Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."— MRS. TILLIE WATERS, 530 Mechanic Street, Camden, N.J.

From Hanover, Penn.

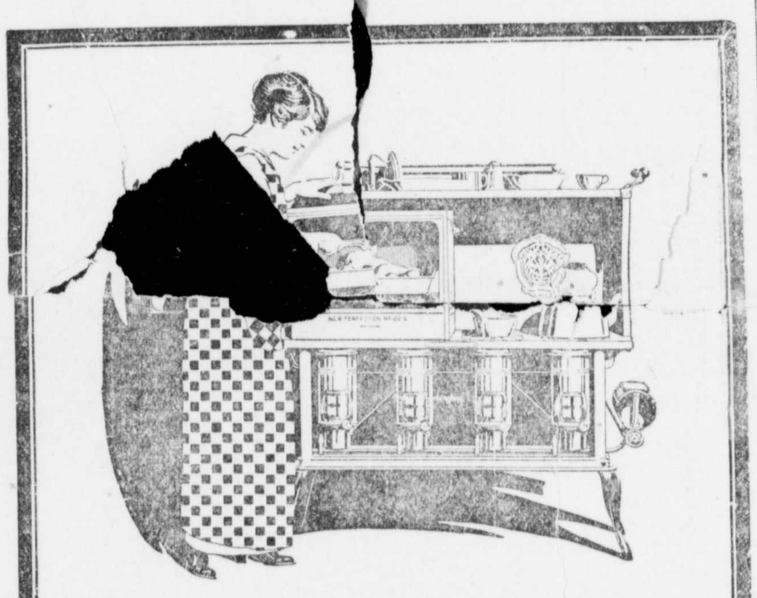

HANOVER, PA.—"I was a very weak woman and suffered from bearing down pains and backache. I had been married over four years and had no children. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved an excellent remedy for it made me a well woman. After taking a few bottles my pains disappeared, and we now have one of the finest boy babies you ever saw."—Mrs. C. A. RICKRODE, R.F.D., No. 5, Hanover, Pa.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

A KENT COUNTIAN LIVING IN MANILA

Manila, Philippine Islands.
March 25, 1915.

EDITORS KENT NEWS Chestertown, Md.

Gentlemen—Last August when I was in Kent on leave of absence from my post at Fort Jay, Governors Island, New York City, I promised that I would write and tell you of my trip to the Phillippines, and should you consider this of interest to your reade s you have my permission to publish it.

In June, 1914, while serving at Fort Jay, rather unexpectedly I received an order from the War Department at Washington directing me to proceed to San Francisco, California, and sail from that port on September 5th for Manila for a three year tour of foreign service.

Bidding farewell to my friends and fellow officers of the regiment in which I had served nearly five years in New York State I left New York on August 24th and proceeded leisurely to San Francisco stopping at Chicago, Omaha, Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City, Utah, arriving there September 2nd after a very interesting trip across the continent from coast to coast.

Finding I had three days before my ship sailed, I took in the sights of San Francisco not the least of which was the Panama-Pacific Exposition grounds. Here thousands of men were busy erecting wonderful buildings, attractions, streets, etc., over an enormous space of several hundred acres. Thus I saw the 1915 Exposition in the making and a wonderful sight it was.

I went all thru Chinatown which is perhaps the largest and best in any city in the United States. Finally the fifth arrived and promptly at 12 o'clock noon amid the waving of hats, fond adieux, the playing of bands, etc, our ship the United States Army Transport Logan backed slowly out from her pier into the harbor, turned her nose westward toward the Golden Gate and at last our long voyage had begun and we were leaving the United States for three years. It was about this time that we really began to appreciate what a fine country ours is.

The ship was crowded with Army and Navy officers and enlisted men, many of whom were making their third and fourth trips to the Philippines, having first come over in the outbreak of war with Spain in 1898. We passed out the Golden Gate about 2 p. m. and heading due west across the mighty Pacific Ocean the shoreline soon disappeared. At 4 30 p. m. we passed the Farollone Islands which belong to California and this was the last land we were to see for 7 days.

With a moderate wind blowing we had little time for homesickness for there was a gentle roll to the ship as she ploughed thru the big waves. A number of faces were missing at the dinner table that night and I am frank to confess that mine was among those not present. However, in a day or so, we began to get our sea legs and by the third day out, with a few exceptions, every one was up on deck and keenly enjoying the bracing air of the ocean and warm tropical sunshine.

Each day we anxiously scanned the horizon for signs of smoke for it was at this time that the German cruisers were causing so much trouble and anxiety to British ships in the Pacific and we were hoping that we should be held up just for the fun of it. But such was not our luck. Not a ship of any kind was seen until the fifth day out when we passed a freighter inward bound for San Francisco, and she was too far away to even read her name with field glasses. As our ship ploughed her way through the waters large schools of flying fish leaped from the water in front of the prow and skimmed along 8 or 10 feet above the surface for a distance of several hundred yards before alighting much the same as a flock of quail before the hunter. It was indeed a rare sight.

On Saturday morning, the 12th, just one week out from San Francisco, all was excitement on board for land was sighted which proved to be one of the easternmost of the Hawaiian Islands. It was not until 4 p. m. of that same day that we entered the harbor of Honolulu and what a wonderful sight it was. Mark Twain in his "Innocents Abroad" describes them as "the loveliest fleet of islands that lies anchored in any ocean," and there is no disputing the fact that he showed good judgment. The city of Honolulu is spread out along the shore for miles with high green mountains immediately in the rear. A shower had just passed (liquid sunshine the nature-loving Hawaiians call it) and a many hued rainbow rested over the city and mountains like an arch of triumph. It was a most impressive sight and one long to be remembered.

As the Logan slowly steamed to her pier hundreds of native boys as agile as a fish and as good swimmers as the finny tribe, swam alongside of the moving ship and dived for coins which the passengers threw into the harbor. They never failed to come up with the coin in their mouths. Many of them make a good living in this manner. Nearly everyone left the ship that evening and went out to Waikiki Beach, a famous resort nearby, and took dinner at the Moana Hotel, a famous hostelry among world tourists. The famous Royal Hawaiian Band played during the dinner and afterward for the dance and the native stringed instruments rendered wonderful music, at times during the playing the entire band would cease playing and sing or rather yodel and it was a rare treat to hear them.

As our ship was scheduled to stay there three days we saw many other wonderful sights. We went surf riding at Waikiki Beach and there is indeed a wonderful fascination to clinging to a flat board 7 ft. long and 2 ft. wide and being carried ashore on the crest of a hugh breaker with the speed of a train. The natives are quite skilful at this form of sport and even stand up on these swift boards as they come dashing in shore literally coasting down hill before a large wave. The vegetation is luxuriantly tropical and flowers abound everywhere. The natives, both men and women, wear wreaths of these flowers around their hats and necks and a pretty custom it is.

Honolulu has many beautiful residences each with its spacious lawn filled with tropical trees and flowers. The Bishop Museum contains many interesting relics of Malay tribes which inhabit the Islands of the Pacific and an entire day can be profitably spent there viewing the weapons, utensils and articles of dress used by these primitive people.

With some friends who live in Honolulu we motored out to Moanalua, a large private estate open to visitors and its Japanese tea gardens, flowers, animals and birds make it a tropical paradise. We saw the home of the old Queen Liliolukilani who ruled the Hawaiian Islands prior to their annexation to the United States in 1896. The Queen is enjoying her old age quietly in retirement and seldom appears in public except upon state occasions when she is attended by all her former royal household
