THE NATION'S SHAME.

At an expense to the tax-paying portion of our people of not less, probably, than a quarter of a million dollars, the Potter Committee, with headquarters in Washington, and branches in Florida and Louisiana, has gone into a search for fraud in connection with the recent Presidential election. When it is remembered that the controversy in reference to the result of the election has been finally and amicably settled by an Electoral Commission, organized at the suggestion of the Democratic party, as a last resort when they saw from the election returns that they had been defeated, and approved by the entire Democratic representation in the United States Senate and House of Representatives, what will the nation and the world think of a party and a Democratic House that deliberately reopened the question? of a Democratic House that orders an investigation of the acts of the returning boards of certain States and forbids an inquiry into the methods employed to carry the election in remote and unprotected districts of the same State? The Democratic House and the Democratic majority of the Potter Committee know that there are to-day large Republican majorities in Mississippi, South Carolina, Louisiana, and Florida; they know, too, that these majorities were defeated by intimidation, secured by means of murder, assassination, and house-burning. Yet, with all their knowledge of these acts, the Democratic House and Democratic Potter Committee refuse to allow any inquiry into the facts or into any acts of intimidation committed prior to the election, where fraud really existed to an alarming extent, but confine the investigation to the acts of the returning-boards.

The crime of the dominant party in the South is that it excludes the colored vote from the ballot-box, unless it is given for the Democratic party. Had this not been the case in all the Southern States there would have been no uncertain sound as to the result of the late Presidential election, and none are more convinced of this than the fraudulent party itself.

The great fact has been constitutionally established that "all citizens of the United States, who are otherwise qualified by law to vote at any election by the people in any State, Territory, district, county, parish, township, school district, municipality, or other territorial sub-division, shall be entitled and allowed to vote at such election, without distinction of race, color, or previous condition of servitude, any constitution, law, custom, usage, or regulation of any State or Territory, or by or under its authority, to the contrary notwithstanding." Yet the entire colored vote of the South is prevented from free exercise at the ballot-box by the bull-dozing practices of the Democratic party, which bids defiance to all attempts to secure an honest, vote, and glories in its achievements, under which no colored citizen is allowed but at the risk of his life to vote, unless his vote is for the Democratic candidate. Yet these are the men who are now searching for election frauds under one-sided instructions from the Democratic House. This is Democratic consistency.

The country was promised good times if it would only consent to giving the Democracy control of the House of Representatives. The country consented some four years ago Note the result. The country is less prosperous than before. Everything appears out of joint. Business is dull, people are grumbling; even the Indians are raising old Ned. If the nation permits this Democratic folly to continue we shall soon be forced into national bankruptcy, Is it not about time to return to the Old Republican flag?

What little sympathy might have been felt for the tramps in the West who pretend they want something to do is effectually destroyed and turned to wrath by the fact that they refuse to work in the harvest fields of Iowa at $2.50 per day. What they want and what a good many of them declare they will have, is support without work.

A personal observer of Mr. Randall says it is impossible to talk with him for five minutes without seeing that he has the Presidential itch uncommonly bad. This coincides with the impression his public utterances make. His agony will be painful, but short.—N. Y. Tribune, Rep.

So disgusted was a farmer who had taken a two-horse load of corn to Dallas, Tex., on learning that the buyers would pay no more than thirty-five cents, that he paid forty-five cents to drive his wagon to the middle of the toll-bridge, and there emptied the grain into the river.

When Kearney is President and Butler Secretary of State every quart bottle will hold three pints, workingmen will employ capitalists, each man, woman and child will have a bushel of money, two and two will be five and water will run up hill all over the country.

A woman of Mittineague, Mass., recently gave birth to a child with a cat's face and head. She had been constantly worried by a black cat that she finally killed.

A correspondent writes that the Long Branch bath houses would disgrace Gloucester Point.

Atlantic City is troubled with hotel beats.

A TEMPERANCE "TOAST" AT SEA.

