THE CHRONICLE.

CAMBRIDGE—MD.

SATURDAY MORNING April 19, 1845.

The Orphans' Court of Dorchester County will sit on the 28th instant.

V. B. PALMER,

No. 59 Pine st. Phila., and 160 Nassau st. (Tribune Buildings.) N. Y., and S. E. corner of Balt. and Calvert st., Baltimore, is our authorized Agent for receiving Advertisements and subscriptions to the "CAMBRIDGE CHRONICLE," and collecting and receipting for the same.

TREMENDOUS FIRE AT PITTSBURG.—On Thursday the 10th ult. the most terrible fire occurred in this city. Twenty squares were entirely consumed—from 1000 to 1200 houses were destroyed. The total loss of houses, furniture, merchandize, have been variously estimated, but it is generally supposed that it will exceed 12 millions of dollars. There is great reason for thankfulness, that amidst the great confusion and disorder there were but one or two lives lost. The Pittsburg Post of Friday morning gives the following distressing account of the scene.

"We can give an adequate idea of the distress which prevades our stricken community. The progress of the flames was so fearfully rapid that many persons had not time to remove their goods—others, again, had got their property into the street, when the flames seized it there, before it could be removed to a place of safety. Others, still, would not believe the devouring element could reach their dwellings, and did not think of moving until it was too late to save their furniture. And we saw many people who escaped with nothing but the apparel they had upon their persons. At dark, you might see, in every direction, families sitting without shelter, guarding such portions of their household furniture as they were able to save from the flames, and not knowing where they would lay their heads, or procure a morsel of food. Of course the kindness of their more fortunate fellow citizens did much to alleviate their sufferings, and we believe all were provided for as well as the melancholy nature of affairs would allow.

The councils met in the afternoon, and attempted to devise some means to stay the conflagration. It was proposed to blow up houses that seemed in the way of the flames; the deliberations, however, were ineffectual in results, and we believe but one or two buildings were blown up. It seems to us, indeed, that there could scarcely have been time to accomplish anything in the way of destroying houses, so terribly rapid was the progress of the flames."

THE STEAMER PRINCETON.—The U. S. steamer Princeton arrived off the Philadelphia Navy Yard on Tuesday afternoon, completing a run from Norfolk in the very short space of thirty-one hours only the run from Norfolk to the Capes was made in twenty two hours and from the Capes to Philadelphia, in a furious north-west wind, in nine hours.

Every man his own lawyer.—The Legislature of Michigan has lately had under consideration several petitions praying that the laws of the State may be so "simplified" as to come "within the knowledge of every person" and that every man may be admitted to the bar."

"The committee to whom it was referred, reported favorably, and "hailed, with undisguised delight such a harbinger of an approaching millenium."

FEMALE EDUCATION.

I perceive by an advertisement in the Baltimore American that Miss CARROLL has opened her Seminary for the instruction of young ladies in that city. To those who know Miss Carroll, and are familiar with her pre eminent qualifications as a teacher, it would be unnecessary to say one word in commendation of her peculiar fitness and ability for the duties of her vocation; but to those among whom she has recently established herself, it may not be amiss to offer some slight tribute to her transcendant worth as a lady, and to her superior qualifications as an instructress of females.—I undertake this task in no spirit of flattery to her, but am prompted solely by a desire to bring her merits before the notice of the citizens of Baltimore, that they may avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded them to place their daughters in an institution where every, the highest, care and attention will be bestowed upon their moral and mental improvement.

From early life Miss Carroll has devoted her untiring exertions to the instruction of young ladies. Possessing a solid, refined and liberal education, joined to a pleasing suavity of manners, great benevolence of heart, and a rare and happy facility of imparting instruction to her pupils, her labours as a teacher have been crowned with eminent success. There are numbers of young ladies in this and the adjoining counties, whose high moral and intellectual attainments form an enduring monument to Miss Carroll's ability and success as a teacher. Her mode of instruction is based upon philosophical principles, and, united with the patience and care and industry which she bestows upon her pupils, never fails to produce successful results.—But the teaching of mere book learning and external accomplishments does not form the sole aim of Miss Carroll's labours. To create and refine the taste, to inform and endow the judgment, to prune and cultivate the imagination, as well as to strengthen in just proportion every attribute of the intellect and the heart, are the direct purposes of education as understood by her.

It is a lamentable fact that female education has been greatly misunderstood and perverted in this country. The grand object has been to invest young ladies with those qualities and accomplishments which shine and dazzle, and win the precarious admiration of the vain and foolish many; while the cultivation of the affections, of conscientiousness and unselfishness has been almost wholly neglected. It is truly remarked by Aime Martin in his splendid work on the "Education of Mothers" that, "the education of women is more important than that of men, since that of men is always their work." The argument that man, because he is the rougher weapon, the battle-axe of operation, the entering wedge of enterprize, should receive an education vastly more extensive and erudite than what a k an handed parsimony has been willing to bestow upon woman, is most fallacious. Every dollar's worth of education bestowed on woman exerts a double sway over man, more powerful than all the abstract learning which he may have gained under the glare of the midnight lamp with his brow "sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought." This double influence is that of a cultivated female mind over the young, and that of a beautiful and accomplished woman over the mature: for it is a fact in the philosophy of mind that age has not a climacteric so fosty as to reject the warming influence of a ray shot from the "diamond divine," when it burns under the polish of the enlightened affections.

