The West.—We have already noticed statement made, that Mr. Plumer, a ember of Congress from Pennsylvania, d only about 60 years of age, was be ved to be the oldest person living that s born West of the Allegany moun ns. We have since received a let from a very respectable gentleman, ted in Kentucky, the 15th ult. from ich we derive the following curious ts. The informant in the winter of 84—5, was at Clarkesville, on the rth bank of the Ohio river, at the low end of the Falls, and fired a salute in nor of the first white child born, whose ther was an American, within the dis ct of country that now (1825, only 40 ars) contains a million of persons.— ere were previous to this, some French tlers on the Wabash and at Kaskas , who had been subjected to the Uni d States by Gen. Clarke; and there y have been children born among em previous to the one now alluded to o was the daughter of the wife of a sol r named Vaughan, a sergeant in Gen arke's corps. The swivel with which e salute was fired, was as well for de ce against the Indians as to alarm the t at Louisville; and when it was fired, ptain Thomas and Lieut. Wm. Clarke ried down and hailed to know the se of their firing. It was a dark zzling night, and when they heard the son of 1., Captain Thomas said that would not have cared for the disturb nce had the child been a boy; but the ty from Louisville returned to their gings in a good humor. We have efly used the words of our correspon t, and he adds, that the facts may be ied on.—Niles

Pensacola.—A number of the Pensaco Gazette informs the public that there no a tanner, a tinner, a hatter, a ch maker, or a cooper, all of whom wanted. It is likewise stated that a nary farmer, with moderate means, ght raise, with little difficulty, cattle hogs. The country from the Apala ola to the Sewaney river, contains miles of sea coast excellent for war The new settler builds a cabin by side of a spring, corn yields a crop of bushels to the acre, rice 40 to 60— eet and Irish potatoes, melons, peas peaches, of an excellent quality rish in this soil.

Melancholy.—A young man by the e of Dart, in the state of New York, been paying his addresses to a young y in his neighborhood, and the 29th was fixed upon for their wedding. paid a visit to her the previous Sun evening, apparently in the full en ment of health, with the prospect of g life, and in the pleasing anticipation he approaching period, which would ance his earthly happiness by a union h the object of his affections. As he se to depart, he turned around as if wish her a good night, and dropped vn dead. Thus has an anticipated asion of joy and gladness, been made eason of mourning, and she that was have been attired as the happy bride ow clothed in the sable vestment ch b speaks but faintly the anguish er heart.

Mr. Owen, since his return to Britain, published one of his American Lec s in the Glasgow Chronicle. He ies that the people of the United tes enjoy real liberty: and reverence Chistianity he calls "the despotism of k minds." This sort of cant is much er than Mr. Owen.

A free negro man was lately sold in ginia, under a recent law of the le ature, as a slave during life, for a vi tion of some law. He, however, es ped from his purchaser—but was re hended in Georgetown, in Columbia trict, and brought before the mayor— en the negro, by counsel, plead the constitutionality of the act, and ad ced proof that he was free born.—The yor thereupon refused to surrender n up to the purchaser. Here the ma rests—and will probably be a que for the Supreme Court to settle.

Desha.—One of the counsel of Desha has addressed a note to the editor of the Kentucky Gazette, and states the grounds on which the Court granted a new trial; they were the following:—

First, that the county in which the murder had been committed was not proved,—Secondly that one of the jurymen had been seen speaking during the time of his retirement to a well known political enemy of the Governor. These grounds (continues he) were admitted to be just cause for a new trial, by the attorney for the commonwealth—not only to myself, but also to Messrs. Crawford and Taul, counsel in the case.

A predicament.—The constitution of Maryland has in due form changed, so as to provide that the legislature shall meet in future on the last instead of the 1st Monday in December, and the Governor and Council are in future to be elected in January instead of December. The present Governor and Council have been elected under the old form, and their time of service expires on the second Monday of next December. What is to be done for an executive of the state between the period of the termination of their service, and the election of a new Governor and Council in January?

Newspaper Borrowers.—We have received hundreds of complaints from our subscribers, respecting their troublesome neighbors; but have never been able to hit upon a plan to remove the cause of the evil—which is nothing more nor less in nine cases out of ten, than the sin of covetousness. There are thousands of persons possessed of houses and lands and much goods, who are so poor in spirit, that they depend on their neighbors, who are in moderate circumstances, to furnish them with the newspapers. We have even had some of our subscribers to discontinue their papers for a time, because they could not obtain them until a dozen neighbors had read them; and in many cases the subscriber suffered a total loss. A subscriber who has been much harrassed and vexed by newspaper borrowers, has sent us the following note, which shows that he is disposed to afford his neighbors still greater accommodations.

Please send me until further orders, six papers weekly, so that I may be able to serve five of my rich neighbors at once and have one paper for myself and family.
A Friend to the Printer.

"The Mechanics' Press.—We have received the 4th number of the snug little paper, called 'The Mechanics' Press,' published weekly, by Robert Geddes, of Baltimore, at three dollars per annum. Its main object is expressed in its title, which is well followed up in a well assorted miscellany, peculiarly adapted to that class of readers where it is intended to be useful. The mechanics of Baltimore form a numerous and respectable body, quite sufficient on the spot where this work is issued, to give it a handsome support, which we sincerely hope it may receive. It would be to the interest of every working man not only to receive it on his own fire-side, but to encourage its circulation among his friends and acquaintances."—Wash. Gaz.