The following graceful tribute to "woman" was delivered impromptu by Captain R. Kelso Carter, of Baltimore, on board the steamer Indiana, from Philadelphia for Liverpool, on the 20th ult., at the close of a debate on "Woman's Emancipation:"

Much has been said upon the subject of "Woman's Emancipation," but, after all, is she not emancipated already? The hand that rocks the cradle always sways the sceptre in fact if not in name. When the Spartan mothers trained their sons to steel, encouraged them in every sort of warlike pastime, and said to them, "Come not back from the battle except you come upon your shield," the nation became a nation of warriors, and the rod of empire was held by a military power that shook the world beneath its tread. But when the Christian mother of to-day teaches her boy to be kind, to be gentle and courteous, to be considerate of the feelings of others, restrains in him the natural uprising of the lex talionis, and inculcates the grand principle of doing unto others as you would have them do unto you, then, and not till then, we find men governing with some regard at least to the tenets of humanity and justice; then, and not till then, we find liberality, toleration and liberty. I would like to propose a toast tonight, although a total abstinence man myself, a toast to woman. To be drunk, not in liquor of any kind, for we should never pledge a woman in that which brings her husband reeling home to abuse where he should love and cherish, sends her sons to a drunkard's grave, and her daughters to a life of shame. On, no! not in that, but rather in the life-giving water, pure as her chastity, clear as her intuitions, bright as her smile, sparkling as the laughter of her eyes, cheering as her consolation, strong and sustaining as her love—in the crystal water I would drink to her that she may remain queen regnant in the empire she has already won, grounded deep as the universe in love; built up and exercised in the homes and hearts of the world; I would drink to her the full blown flower of creation's moaning, of which man was but the bud and blossom, to her who in childhood clasps our little hands and teaches us to lisp the first sweet prayer to the Great All-Father, who comes to us in youth with good counsel and service, who in manhood meets our heart yearnings with the full faithfulness of conjugal love, and whose hand when our feet go down into the shadow smooths the rough pillow of death as none other can; to her who is the flower of flowers, the pearl of pearls, God's latest, best and brightest gift to man—woman, peerless, pure, sweet, royal woman.

The poor Congressmen who form the committee on labor and relief now sitting in New York will have their brains addled if the investigation goes on at this rate. Never was the adage about many men of many minds more strikingly exemplified. Of about three score witnesses already examined, each claiming to have given the subject special attention, no two have agreed upon a method of relieving the distress of the country. Bedlam itself could not present a greater variety of opinions obstinately held. Yet it is a good thing to let all these people have their say. It can do no harm and serve the purpose of an escape-valve for the steam that if pent up might be dangerous. We hope the able Congressmen will be able to stand the racket.—Phila. Times

The following is in substance the speech of M. Aksakoff, the Slav enthusiast, at the last meeting of the Moscow Committee of Relief: "The Congress is an audicious mockery of what Russia claimed. The plenipotentiaries have placed a fool's cap on her head. Their decisions are a monstrous absurdity, a public insult to Russia, a short-lived falsehood, a conspiracy got up against the Russian people by its own representatives. Russian diplomacy has proved itself far more dangerous than Nihilism. One is amazed at their stupidity and their immeasurable servility. The whole Congress humiliated Russia, and Russian national feeling is thrown to the ground and trodden upon."

The very latest from South Carolina is the proclamation calling home her noble and public-spirited, but exiled sons, who had been engaged in the high and honorable profession of prowling around by hight, with masks on, whipping and hanging niggers and burning nigger churches and school-houses, and who, for fear of an oppressive and tyrannical National Government, expatriated themselves from the State. The Charleston News and Courier says "the involuntary absence of the Ku-Klux refugees, and the hunting down of the distillers in the mountains" is a great loss and wrong, and "it is the aim of Governor Hampton to change all this.' Come home! come home!! exiled assassins, and vote the Democratic ticket.

A lively war of words has been in progress recently between Mr. Eppa Hunton, of Virginia, and Mr. Columbus Alexander, of Washington. The lie has been very plainly given by both of the disputants, which has reduced itself to a tacit intimation from Mr. Hunton that a duel will be necessary to settle the difficulty. This mode of adjusting disputes is a relic of barbarism, unworthy of the age we live in, and it is surprising that any man of respectability should give it any countenance. It looks as if Hunton was industriously striving for the celebrity of a braggart and fool combined.

Ha! Ha! bay, on the Saguenay river—the river of the dead, which Indians cross with noiseless paddle—Cape Eternity rising dark overhead, is the most eerie resort

CONGRESSMAN RAINEY.

The Colored Representative on Whisky, Wade Hampton and other Subjects.

[From the Springfield Republican.]

Reference having been made to his service on the committee on enrolled bills at the close of the last session, and the report that his white associates got drunk, Mr. Rainey said: "Well, no; they weren't drunk. The newspapers rather exaggerated it You see the work was very laborious; it required close and continuous attention. Of course the committee were tired, the end of the session was close at hand, and they simply indulged in a little tonic to help them through." "However," he said in reply to a further question, "if they had kept on, I think likely they would have succumbed."

"I notice your Congressional brethren have held you in higher esteem since."

