SENATOR GORMAN DEAD

Maryland's Senior Representative in the Upper Branch of Congress Succumbs to Heart Trouble. End Was Sudden.

ILL FOR SEVERAL MONTHS

In Absence of Mr. Rayner, Bailey of Texas Announces Death to Senate and Pays Deceased Marylander a High Tribute—A Statesman of High Rank.

GORMAN AS A NATIONAL FIGURE: A CHRONOLOGY.

Born March 11 1839, at Woodstock, Howard county, Md.

In 1852, at the age of 13, appointed a page in the United States Senate, where he learned politics from Stephen A. Douglas. Became so popular in the Senate that he rose from page to messenger, to assistant door-keeper, then to assistant postmaster, and finally to postmaster of that body.

Became private secretary of Stephen A. Douglas. Went to Illinois and assisted the latter in his fight against Abraham Lincoln.

Retired from the postmastership of the Senate in 1866 and was appointed Internal Revenue Collector for the Fifth District of Maryland by President Johnson.

Retired from the office when Grant became President.

Elected a member of the House of Delegates from Howard county in 1869.

Re elected to the House in 1871 and 1873.

Elected president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in 1872.

Elected Speaker of the House of Delegates in 1874.

Elected to the State Senate from Howard county in 1875.

Managed the Gubernatorial campaign of John Lee Carroll in 1875.

Re-elected to the State Senate in 1870.

In 1880 became a candidate for secretary of the United States Senate, but not elected.

Elected to the United States Senate to succeed Willi m Pinkney Whyte in 1880.

March 4, 1881, took his seat in the United States Senate, in which he served 18 consecutive years.

Chairman of the Democratic National Committee in 1884, when Cleveland was elected.

In 1889 elected chairman of the Democratic minority of the Senate.

In 1889-90 led the fight that resulted in the defeat of the force bill.

Presented a silver service paid for by popular subscription by the people of Maryland in 1891, for his services in defeating the force bill.

In 1892 was prominently mentioned for the Presidency and was voted for in the national convention.

Retired from the Senate in 1899, being succeeded by Louis E. McComas.

Re-elected to the United States Senate by the Legislature of 1902, taking his seat on March 4, 1903.

Senator Arthur Pue Gorman of Maryland died in Washington at 9 17 o'clock Monday morning from a sudden attack of heart trouble.

Mr. Gorman was as cheerful Sunday night as he had been for some weeks. He talked with members of his family, and there was nothing to indicate that his condition was more serious than during the past week.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock he took a decided change for the worse, Dr. C. W. Brown, who has been his regular physician, lives less than a square away, and he was hurriedly sent for. When he arrived he saw that there was a complete change in the Senator's condition. Senator Gorman realized the desperate straits in which he was, and he talked as well as he could with the physician about himself.

He found that the Senator had been seized with tachycardia, or rapid pulsation of the heart, a condition incident to the trouble from which he had been suffering from the begining. The heart strokes were as high as 200 a minute. A choking accompanied the attack, but this was not of a violent nature.

Senator Gorman retained consciousness practically to the very last, and his words indicated that he knew the moment of death was at hand. There was no leavetaking on the part of the family, whose members were gathered in the room adjoining the death chamber.

At the bedside were Mrs. Gorman, Miss Ada Gorman, the Senators eldest daughter, and the nurse.

Senator Gorman's illness extended over a period of five months. He had not left his house since January 16. He suffered in addition to his heart affection, with more or less stomach trouble. A week ago last Saturday he was seized with a heart attack, and it was thought then that he could not survive, but he rallied and seemed to get very much better. Up to late Sunday night he was in the best of spirits and chatted with various members of the family. As soon as he passed away word was sent to the Senate.

Senator Gorman leaves a widow and six children as follows: Miss Ada Gorman, Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert, Mrs. R A. Johnson, Mrs. R. W. Hills, all of this city; Mrs. Stephen Gambrill of London, England, who arrived here a week ago, and Arthur Pue Gorman, Jr., of Laurel. Md., a member of the Maryland State Senate.

