CALL THE ROLL.

BALTIMORE, MD, Jan. 30th, 1902.
MESSRS. EDITORS OF NEWS:

The interesting article from the Baltimore Sun of January 28 may not have been read by all of your many readers; it is of great interest to some Kent people, as the "First Maryland Cavalry," "Confederate Army," had many young heroes from Kent on its rolls.

We name several we can remember—Lieut. Henry C. Blackiston, brave, a splendid soldier, and one of the best riders in the command, killed in battle. Sargent Thos. H. Gemmill, one of the bravest, who drew sabre, for the just and holy cause of the Southland, killed in battle. Chapman Spencer, young dashing and courageous, killed in battle. H. Creighton Wallis, Clinton Spear, Solomon Wright, George Rolph, S. H. Blackiston, Jack Spear, Geo. T. Hollyday, and the last soldier was killed in battle of "Lee's Grand Army" at Appomattox, C. H. Va., 9th April, 1865.

The last charge made by any part of the army of Northern Virginia was made by the First Maryland Cavalry, Company E., in the lead (made by orders of Gen. Thos. T. Munford) was William C. Price of Company E, a son of W. Ferdinand Price, of Kent. This young dashing soldier was killed well in front (first section of fours) where he always was found in battle, he had been long in a Federal prison rejoining his command some ten days before his sad end, and we repeat, he was the last soldier of Lee's Army killed in battle.

Thus truly can it be said, the first blood of the Great Civil War was shed by Marylanders in the streets of Baltimore, 19th April, 1861, the last and precious one too, was shed by a Maryland Cavalry soldier at Appomattox, C. H., April 9th, 1865, while negotiations were being made for the surrender of the noblest army that ever faced an enemy since wars were known, or bugles sounded.

Sons of Kent were in other Confederate commands we recall, that, dashing young hero killed at the First Manassas or Bull Run, James Alfred Kennard; Jas. Price, serving in the Western Army; Lieut. Macall Medford Rasin, of Huger's Artillery Command, who carried the order from Gen. Pendleton, Lee's Chief of Artillery to Gen. Pickett, to make ready for the splendid charge at Gettysburg. Lieut. Rasin surrendered with Lee's Army at Appomattox. There are others whose names I can not now recall.

We rejoice to know the people of Kent contemplate erecting a monument to the memory of Gen. Reed, the hero of Caulk's field; it is right and proper, too long forgotten, near 100 years; may we hope ere another 100 has passed our people may in your beautiful city erect a shaft thereon the names of her sons, who fell in defense of a cause, as just and right, as that our ancestors fought for at Caulk's Field; earlier at Guilford Court House, or that cause the Boers are now figl ting for; Ireland has long contended for—the cause of justice, right homes and firesides.

"Maryland."

A Terrific Explosion.

J. Roderick Robertson, a wealthy British Columbia mine owner, was killed in his hotel room by an explosion of dynamite in a New York tunnel.

Six persons were killed and more than 100 injured. The Murray Hill Hotel was wrecked, and the Grand Union railroad station, the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital, the Grand Union Hotel and many other buildings were seriously damaged.

All the windows for many blocks were shattered.

The clocks in the Union Depot were blown from their cases and all the windows in the building shattered.

The property damage is estimated at over $1,000,000.

Officials are investigating the cause of the explosion, which is not yet explained, and three of the workmen in charge of the tunnel excavation at this point have been arrested on the charge of homicide.

College Baseball.—Managers Hitch and Taylor, of the Washington College baseball team are arranging for a vigorous campaign. Dedicated to Wm. H. Price.

BY A PERSONAL FRIEND.

A chicken monger known as Price,
He bought a horse and thought him nice
And when the plug first showed his gait,
He found he'd purchased an old skate.

This horse you'd think had been to school,
He ciphered on as by a rule
And when you drive him its oh, what fun,
It's put down three and carry one.

A short time since this Price went down
To drive this skate in Millington,
The way this nag did fret and pull
You'd say the driver must be full.
