SONS OF AMERICA.

State Convention Held in Stam's Hall, Chestertown—Next Meeting in Baltimore—Secret Sessions.

The fifth annual convention of the Patriotic Order of the Sons of America met in Stam's Hall Tuesday morning. Col. Wm. J. Vannort extended the welcome from the town in his characteristic able manner. Said he in part:

"Next to the love for our Creator, we believe patriotism is the highest and noblest affection of the human heart. Today I would rather be the humblest of all humble American citizens, who live under that starry banner, whose broad fold flung defiantly to the breeze, loved and revered by every true American heart, challenges the admiration and respect of the whole world, than to wear a royal diadem or to sit upon the throne of all the Russians. Who in all this vast assembly would be content to exchange places with that degenerate cur, William Waldorf Astor, who, Esau like, bartered away his birthright for a mess of potage, and did not get even that. A stray dog without a name, home or country. A prototype of Benedict Arnold of Revolutionary disfame. I do not believe that all his glittering wealth would be any inducement for the most lowly to occupy the anomalous position in which this thing, Astor, finds himself.

The fire of patriotism is all aglow, and burns as fiercely in our breasts today as in the dark and trying hours of the Revolution; and we are determined to take our life in our hands, lay it upon the altar of our country, willing to do or die, as God willeth, that our country may live.

You, as Patriotic Sons of America should bend your every energy to render it impossible for any to live under the protection of "Old Glory,"—whose red stripes take a deeper crimson because of the blood of patriots shed upon the field of battle, and is santified by a thousand treasured memories that wear away only men's lives; whose stars have stolen the lustre from the stars of heaven and scintillate their glory and grandeur in the blazing future when they have done with the past, and that stand for a principle—who does not honor and revere the stars and stripes and would not be willing to give up his life in defence of the principles of freedom and justice which it represents.

We are in hearty accord and sympathy with every sentiment and principle enumerated in your platform of principles, and bid you God speed in the full realization of the object, ends, aims and ambitions of your Order, believing them to be the principles dear to the heart of every American citizen, and well worthy of the highest place in the American heart. You are among friends, and Chestertown wishes me to extend to you a hearty greeting of welcome within her borders, and throws open wide the portals of her hospitable homes, and bids you enter and possess the town. Every avenue from whence might come anything calculated to mar the festivities of this occasion has been barred and bolted. Every avenue from whence cometh pleasure and enjoyment have been unlocked, and I herewith present to you the keys and give you full, free and complete possession of this home town of ours that you may enter in, slake your thirst at our beautiful fountain and enjoy without let or hindrance the pleasures that await you. Again on behalf of the citizens of Chestertown we welcome you to our hearts and homes."

Mr. C. Harvey Pardee, of Baltimore, and president of the State camp, responded in a brilliant address, and after some routine business the Order adjourned.

The afternoon session was occupied by a heated contest over the election of officers, the result being as follows: C. Harvey Pardee, president; R. M. Farring, vice-president; Wm. E. Valliant, master of forms; P. B. Englar, secretary; Jas. W. Lidard, treasurer; C. M. Newkirk, conductor; F. A. Baile, inspector; Frank Creswell, guard; Harry E. Otto, John M. South and W. H. Goodwin, trustees.

The place for the meeting of the next State convention will be Baltimore. At Tuesday night's session Dr. Henry B. Martin, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, delivered the address of welcome in behalf of the local camp. Samuel A. Pitt, of Baltimore, delivered an address. His subject was "I am a Citizen of no Mean Country." H. W. K. Patterson delivered an address on "The Twentieth Century and its Import to Americans."

Prof. R. M. Farring, of Anne Arundel, sang an original local composition to the tune of Maryland; Misses Duman Sunfield and Ethel Coleman sang two pretty duets which was very much appreciated.

The session on Wednesday was secret and at 4 P. M. the Camp broke with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Chestertown Camp, No. 34, which entertained the State body, was instituted April 26th, 1899, and has a membership of about 60. It was brought into existence largely through the efforts of Mr. Wm. A. Burk, who also was instrumental in instituting the Camp at Rock Hall. The present officers of the local Camp are: J. B. McIntyre, pres.; J. W. Barnes, vice-pres.; W. E. Ringgold, secretary; G. B. Camp 39—Wm. F. Null.

