Baby Found.—Kate Walker's fifteen year-old son discovered a white infant in a shoe box on Chester river bridge Tuesday morning. The box was tied with a cord and a brick attached and was on an abutment on the Queen Anne's side of the draw, way above the reach of the tide. Coroner Greenwood summoned a jury of inquest, which, after a thorough investigation, found no clues as to the guilty party.

Rain and Crops.—The heavy rains of the past two weeks have greatly retarded all farm work. Wheat harvest will be on in a week and corn not worked nor tomatoes looked after. One farmer near town sent for corn to replant 50 acres this week. Dr. Groves has sold 62,000 tomato plants this month.

Peaches are not far enough advanced to be injuriously affected by the continuous rain. While the heavy rains have had a tendency to thin the fruit on the trees considerably by heating off the weaker or smaller growth, this has been rather an advantage than a disadvanage for it makes room for a better growth of what remains, and many of the trees are now overburdened and the limbs are already breaking under the weight of the fruit and foliage.

THE indications are for clear weather now that the commencement is over.

THE infant son of W. T. H. Whiteley and wife died Saturday. Funeral was held Sunday, Dr. Little officiating, J. E. Ferguson, undertaker.
