Capt. [illegible] Announces His Candidacy For Legislature—Xmas Entertainments—Other Notes.

Oh horrors! Such weather in the midst of the most joyous period of the year is shocking. "The weather man" could scarcely give us anything more disagreable, rain, sleet, snow and icy traveling, never the less it is scarcely, probable that Christmas was ever more joyous than the present one. Good cheer (not the jug proceeding kind) the real thing, splendid feasting and general happiness prevailed in the thought of doing good to others. Merchants report more prosperity than Xmas of 1903. As a rule shoppers took time by the fore look and did their shopping early in the week preceeding Christmas, hence Saturday's rain storm was not so much of an interference.

Because of icy travel, Church services were slimly attended. All who attended the M. E. Service received a treat never excelled on any previous Christmas. Rev. Mr. Burr, had prepared to deliver a regular Christmas sermon, but the attendance being minus the young people to whom the sermon was more practically applicable, Mr. Burr changed his plan and preached a sermon on Gratitude, from the text 2 Cor, 9: 15, which undoubtedly, proved a Godsend to the half hundred worshippers present, it was delivered with fervor and force and happily appreciated, latent memories of bye gone years, were aroused and together with the force of the fact that unto us the "unspeakable gift" had been bestowed, a general buckeling on of the armor and a brightening up of the accoutrements of the Christian warfare resulted. Sunday school service in the afternoon was attended by about 100 members. Besides the lesson study and routine work, the superintendent was presented with a velvet house coat by the School. Miss Edna Durding in a neat speech, in behalf of the school did the presentation act, and Mr. Burr made a happy reply. The superintendent awarded the prize for the best kept class book for the year to Miss Mabel Webb. He also gave presents to the other Teachers, for improved efficiency.

Monday was the day of racket, and general jollification. Never was a greater display of fire works in this section, and never were there less in-ebriation seen on our streets.

On Wednesday evening the Sunday School entertainment and treat took place in the Church, in the presence of happy childhood, joyous and maidenhood, and aged, a large tree beautifully adorned stood on the left of the church while profuse evergreen wreathes and mottos decorated the walls. 450 packages of confectionary and were distributed to the members and delighted the large audience. The program for the occasion was appropriate and splendidly rendered. Great credit is eminently due the several committees having the make up and management of the affair as well as participants in rendering the program. The program was as follows.

The Odd Fellows entertainment announced to take place on Wednesday evening was postponed to next Wednesday evening on account of the Sunday School entertainment being postponed from Tuesday to Wednesday evening.

Misses Essie Smith, Lillian Smith, Olive Mariner and Messrs. Eddie Smith and John George were entertained by the Misses Ryan on Monday evening.

Mr. John Hickey, who is just recovering from a long illness of typhoid fever was bountifully remembered on Monday evening by young men of this place.

It is rumored that this place will suffer a slackness of steam boat service during the winter, if so, whose fault will it be? The service rendered has been highly efficient, yet our people are prone to patronize any and all comers, whither they are capable of over coming the usual winter obstacles or not.

We extend you the best wishes Messrs. Editors for a happy and prosperous New Year. May the KENT NEWS, the best paper on the shore, have its subscription list doubled.

A traveler on a horse back in the style of the Methodist preacher of "ye olden" times, with well stocked saddle bags, would be a novel sight in this advance age of easy going conveyance, yet such a sight is daily seen in this section, in the person of one of our village physicians, Dr. Beale. There need be no alarm on one's part when sick that a doctor can not reach them.

An effort is now being made to secure a bell for the M. E. Church here.

The old Fifth District in the person of Capt. C. R. Kerr, has a candidate for Legislative honors. He publicly announced himself on Tuesday evening.

VIGILANCE

Fairlee, Md., Dec. 26, 1904.

Messrs. Editors: I was surprised to read in the News of Saturday about the arrest and fine of one of our hard working fishermen. If the informer, whom we understand to be one of our farmers, would look after a few of the peach cider cases he would benefit his fellow-citizens and do his community a service. He knows all about them—even more than about the fox hides. HUNTER.