Camp 40—O. R. Koontz.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

The biggest "melon" was from Carroll although Anne Arundel has heretofore carried off the palm.

Jimmy Marine is well named and his fog horn could be heard at all times and especially when he cried "vote for Waters of 38!"

Mr. Pardee was deservedly re-elected as was also Secretary Englar and Treasurer Leonard.

The Anne Arundel delegates, headed by our well-known friend and young lawyer, Bibb Mills were Farring well all the time. Mr. Mills was one of the best speakers on the floor.

Assistant secretary Stump did not know a "snap" when he saw it but the Mills did.

There are 2508 members in Maryland and at least 125,000 in the United States.

The delegates were all pleased with Chestertown and her pretty girls, with their entertainment and excellent meals and carry home pleasant memories.

The convention was more largely attended than any heretofore held.

The most Valliant man was from Church Hill and he pushed forward to victory being elected master of forms.

Mr. Wm. A. Burke was unable to enjoy the convention because of sickness.

SOCIAL NOTES.....

Mr. Wilbur Hurlock had charge of a delightful straw ride from Rolph's Wharf Thursday night. In the party were Messrs. John Evans and company, R. Irving Walker and company, Chas. Jefferson and friends and others. The party drove to the pretty lawn of Mr. F. H. Greenwood, near town, where they partook of watermellons, fruit, etc.

Mr. A. M. Brown gave another one of his successful straw rides Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Jester gave a delightful lawn party Wednesday evening to their friends at their home near Catlin's. The lawn was lighted with lanterns and the company spent the evening in mirth and song. Among those present were Misses Anna and Sue Lambert, Bertie Burchinal, Sue Ford, Katie Shuster, Lena Stewart, Lizzie Snitcher, Neva Newnam, the Misses Peacock, Miss Lingo and Miss Hill, of Philadelphia, Mr. and Miss Laura Tucker, the Misses Jefferson, Mrs. Harry Newnam, Messrs. Norman and Harry Jefferson, Dr. H. L. Dodd, D. B. Ford, J. H. Sides, Charles Jefferson, Messrs. Peacock & Steve, of Philadelphia, H. C. Folger, of Cleveland, and others.

Barn Spreads.—The barn on Mr. P. A. M. Brooks' farm fell with its load of 3500 bushels of wheat Monday. The vessel was at anchor off his shore, and the men who were to help load the grain were at dinner when the crash came. The barn was built on 3 foot piers and several hogs were caught under the load and killed. Thirteen hundred bushels were bagged and the balance placed on Capt. Pheffer's boat so that Mr. Brooks will not lose much wheat. He will rebuild his barn at once.

Corn Crop Short.—Observant farmers estimate that the corn crop this season will not average a half crop throughout the entire county. Many farmers will not grow enough of the grain to serve them and in some instances the crops are almost total failures. The condition is due to the continued dry weather.

PEACH NOTES.....

Reeves Beauties Going to Market—Fair Prices for Good Fruit.

This has been a big week among our peach shippers. The Chester River Steamboat Co., with their fleet of four boats have been carrying nearly 20,000 baskets every day while the Tourist and Gaw have carried considerable. The Corsica had 2,000 from Chestertown on Wednesday night and was delayed here until after ten o'clock. The B. S. Ford comes up as far as Riverside to relieve the Corsica, and also carries fruit from Lankford Bay.

Mr. S. R. Hurlock has been shipping to Baltimore some of the prettiest fruit of any going to market.

Seven carloads were loaded at Chestertown Tuesday, the highest price paid being 80 cents for Reeves. There was a slump on Wednesday and low prices prevailed. Good peaches brought 50 and 60 cents on that day in Baltimore.

The Baltimore market took a tumble Wednesday and there was a glut, caused by a Bohemian holiday. Peaches that arrived by the early boats brought from 30 to 60 cents, others sold for most anything.

The greatest number of baskets of fruit taken by the steamer Corsica at any one trip was 6,000. The Emma Ford carried over 5,000 on one trip, and the B. S. Ford over 8,000 baskets at one trip.