"Oh, I didn't think they would really unseat me. The reason it was so close was, more than anything else, because I supported Mr. Wood's tariff bill. This got the Pennsylvania delegation down on me. They got the idea I was in for free trade, and were quite unfriendly in consequence. I supported the bill because I thought it a just one. Mr. Wood was sincere in purpose, his efforts were honest, and his bill would have been for the country's benefit. I believe in revenue enough to meet the expenses of the government, which was the main object of the bill. As I subsequently assured the Pennsylvania people that I was an out-and-out free-trader they gradually withdrew their opposition to me."

"What do you think of Wade Hampton?"

"Well, I am a genuine Republican, but I must say Hampton is a remarkable fine man, and will be Governor again without the slightest opposition."

"Do you think he was honestly elected?"

"No, I don't. There is no doubt in my mind but that Chamberlain is the legally elected Governor. I consider Chamberlain a very able, upright man, and he is destined to make a high mark for himself as a lawyer in New York."

"But don't you think it has been for South Carolina's best interests that Hampton is now Governor?"

"I don't know but that it is so. Hampton is wonderfully popular As a slave-holder he was a very kind master; his negroes were treated a great deal better than the average, and they were always much attached to him. He is a genuine South Carolinian, and his interests are entirely with the State. Hampton is a high and pure-minded man; he works for the interest of the Commonwealth, and I esteem him very much."

VIRGINIA CRUELTY.

Among the many changes made by the whirligig of time, there are few so notable as the indicated recently at Elizabeth Court House, Virginia. On that sacred soil so redolent of chivalry, so eminent for tender reverence for woman, a young white female was publicly stripped to the waist and flogged with many stripes, by a negro constable.

The woman had been convicted of some petty offence against the laws of the "Mother of Presidents," and the judge ordered thus, and such punishment for the violation of law. The judge did not exceed the authority entrusted to him by a statute of the last Legislature of Virginia, nor could the negro constable readily evade the execution of the barbarous, inhuman and indecent task imposed upon him. Nor is it of record, that either the judge, the executioner, or the chivalrous legislator, who passed the law, have evinced any compunction for their agency in a deed that shocks the sensibillities of humanity. The whipping-post of Delaware, so long a reproach and so often vituperated by hightoned Southerners, has not yet been attended by such an outrage as the one perpetrated on Thursday last at Elizabeth Court House, in knightly Virginia. That system of punishment for crime has never received the endorsement of Christian men in any community. Strange, indeed, is it that Virginia has reserved to herself the most shameful of its forms—the lashing a half-naked white woman by a negro administrator of law.

Senator Beck does not look with approval upon the labors of the Potter Committee. He regards the whole movement as a "scheme to make a martyr of Sam Tilden," and thus secure him a renomination. He is inclined to think the scheme will not succeed, for he tells a reporter of The Cincinnati Enquirer that if the conventions were to meet to-morrow the Democrats would nominate Thurman, and the Republicans Grant. Beck is a ferocious third-termer, and says if any man takes Grant for a fool he is mistaken; that the ex-President's expenses in Europe have been paid by the bondholders and capitalist of this country; that he will land in San Francisco, when he returns next year, and be brought across the country in twelve of the finest coaches ever seen, which Pullman is building now; that he will be greeted by a tremendous fictitious enthusiasm everywhere, and be nominated in a whirlwind of excitement. He thinks Sam Cary, Blanton Duncan and Gen. Butler are planning into the hands of the Grant movement by making and inciting incendiary speeches against the rights of property in order to create a demand for a strong man at the head of affairs. All of which shows that Mr. Beck's mouth has, as usual, run away with him.

It is said that there are 8,000,000 pupils enrolled in the public schools of the United States. The average daily attendance is 4,500,000. The estimated population between six and sixteen years of age is 10,000,000.

The camp-meeting season has opened, and the spring chicken springs his last spring.

To the Farmers of Dorchester Co.

I take this method of notifying you that I am agent for the celebrated

CHAMPION REAPER AND MOWER.

I believe it unnecessary to expatiate upon their superior qualities over other machines, as they are so well-known in this county, but simply to state that they will be sold at a greatly reduced rate over last year, and the machine of 1878 has many improvements over any former year's production. Sample machines will be displayed on the court-house green. Give me your orders early, so that you can become thoroughly acquainted with the working of the machines before harvest, and so that I can give you any attention before the rush comes on. Don't forget that last season some of our farmers put off giving me their orders until just before harvest, and it was impossible to furnish the machines on account of all having been previously disposed of. These machines will be offered on easy terms. Good security required, and a liberal discount allowed if paid on or before August 1st. For further particulars call at my Hardware and Agricultural Implement establishment on High street, Cambridge.
