The editor of the Boston Centinel adds the following remarks to the letter from Paris, published a few days since, respecting the frequent calls that were made on Gen. Lafayette by American citizens for pecuniary relief. Is it possible that men can be so destitute of every virtuous principle as to extort money by such base means.

'The letter-writer ought to have ascertained and published the names of these leeches, as a mean to prevent the repetition of the plunder. We can add, as a fact, that previous to the General's departure from the United States he was almost constantly assailed by mendicants who contrived to obtain private interviews with him at Washington, and by the rectial of old revolutionary tales, interlarded with accounts of perils encountered, and their present distresses, many of which were fictions, would so work upon his compassionate heart, that he would instantly empty his pockets of their contents and bestow them on the beggars without counting; and we have the authority of a letter from a gentleman then high in office, for saying that these artifices were so frequently and successfully practised on the old General, that fears were actually entertained that he would return to France as moneyless as he came from it. It is time that a stop should be put to such nefarious practices on the benevolent heart of our country's friend.'

Better Still.—A writer in the "Connecticut Journal," under the signature of "Jonathan," gives an account of an amazing "great pumpkin vine" which some body in Saybrook should have shown him—and which covered no less than "ten entire rods of ground, and was still growing as fast as ever!" and to add to the value of the vine, he tells us that it had no less than fifty yellow pumpkins, besides small ones, (which we suppose were green,) many of which were large, and every one fit for a pie, even for the governor's own thanksgiving table—concluding his account by calling the said vegetable wonder, "a Missouri of a pumpkin vine," which we suppose means that it reaches from Missouri to Saybrook!—That this may be the case is very probable, as Col. Stone, who is the Editor of the New York Commercial Advertiser, says, he "heard of one that ran across the Connecticut river into the town of Lyme!"—N. Y. Journal.

In noticing the preceding statement, the Editor of the Huntingdon Advocate furnishes the following, which we think, may be fairly considered the 'cap sheaf:'

The above is a wonderful story, but sinks into insignificance when compared with one an old gentleman in Centre county used to tell us of a pumpkin vine he raised, which ran across a stream called Bald Eagle, but apparently bore no pumpkins; it was therefore considered of little value, but suffered to remain across the stream as a bridge for foot passengers. During the fall the old gentleman missed a very large breeding sow—she, however, returned in the course of a few weeks, but remained but a little time when she again disappeared; she returned the next day when the old gentlemen watched her movements until he say her go out on the pumpkin vine about half way across the stream and then plunge into the water and disappear under the vine. Upon examination he found that an enormous pumpkin grew under the vine in which the sow had eaten and used as a sty for herself and eleven of her offspring.

Yeast as a Manure.—It is not generally known that this is one of the most powerful manures in existence. From experiments tried with grass-plots and different culinniary vegetables, it appears that a very small quantity of yeast, after it has become putrid and useless to the brewer or baker, will effect wonders when mixed with water and applied to plants as liquid manure: the only danger seems to be in making it too rich. It is recommended to be tried on pines, vines, the Brassica family, especially cauliflowers, the potatoe, as a pickle for wheat and other seeds, and for watering new sown turnips and similar oleaginous seeds.

GREENFIELD, Nov. 14.

CAUTION.—Mr. Totman of Colerain, has for some years past, laboured under a severe complaint, which at times led him to believe that some living creature was in his stomach, which he made known to his friends and physician, who considered him rather hypochondical.—He still persisted in his belief, and would frequently express to his family and neighbors that he could sensibly feel the crawling of something, until a few days since, when he was attcked with severe pains, great difficulty for the want of breath which ended in coughing & throwing from his stomach, to appearance, a living Evet, five and a half inches in length, and something like three inches in circumference. His health now is improving, & he will no doubt be well in a short time. He thinks he must have drank it more than ten years since when drinking water at a spring in the night.

The new edition of "ELEGANT EXTRACTS," prepared by James G. Percival, has reached, we perceive, the 8th number To this work, originally compiled by Knox, and always a very popular collection, the present editor has made copious additions, and from American authors, which increase, we hope, not only its interest, but its intrinsic value. The paper, typography, and general execution are good.

THE CHRONICLE,

AND EASTERN SHORE ADVERTISER.

Cambridge, SATURDAY, Dec. 2, 1826.

Printed and Published by
LUTHER MARTIN SCOTT,
N. E. corner of High and Poplar streets.

IMPORTANT.—The Philadelphia Gazette of Saturday says, "it is not generally understood that the British vessels which may enter the ports of the United States, after the first of December next, from any of the ports included in the late Order of Council, will be liable to be CONFISCATED. The act of May 6th, 1822, gave authority to the President, to open our ports for British vessels from the colonies, on principles of reciprocity, but the 6th section of the act of March 1st, 1823, says, "that if, at any time, the intercourse between the United States and any of the above enumerated British Colonial ports, should be prohibited by a British order in Council, from the time the same shall commence to be in force," the act of March 1st 1823 shall cease to operate in their favour, and the act of April 18th, 1818, shall revive and be in full force. The act of April 18th 1818, which is thus virtually revived by the late British Order in Council, is very positive, declaring "that the ports of the United States shall be and remain closed against every vessel owned wholly or in part by subjects of His Brittanic Majesty, coming from any port or place in a colony or territory of His Britannic Majesty that is or shall be, by the ordinary laws of navigation, closed against vessels owned by citizens of the United States." And furthermore, that every such British vessel entering one of our ports, shall, with her tackle, cargo, &c. be forfeited to the United States.