There were 6½ cars loaded at Chestertown Wednesday and 3 Thursday. Good Reeves brought 50 cents here yesterday. Messrs. Lody Anderson and Johnny Smith, of Queen Anne's, have had some fine fruit this week. Mr. Smith receiving as high as 80 cents per basket on Tuesday. There are three buyers here.

Thirty-one cars were loaded with peaches at Milford Wednesday.

Millington and Lynch's have taken a back seat this year, and where heretofore 9 and 10 cars were loaded not two are sent out.

Two Chestertown business men tried their luck in buying peaches this week, evidently struck a "bad" day. They bought 90 baskets at 40 cents and received a check for $20.35—loss $15.65!

A farmer of near town owning a large orchard was in the city this week and got hungry for a peach. He purchased several but when the huckster charged him "3 for 5" the farmer whistled and said "my, that's high!" This same farmer complains too, because his fruit does not bring higher prices!

RUSH FOR BASKETS.

The basket factories are running at full speed and cannot get labor sufficient to supply the demand. Crane & Trenchard Bros. have 80 employes working night and day and turning out 12,000 baskets daily. They have raised the price to 85 cents per hundred and the smallest boy earns at least a dollar a day. They received 50,000 baskets from Baltimore to help fill orders already taken and had to refuse an order for 50,000 brace baskets from Philadelphia. The output this season from the Chestown plant will be nearly a million baskets!

Leary & Son are equally as busy and are keeping up their high reputation for a first-class basket.

Beginning with Tuesday every farmer bringing peaches to Bridgeville will be forced to allow one basket in each load dumped in order to sell his fruit. Buyers have caused placards to be placed in Bridgeville and surrounding community claiming the privilege of dumping one basket in every load. Such action has been brought about by the 'stove piping' of fruit by several farmers. This is done by placing a stove pipe in the center of an empty basket and filling the interior with green and decayed fruit, while the large fruit is placed on the outside. Several growers lost considerable sums on the 'stove-piped' fruit, and a number of the doctored baskets were found to be filled in with white potatoes and beets.

Sale of Property.—J. A. Pearce and H. H. Barroll, executors of Thomas H. Horsey, sold at Galena on Saturday the Horsey store to Mr. R. Heston Hicks for $2,500; six shares of Galena creamery stock was sold to Mr. Unit Horsey for $10 per share; ten shares of Second National Bank stock was held up at $120; the Mill lane lot was purchased by Mr. Wm. Steel for $217.

Marion deK. Smith, Esq., trustee, sold the lots in Piney Neck to Mr. Earle Strong, Wm. Ashley and other. The Maslin farm was held up at $800 and may be bought at private sale.

PUBLIC SALES.—Notice the dates of public sales in other columns of the NEWS.

THE showmen made free use of the drinking fountain yesterday.

WHEAT was quoted here at 70½ cents yesterday.

A Pretty Home Wedding.

The pretty home of Capt. Robert S. Emory, near Chestertown, was the scene of a quiet wedding at high noon Thursday. The contracting parties were the captain's eldest daughter, MISS MARY ELLA, and CAPT. CECIL R. ATKINSON. The parlor was transformed into a bower of beauty by the use of asparagus grass and roses; surrounded by the immediate family, Dr. H. B. Martin performed the impressive ceremony.

Miss May Jones presided at the organ and skilfully rendered Lohengrin's march as the party entered the parlor. The bride was neatly attired in blue silk trimmed in white silk and lace. She is one of Kent's most popular ladies, refined and accomplished, while the groom has a wide circle of friends. A sumptuous dinner was partaken after the ceremony.

The bride and groom are on a wedding trip after which they will take up their home at "Bel Rio." Next year they will remove to Capt. Atkinson's new purchase—"Riverside."

Among those present were Mr. Frank Emory and wife, Mrs. John Emory, Mrs. Bruce Emory, Wm. Emory, Misses Lizzie and Alice Emory, of Queen Anne's; Mrs. Minnie Horsey, of Del.; Misses Helen, Olive and May Russell, of Balto.; Mrs. M. A. Wilkins, Misses Jennie and Grace Wilkins, Mr. Edward Wilkins; Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Ridgeley, Miss Maud Atkinson, Mr. Geo. Atkinson, of Jersey City, and others. The couple left via Price's Station amid a shower of rice, etc.