American Farmer.—The editor, at this season, devoted to Agricultural concerns, recommends to practical farmers who read our paper, the excellent agricultural paper, called the American Farmer, and edited by J. S. Skinner, Esq. of Baltimore, a work, to which we have in common with most other editors, been much indebted for articles adapted to the agricultural department. The editor has a few complete sets now on hand for sale, and is weekly issuing numbers, replete with valuable information to those who follow agricultural pursuits. We can add by way of strong recommendation, that before General Lafayette left the country, it is stated that he furnished himself with a complete set of this valuable work.

Phenomenon.—The uncommon smoky appearance of our own atmosphere a few days since, excited much curiosity—The same phenomenon is noticed in a Boston paper, which states was from its strong smell, thought to have proceeded from the fires which have made such awful depredations along the woods that skirt our northern frontier. The editor remarks one property in this phenomenon worthy of being recorded. He says that the rays of the sun were obstructed during the day by the density of this vapor, and that the rays of light from the same cause, cast a sickly yellowish hue upon surrounding objects, changing even the appearance of the human face.

A fair offer—Some of the newspapers eastward have adopted an old fashioned practice of charging 25 cents for publishing marriages! Now this is too barbarous; it smacks of the dark ages; it is literally throwing obstacles in the way of public matrimony, and encourages clandestine marriages. Instead of charging for inserting the names of those who "exchange their solemn vows at the holy shrine of hymen," we now declare, that for every "MARRIAGE," occurring within the circulation of this paper, properly authenticated to us, we will insert the names of the happy pair in SMALL CAPITALS, under some beautiful lines of Poetry; such as,

Come, Maidens, all rejoice with me,
Not for my loss of liberty;
But for the joys of that sweet hour
Which bound my heart with wedlock's power.

—and we will give the paper into the bargain.—Black Rock Gaz.

A Fortune to be made.

NOW IS YOUR TIME.

The subscriber having determined to relinquish business, offers to rent for the ensuing year, that elegant establishment, for a long time occupied by him as a Tavern. The establishment is and has been uniformly the Steam-Boat-way-house. It commands a large share of the local business; its situation is central and pleasant, and the houses are in good repair, To a good tenant the terms will be moderate, and he will sell all the furniture, horses, gigs and carriages, together with the fixtures of the bar, and every article necessary to commence business immediately. To those who are acquainted with the stand, it is unnecessary to say any thing in its favor; but the subscriber will add, that the tavern now offered for rent is situated in the most central part of the town of Cambridge—has had for many years an extensive run of business, and been considered the Steam Boat Hotel. The regular Stages arrive at and depart from his house, and he can safely insure to any person calculated for the business, not only a handsome support, but in the course of a short time, a snug fortune. WM. C. RIDGAWAY.

N. B. Attached to the above establishment is an elegant BILLIARD ROOM, supplied with a first rate table—The board of the gentleman by whom it is rented, is equivalent to a large portion of the rent.

Anti-dyspeptic Elixir.

☞ One of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach and chylopoetic viscera, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

No complaints are more common than the various modifications of this disease on the stomach, the functions of which are so very important to health, that the least derangement is attended with disagreeable consequences to the whole system. Perhaps there is none in the whole catalogue to which this viscus is liable, more afflicting, and less under the influence of medicine, than dyspepsia, or indigestion, the cure of which has hitherto eluded the skill of the faculty, and baffled the power of all ordinary remedies. A careful attention to diet has in many cases given some relief, but this abstemious regimen has been, to many, as great a source of vexation as the disease itself; for, when the palate craves, and the stomach is willing to receive, to deny one's self the chief luxury of life is no ordinary task.

The symptoms that characterize dyspepsia, or indigestion, are various in different constitutions, but for the most part, loss of appetite, nausea, sickness at the stomach, a discharge of water in the morning from the mouth, sometimes tasteless, but generally sour, heart-burn, pain in the pit of the stomach, loss of the peristalic motion in the intestines, costiveness, palpitation of the heart, paleness of the countenance, vertigo of the head, flatulency, with roaring of wind in the bowels, and a long train of nervous affections too tedious to enumerate.—Under all these various symptoms the stomach is the primary seat of disease, a constant morbid secretion of matter producing acid and wind, owing to the debilitated state of this organ, causes some of the most disagreeable sensations we are acquainted with; the alkalies, magnesia, and ordinary medicines, do but little more than palliate the severity of the disease.

Being duly impressed with a sense of duty that every one owes to society, the proprietor has at length come to a conclusion, from his knowledge of the many cures performed by this valuable medicine, to adopt a mode of circulation better calculated to insure its usefulness in a more extensive way than it could possibly attain were it confined to the practice of a few individuals; at the same time, he is well aware of the powerful objection that unfortunately exists to this mode of introduction, inasmuch as knavish, ignorant pretenders, in many instances, have imposed on the credulity of the afflicted, with little or no benefit to them.

A number of certificates might be obtained, but they are so easy procured, with so little regard to truth, that they can have no weight with a discerning public.

Therefore, the proprietor is confident that a simple trial of this ELIXIR will establish its character in the cure of dyspepsia, over all other remedies in use at the present day.

On its own virtues it must stand or fall.

The basis of the Elixir is vegetable, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour taste of the stomach the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristalic motion of the intestines is increased, and costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixir is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state.

⁂ A supply of the above medicine has just been received, and will be kept constantly for sale at the Chronicle Office.