The great defect in American education all along has been the neglect of cultivating the affections. The only way to remedy this defect is to educate those lovely teachers of the affections to whom the child is an undistracted listener for the first ten years of its life. Feminine tenderness or mere maternal feeling is not the chief requisite to aid the teacher in this forming season of the soul. The eye that lights up thought in the infant's bosom, and the intellect that shapes out the immortal soul of the child in its earliest buddings, should be cultivated for the great duty; a duty greater and more illustrious in its consequences than either nature or natural affection has contemplated.

It is almost needless for me to say that strict regard will be paid by Miss Carroll in her mode of instruction to the principles here laid down. Her system has reference not merely to a pedantic heaping up of information, (the great fault of most boarding schools) but to a simultaneous culuvation of the heart and the affections, and the principle of combination to make learning useful. The fine expression of Miss Edgeworth, in speaking of the mind of one of her heroines, "that the stream of literature had passed over it, was apparent only from its fertility," may be truthfully applied in more than one instance to the result of her instruction. And as an ardent friend to female education I can assure the citizens of Baltimore that the establishment of Miss Carroll's Seminary among them is an addition to their educational facilities of which they should feel proud and liberally encourage. As an evidence of the high esteem in which Miss Carroll's qualifications are held by the citizens of this town, it may not be amiss to state that several of them have placed their daughters under her charge, and voluntarily tendered her the highest testimonials of their confidence in her great moral worth and superior qualifications. I heartily wish her success.

LAW OF MARYLAND—No. 172.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

An Act to aid in paying the interest on the public debt of Maryland.

Sect. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland. That from and after the passage of this act there shall be levied a tax of one fourth of one per cent on the public debt of the State of Maryland, owned or held by non residents of this State, assessed at the following valuations: so much of the said debt as bears an interest of six per cent shall be assessed at par, so much thereof as bears an interest of five per cent shall be assessed at ninety dollars in the hundred, so much thereof as bears an interest of four and a half per cent shall be assessed at eighty dollars in the hundred, and so much thereof as bears an interest of three per cent shall be assessed at sixty four dollars in the hundred dollars, which said assessments shall be made by the Treasurer at the times hereinafter prescribed for the payment of the said tax.

Sect 2. And be it enacted, That the amount of the said tax shall be collected by the said Treasurer's retaining it out of the payment of interest falling due on the first day of july, in each and every year on the said portion of the public debt; and that instead of authorising the Commissioner of Loans to draw upon him for the full amount of the interest falling due on the said first day of July, the Treasurer shall authorise a draft for the balance only of the interest due after deducting the said tax on the amount of which said tax shall then be carried to the credit of the State by the said Treasurer.

Sect 3. And bi it enacted That all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sect. 4. And be it enacted That this Act shall take effect from the passage thereof.

CHANCERY SALE.

BY virtue of a Decree of the High Court of Chancery, I will offer at public sale to the highest bidder, at the Court House door in Cambridge, on MONDAY the 12th of MAY, all that very valuable property, called "Prospect" containing 147 1-2 acres, and which embraces part of the following tracts, to wit:—"Commencement" "Hollowing point" "Ferry Point" "Thomas' Desire" "Woollen's Possession" and "Spicer's Venture," and which were resurveyed by the late John C. Traverse, and reduced into one tract, called "Prospect" in the year 1827, and which the said John C. Traverse devised to his grand son Benjamin K. Traverse, and the said Benjamin K. Traverse having died, the said property is now sold for the purpose of fair Division amongst his heirs at law.—This property is well known as having been formerly occupied by the late Levi D. Traverse, and is situated on Slaughter Creek, at and near the Ferry, embracing the said Ferry Landing. There are several Dwelling Houses and other tenements on the property—a store house, wind mill; and the said property is most favorably situated, either as a residence or for business, and is very valuable and offers great inducements to purchasers. The property will be sold in lots, if desired, to suit purchasers. The terms of sale are one-third cash, the residue in 6 & 12 months, with interest from day of sale to be secured by bond, with approved security.

CHANCERY SALE.

BY virtue of a Decree of the High Court of Chancery, I will offer at public sale, to the highest bidder at the Court House door in Cambridge on next, at the hour of 11 (A. M.) all the Real Estate of which the late Phillip H. Graham died seized and possessed, consisting chiefly of the following property to wit:—The tract or parcel of land, called "Lot No. 1," lying near the Worlds End Bridge, containing 107 acres more or less—part cleared, and a part covered with wood and timber. There is a valuable orchard on the premises and the buildings and improvements are very respectable. The situation is a desirable one, for residence or business. This property will be sold in lots, if desired by persons wishing to buy. Also a parcel of land, called "Button's Rake" 39 acres, highly valuable and in the same neighborhood, and any and all other lands of which the said Phillip H. Graham died seized and possessed.

The terms of sale are 1-3 cash, the residue on a credit of 6 & 12 months, with interest from the day of sale, to be secured by bond, with approved security.
