ILLEGAL FISHING WITH NETS.

Parties Charged with the Offense Convicted in Kent County.

The trial of the captain and crew of the schooner North Carolina, recently arrested, charged with illegal fishing with nets off Meek's Point, in the upper Chesapeake Bay, took place Saturday before Justice of the Peace Thomas D. France. State's Attorney John D. Urie, of Kent county, prosecuted. James W. Chapman, Jr., Esq., represented the fishermen.

Witnesses for the prosecution were the Messrs. Chas. E. Willett, John M. Nelson and Henry Brauns, of Baltimore. Mr. Brauns representing the Maryland State Game and Fish Protective Association, and Thomas A. Wilmer, Chas. S. Woodside, Medford Crew and Eben Crew, of Betterton. The defense offered no testimony except that of Capt. Coleman, of Rock Hall as an expert on the position of the lines described by the various laws.

The prosecution was based on the law of 1880, chapter 260, which proscribes fishing between June 10 and October 1 with hauling seine or dragnet of any kind above a line drawn from Still Pond, in Kent county, to Lego's Point, in Harford. The defense claimed that the charge should be made under the law of 1900, chapter 668, which states that purse netting sha'l be illegal "east of a line drawn from Handie's Point, Kent county, to Ricketts Point, in Harford." As this line runs nearly due east and west there could not be any prohibited waters east thereof, and is believed to be defective.

The magistrate finding that the old law had not been repealed and the proof positive, fined each of the accused parties, Messrs. Charles Thomas, Frank Hartman, Joseph Taylor, Medford Taylor, David Joiner and Tunis Kerr, $50 and ordered the boats and appurtenances to be confiscated. An appeal having been taken, the accused were put under bail for appearance at the October term of the Kent County court, when a final decision will be made by Judges Pearce, Martin and Stump.

The members of the Game and Fish Association were much gratified at the result. They hope there will be no necessity for the prosecution of others, evidence against whom is now being gathered.
