In Close Quarters.—A prominent merchant of Chestertown was in Baltimore last week and happened to stop for supper at Schneider's Cafe when this exciting incident occured:

"Thomas N. Connaway, of Berlin, traced his former sweetheart, Mollie Apple, to Schneider's German Cafe, 117-121 West Fayette street, Baltimore, last Thursday evening, and shot and seriously wounded her. Having fired four shots at her, one of which took effect in the muscles of the chest, he then entered the bar and attempted to end his own life. This shot like three of those he had fired at the woman, went wild, though the man imagined he had shot himself, and, when the police found him, he lay on the floor with the empty revolver beside him." The guests held tables, plates, chairs, &c., before them in order to shield their bodies from the shots! The Chestertown man said he didn't like such wild shooting and felt scared.

WEDNESDAYS are bargain days at Wm. Medders & Co.'s Big Still Pond Store. Next Wednesday Mason's glass quart jars will be sold at 9 cents for one-half dozen.

WHEAT DRIED AND CLEANED.

Kent County Farmers Will Welcome the New Device — Wonderful Change Wrought in Wet Wheat.

Some weeks ago the wheat committee of the Chamber of Commerce Baltimore sent to the Agricultural Department at Washington a sample of damp and garlicky Southern wheat. The wheat was in especially bad condition and was what the trade call "rejected" and would sell only on its merits. The quality was so very poor that it was doubted whether the elevators would have received it into their bins. The purpose in sending it to Washington was to see whether or not there was any way by which the wheat could be improved to make it more marketable.

Tuesday a portion of the sample was returned. It was dry, clean, plump and altogether desirable; so much so that Chief Inspector McDonald said he would have no hesitancy in grading the sample as No. 2 red, which is the highest quality of wheat known in this market. Accompanying the sample from the Agricultural Department was a lot of foreign matter which had been taken from the wheat. This included garlic, cockle and other weeds and substances which infest wheat fields, especially in portions of Maryland and the South. As "rejected" wheat the same sent to Washington would have brought in this market yesterday about 70 cents a bushel, but after its Washington treatment it would readily have commanded 87½ cents a bushel—a difference of 17½ cents. What was lost in weight by drying is not yet known, as the department has not yet sent a full report of its treatment of the sample. Experienced grain men say that the loss could have in no way been equal to the 17½ cents gain in price.

It is understood that the Washington officials ran the sample through a commercial dryer and separator. There are said to be several of these on the market, but the one in use in the Department of Agriculture is regarded perhaps as the most satisfactory. The local grain merchants have for some time past been advocating the use of such a machine in connection with the grain elevators, but so far without success. Much of the nearby wheat received in this market, it is said, is in the condition of the sample which has just been treated. It usually contains more or less of outside substances and is generally more or less damp. If these defects can be remedied, it is said, the wheat will compare favorably with that from other sections and will be more easily marketed. The question of placing dryers and separaters here will probably again be taken up, as all the members of the Chamber of Commerce who saw the treated sample were much impressed with the improvement in the quality and appearance of the wheat.

Matilda Higgins, wife of Brother James Higgins, died at their home in Skinner's Neck June 19th aged 45 years, 11 months 19 days. Sister Higgins had been a member of Piney Neck Church for the last 20 years. She was a quiet sweet spirited and exemplary christian, a regular attender of church including all the means of grace, and identified herself in the general interests of the church. In our revival of last winter, though in failing health, she was present at nearly every service and was among the first to come at Pastor's suggestion to the altar either for altar service or to help or encourage penitents. Paralized and unconscious as she was during the last several days of her sickness, she passed away without a dying testimony but her living testimony as all who know her now, still lives. With husband she leaves two sons to mourn for her.
