FARMERS! FARMERS!

Now is the time to look to your own interest and now is the time to use LIME on your Land.

DANIEL HILL and SON, are prepared to furnish you the Best Magnesia Lime on this market. It is known as the old Rambo Schuylkill Lime. It has been in use for the last 50 years, in this and other counties and has made land grow grass where there never was any. Will guarantee to kill sheep sorel or any other obnoxious weed or briers. It will sweeten the land and raise Wheat or Corn with any fertilizer. There is no other fertilizer on the market to equal it but barn yard manure.

This lime is now known as the McCOY LIME CO., formerly by Mr. Wm. Rambo and Nathan, his father, of the Schuylkill Valley, of Montgomery county, Pa.

This lime runs 45 per cent. Magnesia and is what the land wants. Any and all good old Kent farmers can tell you it is what is wanted on this or any other land.

☞ We can deliver this lime by R. R. at any station. We would be pleased for you to call or write before placing your orders.

GROUND QUICK LIME.

Delivered by rail or boat on reasonable notice. The lime you drill in your land the same as fertilizer and is getting to be very popular because of the way in which it can be used and the good results.

SPLENDOR AT WEDDING.

Bride's Father Gives Her A Fifth Avenue Mansion—Honeymoon To Be Spent At Biltmore.

LENOX, MASS., July 8.—In the midst of a floral garden and surrounded by wealth and beauty such as Lenox never saw before, Miss Lila Vanderbilt Sloane, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sloane and granddaughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt, became the bride of William Bradhurst Osgood Field to-day. Both bride and groom belong to the ultra-fashionable set of New York society.

The church was wreathed and garlanded in American Beauty and white roses, peonies, laurel, maidenhair fern and palms. About the altar were long-stemmed white roses, while a cluster of roses was attached to the end of each pew. Along the center aisle attached to the pews were strips of wide satin ribbon and over the aisle were erected two floral arches. Nearly 5,000 roses came up from New York in the morning, and the rest of the flowers were taken from Mr. Sloane's Lenox conservatories.

Paris Gown For Bride.

The bride's gown was made in Paris. It was of the richest satin. The bodice and yoke were of point lace and the veil of lace completely covered the gown. It was caught up to the coiffure with a single jeweled pin. The bouquet was of gardenia and Bride roses.

The gown of the eight maids were all alike. They were of silk muslin over yellow taffeta, the muslin having a satin dot. The dresses were trimmed with real Valenciennes lace and airy ruffles of yellow chiffon. The maids wore pale blue silk sashes with long fringed ends. Their hats were of pale blue chiffon, trimmed with soft bows of blue silk. Each carried a light blue chiffon parasol, the handle of which was inlaid with jewels. The parasols were the bride's gifts to her maids.

The ushers wore frock coats and trousers of gray cloth, the lapels being of black satin. Double-breasted white pique vests and patent-leather shoes with white gaiters completed their attire.

A Fortune In Presents.

The wedding gifts, which were unrivaled in splendor for Lenox, were displayed in four rooms. Their value is estimated by some as high as $1,000,000.

The gifts included valuable diamonds, ropes of pearls and gold plate. Mr. Sloane's gift to his daughter is a home on upper Fifth avenue, New York, and a building site for a summer home on Highlawn, the farm adjoining his estate here.

In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Field drove over to Pittsfield on a buckboard behind the bride's own road hackneys. They took the afternoon train for New York. The couple are to spend their honeymoon on George W. Vanderbilt's Biltmore estate, in North Carolina, following a custom established by the bride's sisters. Late in August they will go abroad for a year's travel on the Continent.

IS THIS A "NEW WOMAN?"

The New York Times has received a letter from a lady who says, among other things:

When I think of many sad women who worry and wait all hours of the night to see their inebriated sons or husbands stagger in, getting curses and all sorts of abuse hurled at them for simply devoting themselves to those poor creatures, making the rest of their night as comfortable as possible for them, I pat myself, and it is then single blessedness comes to the fore. I thank God for what He has given me—money enough and the blessed privilege of being my own boss. Nothing more trying than my little yellow dog; no worry about a clean dress for her; no music lessons, no school days to worry through, no little tantrums, no piercing shrieks or screams when things go wrong, and best of all, no back talk. The people who have never had the companionship of a dog, be it mongrel or blooded, have lost half of their lives.

Even more fortunate than this lady who pats herself, is the man who escapes having for his wife a woman who prefers the care of a dog to the care of her child; who prefers the companionship and kisses of a lap-dog to the laughter and prattle of children, their love and their caresses.

What sort of men has this woman been associating with, that she draws such a picture of the husband and son? Some husbands and some sons do come home reeling drunk upon occasions. And some women occasionally do those things which they ought not to do and leave undone things they ought to do. But it would be most false to undertake to lay this down as a general rule. What woman did this woman ever hear of who does not do the bossing and all the back talk? And as a rule, the bigger the husband and the smaller the wife, the more completely does she boss him. The most striking feature of the letter to our contemporary is the complete and accurate picture it draws of a perfectly selfish and useless life. No human being is any better because she has lived, and she will die and not be regretted. It may be said that such a life is harmless. But to sustain that harmless life numbers of inoffensive creatures are slaughtered. Is it right that oxen, sheep, lambs, fish and fowls should be deprived of their lives in order to sustain a life that is more worthless than the lives of any of the animals she consumes? Dogs are often very valuable for their good qualities in the field and forest, and as watch dogs. And, like many good women, they are also the friends of man.—Sun.
