaneously harmless by swallowing two gills of sweet oil. An individual with a very strong constitution should take twice the quantity. This oil will neutralize every form of vegetable or mineral poison with which physicians and chemists are acquainted.

HOW TO TREAT A FOOL.—Solomon says (Prov. 26) "Answer not a fool according to his folly—lest thou be like unto him. Answer a fool according to his folly—lest he be wise in his conceit." From this paradox a wise man may infer that though it may be worth while sometimes to notice a fool's sayings so far as to answer them, it is not worth while to do it very often.

PETROLEUM AS A MOTOR.—Petroleum is to be used as a steamboat fuel. A company has been organized in Memphis, Tenn., which is building a boat of not less than fifty-horse power, that will save one-third of the space devoted to fuel, while its lightness will greatly lessen the draft of the vessel.

THEY WILL BLACKEN IF THEY DO NOT BURN.

A Wise father gave this lesson to his daughter. He had refused to let her visit a young lady who was neither good nor amiable.

"Dear father," said the gentle girl, "you must think me weak and childish if you imagine I should be exposed to danger."

The father took in silence a dead coal from the hearth, and reached it to his daughter.

"It will not burn you, my child; take it."

She did so, and behold! her delicate white hand was soiled and blackened, and as it chanced, her white dress also.

"We cannot be too careful in handling coals," she said, in vexation.

"Yes truly," answered her father; "and you see, my child, that coals, even if they do not burn, blacken. So it is with vicious company."—From Children's Hour.

"BOB, that's a fine horse you have there; how much is he worth?"

"Three hundred and fifty dollars."

"No, not so much as that?"

"Yes, every cent of it, and another fifty on the top of it."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, I'll swear to it."

"All right."

"Why are you so d—d inquisitive?"

"Merely for assessing purposes. I am the assessor in this ward and only wanted to know what you rated your nag at."

THE Aberdeen (Miss.) Sunny South tells the following:

"Look out there! What are you kicking my dog for?"

"I'm kicking him 'cause he's full of fleas; I don't want to get 'em on my clothes.

"Fleas! Why, that dog sleeps with me."

"Yes, darn it, that's whar he gets 'em."

Old lady (to a hackman)—"But these hacks are dangerous. You never know who rides in them. We might get the small pox."

Coachy—"You've no cause to be afeared of my coach, mum, for I've 'ad the hind wheels waccinated, and it took beautiful."

THIRTEEN objections were once given by a young lady for declining a match; the first twelve being the suitor's twelve children, and the thirteenth the suitor himself.

"SHE isn't all that fancy painted her," bitterly exclaimed a rejected lover; and worse than that, she isn't all that she painted herself."

"I KNOW every rock on the coast," cried an Irish pilot. At that moment the ship struck, when he exclaimed, "and that's one of them."

TEACHER.—My dear boy, it almost breaks my heart to punish you.

BOY.—Then darn it all, why do you do it?

A CHEERFUL spirit makes labor light and sleep sweet, and all around happy, which is much better than being only rich.