We learn by the Philadelphia Aurora, that Mr. Sergeant, the Minister; Mr. Rochester, the Secretary of Legation; and Mr. Reed, Private Secretary, embarked on board the United States Ship Hornet, Capt. Claxton, on Wednesday, and proceeded to Vera Cruz, whence they will join the congress of American deputies at Tacubay.

Kentucky.—The election of a representative to Congress to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Col. James Johnson, has terminated in favor of Gen McHatton, the Jackson candidate.

A Public dinner was given, at Portsmouth, N. H. on Tuesday week, to Capt. Charles G. Ridgely, of the Navy, late commander of that station, on the occasion of his leaving it to go, as is supposed, on foreign service.

There are upwards of 80 lines of stages that arrive and depart from Boston. They average 1200 departures and arrivals in one week in that city.

Passengers in the Norfolk steam boat, arrived in Philadelphia in forty-seven hours from Richmond, Va. Letters are nearly four days in coming from that city

The Vermont Republican states that the Legislature passed a law, before its adjournment, allowing fifteen dollars for publishing all the public acts of each session. The editor is of opinion that few, if any of the printers of the state, will publish the laws on such terms. [Who would.]

Great Sport.—Two gentlemen, of the City of Baltimore, members of Carroll's Island Club, shot, during Wednesday last, one hundred and four canvass-back ducks. These were all shot on the wing.

The Maryland Advocate, in reply to a question put by a correspondent, says that Mr. Sprigg, the newly elected representative of that district, in Congress, was, at the Presidential election, the decided friend of Mr. CLAY, and that he will not be opposed to the present Administration.

Mr. Gallatin.—By late information from France, we understand that it is reported that Mr. Gallatin is about returning to this country, and giving up his place at the Court of St. James.

[New York Statesman.

From the Louisville Public Advertiser

The Frankfort Commentator, of the 4th ult. contains the following article:—

"Singular Presentment.—A grand jury at Nashville, Tenn. has presented Gen. Houston, of that place, for having lately fought a duel, within the limits of this state, with Gen. White who was severely wounded—not as having been guilty of a violation of the laws of God and man, but as having performed a manly act, quite necessary and altogether proper for a gentleman, and which ought to have no unfavorable effect upon his election to the office of Governor of Tennessee!! It is to be hoped the grand jury of Warren county, where the offence was committed, will take a different view of the matter."

—::o::—

We learn from the Philadelphia papers that on Monday, Mr. Sergeant, Minister to the Congress of Tacubaya, paid a visit to the U States sloop of war Hornet, lying in the Delaware. He was received with a salute of thirteen guns.—Mr. Sergeant will sail for Mexico, in the Hornet, on Saturday or Sunday next.—On Saturday last, the Philadelphia Bar gave that gentleman, at the Masonic Hall, a farewell dinner, which was marked by the utmost cordiality and decorum. The number of the company was from sixty to seventy; and the repast sumptuous. William Rawle, Esq. presided, Joseph Hopkins, William Meredith and Horace Binney, Esqs. acted as vice presidents.

Marriage Extraordinary!!!

MARRIED—On Monday 13th ult. in Woodstock, Mr. Leonard Lonas, a doughty old gentleman who has weathered out 87 winters, to the buxom Miss Katy Muman, aged 42.—The snow-headed groom droppod a tear over the grave of his former wife but two weeks ago, and his dulcinea, Miss Katy, buried her father the evening before the wedding day. So waga the world; no accounting for tastes or fashions. Cupid is a sly God; no wonder he is always laughing.—Sentinel.

FRANCE.—The ship Cybele, Holmes arrived at Plymouth, Mass. in 32 days from Bordeaux. Our correspondent with the N. York Mercantile, acknowledge the receipt of a letter dated at Bordeaux on the 18th of October which says:—

"On leaving Paris a few days since, I understood from respectable authority, that a communication had been forwarded by the French Government to the U. States, on the subject of American claims which was decidedly unfavorable.

PORTUGAL.—Capt. Low, arrived at Boston, from St. Ubes, reports that he was at Lisbon on the 15th October, at which time an insurrection against the Constitution had broken out in the Province of Algarva, and 3400 troops had marched from Lisbon to suppress it.

We cannot tell the precise moment when friendship is formed. As in filling a vessel drop by drop, there is at last a drop which makes it run over; so in a series of kindesses there is at last one which makes the heart run over.

FRANK STREET, BALTIMORE.

THE subscribers respectfully inform their friends and the public generally, that they have just opened a large and commodious establishment in Baltimore, Pratt st. between Hanover and Charles sts. near Calhoun's extensive tobacco ware-house, and within a short distance of the head of the Basin, where they feel satisfied their arrangements will enable them to offer every convenience and comfort that a traveller can wish, or a desire to merit the patronage of the public can possibly demand.

The peculiar situation of this establishment, its immediate vicinity to wharves and steamboat landings (the great depots of the business of all the lower and most of the upper counties,) make it exceedingly desirable as a residence for persons whose business may lie in those directions. The beds and bedding are new and inferior to none in the city.—Their tables shall always be supplied with the best provisions that the market can afford; their bar they trust may also be justly relied on, as the liquors have been selected by the best judges. Every attention will be paid to the personal convenience of those who may favor them with their custom, and attentive and honest servants will be always at hand to convey baggage, to and from the steamboats and stages. The stabling is calculated to secure the safety and comfort of any horses that may be entrusted to their care, and is under the superintendence of able and experienced hostlers. With these assurances they can but reiterate their wish to render themselves serviceable to the public, resting as they hope always to do, under the pleasing assurance that if they cannot command success, they will at least endeavor to deserve it. They also assure strangers from the country, who may favor them with their custom, that no pains will be spared in giving them directions to any part of the city, where they may have business.
