THIS MULE IS THE BIGGEST EVER.

Animal Exhibited At World's Fair Bought By Vare Brothers.

For an hour Broad St. Phila., was all but blocked by a crowd of several hundred men that had gathered about a mule that stood in front of the Betz Building, placidly gazing over the heads of the throng.

The mule, which has just been purchased by the Vare Brothers, is believed to be the largest animal of its kind in the world.

It was born in Missouri seven years ago, weighs 1,900 pounds and stands 19 hands, or 7 feet 11 inches high, and has been on exhibition at the World's Fair in St Louis.

It was there that Senator George Vare first saw the animal, and it did not take the Senator long to decide that Folk, as the mule is called in honor of the Governor-elect of Missouri was just what he wanted for work on the South Philadelphia Boulevard.

Folk had won blue ribbons at the Fair for size, weight, strength, and general conformation, and came high, but Senator Vare had made up his mind to have him and the purchase was made.

Yesterday the mule reached here, and about noon to-day it was driven up Broad street as far as the Betz Building, where it was admired by hundreds of Senator Vare's friends and acquaintances.

The mule is so large it cannot get between the shafts of any ordinary vehicle, so it will be used as a "lead" for the horses that are working on the boulevard.

MISS CLARA CONWAY.

After a short life of twenty-eight years full of suffering for at least twenty-six years, Clara, daughter of Rev. Geo. Conway, pastor of M. E. church, Piney Neck, left us for her home in glory on Sunday morning, November 13th, 1904. There beholding her Saviour face to face, she has forgotten the suffering of this present world, and is happy, free from all suffering in her Father's home.

During the last days of her young life, she pleaded with friends and loved ones not to grieve for her, stating that she would be happy in her home above. She rested so sweetly in the arms of her Heavenly friend that when the end came she passed away calmly and peacefully. Her life was an inspiration to all who knew her and those whom she left behind will be inspired to live better lives. What better tribute could we give her. Is not this one of chief aims of the ideal life to help others to be better. Her life was one of unselfishness, always thinking of others happiness, self was the last consideration.

In spite of intense suffering, she always had a word of cheer, of comfort, of help to those around. Her mother and father's happiness was always the first thought. The last four days were spent in makirg a tribute for a loved one. It is these shut-in lives that tell more of the true life than words can.

We cannot understand why such a young life should be so full of suffering, but "sometime we'll understand." We only know that, her life was the means of bringing others in closer touch with the Saviour. Our hearts go out in love and sympathy to those bereaved parents to whom she was all in all, but we are comforted to know that they know that only comforter and are leaning on Him. In this hour of trial may they get in closer communion and fellowship with Him.

Clara loved the singing of those sacred hymns and according to her request, music was a principal feature at the funeral service. Her love for music and flowers was just an echo of that heart's love.

Rev. Mr. Parris, of the M. P. Church and Rev. Mr. Halbert, of Fairlee M. E. Church officiated at the home service. Many comforting thoughts were given by these brethren. The remains were taken to Smyrna, Delaware, where friends met them. Rev. Mr. Koontz, presiding elder of the district, Dr. Watt, of Smyrna, and Rev. Mr. Chandler, held a short service at the grave.

Duck Shooters' Big Haryest.—The ducking season on the Susquehanna flats is now at its height, and the gunners thus far have had the best season for several years. The number of ducks killed can be counted by the thousands. The first day of the season, it is estimated that 7,000 ducks were bagged. The number of licenses issued is also far in excess of last year. At the Clerks office in Elkton 79 licenses for sneak-boats, at $5 50 each and 12 licenses for sink boxes at $20.50 each have been granted.

The largest bags in a single day thus far have been as follows: Captain Jesse Poplar, Havre de Grace, 260 ducks; Oakington Club, 156; Capt. Frank Simpers, 107; Capt. L. A. Hamilton, 86; Frank Boyd, 48. There have been a number of other boats that have bagged from 10 to 50 ducks in a day since last Wednesday.

Dealers say the late spring of the current year was unfavorable for a heavy production of turkeys while the wet weather that came later caused many birds to die shortly after hatching. The Maryland, Virginia and Tennesee crop, from which States Baltimore receives nearly all of its supply, is said to be about equal to that of last year, though the fowls are late in fattening and will not be as large or in as good condition. Corn and other grain is higher in price, and the raisers of turkeys will not feed them as freely or as long; hence they will come into the market in poorer condition. Unlike in other seasons, little frozen stock was carried over from last year, and the demand will have to be entirely met from this year's hatchings. As the prevailing prices during the fall of 1903 were so attractive and profitable, the farmers sacrificed their stock and materially reduced their chances for breeding. With this condition there is danger of the selling prices being forced so high that the consumption will be greatly lessened. Stevens Bros., who are among the largest turkey dealers in Baltimore, say the prospects are that there will be as good, if not a better, market than last year, as they look for higher prices Live turkeys sold wholesale last fall as high as 16 to 18 cents a pound, while picked stock brought 20 and 22 cents a pound. The retail price is irregular and regulated more by the supply and demand, but usually ranges from 3 to 5 cents a pound higher than the wholesale prices.
