WHO SHE WAS

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all, possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham, a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies—calling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of the curative properties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the harvest-fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds; so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search these out, and prepare simple and effective medicines for her own family and friends.

Chief of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal roots and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the ills and weaknesses peculiar to the female sex, and Lydia E. Pinkham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound relieved and cured and it became quite popular among them.

All this so far was done freely, without money and without price, as a labor of love.

But in 1873 the financial crisis struck Lynn. Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class of business suffered most from fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

The three sons and the daughter, with their mother, combined forces to restore the family fortune. They argued that the medicine which was so good for their woman friends and neighbors was equally good for the women of the whole world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkham sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until today Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

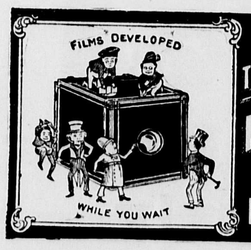

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed to her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice—and there were thousands—received careful study, and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the treatment of woman's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-won knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its originator passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham, now the mother of a large family, took it up. With women assistants, some as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues this great work, and probably from the office of no other person have so many women been advised how to regain health. Sick women, this advice is "Yours for Health" freely given if you only write to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; made from simple roots and herbs; the one great medicine for women's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE "NEWS"

MARYLAND'S NEW OYSTER LAW.

Under the Haman-Seth compromis bill as passed by the legislature and signed by the Governor, oyster culture is to follow a complete survey of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries to determine the natural beds and barren bottoms.

Three shellfish commissioners are to be appointed by the Board of Public Works. They are to supervise the survey and to attend to the leasing for the state.

Survey is to be made under direction of a hydrographic engineer, and a United States Geological Survey expert is to be invited to help. An expert oysterman from each county is to act in an advisory capacity in the survey of waters in his county.

No corporation may hold claim to oyster lands, and each holding by assignment or otherwise is to be restricted to 10 acres in the tributaries and 100 acres in the Bay.

Leases are to be for 20 years. Annual rentals are to be charged at $1 for the first two years, $2 for the third year, $3 for the fourth year, $4 for the fifth year and $5 per year for the balance of the lease.

Any legislature may change the leasing law, and methods of appeal to circuit courts are provided on the question of survey.

The season for catching oysters is to be extended for tongers to May 15. Between April 15 and May 15 (the extended term) oysters are to be caught for Maryland planters only, and the Commissioners are given powers for designating the areas in which this tonging may take place and to provide rules to keep the seed in the state.

The cull law still holds, but on private beds the lessee may do as he pleases with his own oysters. He may use mechanical means for catching them.

Natural bars are to be perpetually reserved as commons. Riparian rightholders are to have six months' priority of claim for leasing, to be followed by four months' priority for oystermen, after which any resident of Maryland, male or female, may apply for leasing rights, priority of claim to hold good.

TWO MEN WITH FUTURES.

The Senate of 1906 developed two men with big futures in Maryland politics. Both are democrats, but, strangely enough, they were usually on opposite sides of the questions at issue. They are Senator Arthur P. Gorman, Jr., of Howard and Senator Blair Lee of Montgomery. Both showed up as big men and hard workers.

In their personal make up they are exact opposites. Gorman cold, industrious, a man with a fixed purpose and determined to achieve it by force; Lee affable, well-rounded, epigrammatic One a young man, determined to work, for what he wants and with intelligence to work directly; the other a man in middle life, who can exert his strength without apparent effort.

Aptness of speech has characterized Mr. Lee in the Senate; fixedness of purpose has been the keynote of Mr. Gorman's leadership. Not that Mr. Lee's ideas are not well defined: on the contrary, his efforts, when he has been on the aggressive instead of the defensive, have shown that he can shoot as straight as any man in the Senate.