The Capitol Building is shrouded in gloom. Senators and Represenatives, committee employees, police and pages, all knew Senator Gorman intimately, and grief is general.

The announcement in nearly every case brought forih spontaneous eulogies such as seldom are given to any man, and especially to an intense partisan who had been a leader of a great party. The expressive tributes, so unanimous in bespeaking the lovableness of the man and silent concerning the incidents of political strife, best evidenced the marked esteem in which he was held.

Several of the most important committees which invariably meet on Monday, devoted nearly all the time they were in session to discussing the high places Senator Gorman had filled at the Capitol.

IDEAL PRIVATE LIFE.

Of Mr. Gorman's private life no man ever had an unkind or a harsh criticism to make. It was ideal. He maintained for years his residence in one of the most fashionable sections of Washington, but it was for Fairview, his country home in Howard county, five miles from Laurel, that he loved best. That was his dreamland. His great consolation was the companionship of his family. His sweetest music was the childish prattle of his little grandchildren.

From Laurel the route to Fairview is out the Baltimore and Washington turnpike, in the direction of Baltimore. About half a mile from the town an iron bridge leads over the patuxent river, which is the boundary line between Prince George's and Howard counties. The pike is followed for another half mile, and then the county road is taken to the left. One drives through a pretty and picturesque bit of country to Senator Gorman's home. There are fertile fields and sloping woodlands all along the route, and an occasional farmhouse or cabin dots the landscape.

All of the land seen from Laurel to Senator Gorman's place appears pretty fair, but none of it compares with the Fairview estate. The difference is marked as soon as the traveler gets to the top of a sloping hill and notes a great high buff-colored house off in the distance. That is Fairview. That is where its owner left politics behind him when he entered.

HORSE SHOW DETAILS.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Horse Show held in Chestertown Tuesday, it was decided to add a class for saddle horses, making nineteen classes in all. The following regulations were adopted:

All entries must be in the hands of the Executive Committee not later than six p. m. of July 18th, 1906.

Each animal entered must be the bona fide property of the person or persons making the entry, and have been owned by him or them at least sixty days prior to the date of the Show.

Entries for the standard classes must be accompanied by the certificates of registration on the books of the American Trotting Register. In the class for standard mares with foal at foot, a certificate from the owner of the sire of the foal will be sufficient for the foal's entry, providing that the sire of the foal is well-known to the Executive Committee as a registered standard stallion.

The managers of the Horse Show reserve the right to reject any entry or entries, and to exclude any entry or competitor from the Show when the best interests of the Show, in the judgement of the managers, demand that course of action. The managers of the Horse Show also refuse to accept responsibility for mishaps or accidents, though to the end of preventing the same reckless driving and an exhibition of more than twelve miles per hour speed will disqualify the offender or offenders, however otherwise meritorious, for any prize.

All entries to be serviceably sound in the judgement of the official veterinarian the latter's decision to be considered final.

During the judging of the various classes, only those persons whose presence there is demanded by the requirements of the class at the time will be permitted within the enclosure or exhibition space.

The following classes to be shown in hand: Stallions, standard, non-standard and draft; mares, with foal at foot, standard and non-standard; yearlings and two-year-olds, standard and non-standard; and jacks.

All other classes, but saddle-class, to be shown in harness.

VETERINARIAN John F. Rice, of Fairlee, Md., has been very busy lately administering his stock medicines to sick horses and colts belonging to Wm. Clark at Hynson Chapel, they having a disease known as irregular strangles and farcy, also a fine horse that had a bad case of vertigo belonging to L. Bacon, of Melitota, and a fine colt with inflamation of the kidneys belonging to Harry Rash, also several horses up the County, two belonging to Mr. John N. Bennett, of Still Pond and others; all are better at this writing and improving finely.

SASSAFRAS ITEMS.

Dewey Park will reopen for the season of 1906 on June 13th, next Wednesday evening. Our wide awake proprietors are making great improvements to make this year a very brilliant one.

Whitsuntide has been fully observed here for the past two days and indeed throughout the whole country.

We regret exceedingly to learn Mrs. E. W. Staats, of this town, fell down an entire flight of stairs on Saturday and most seriously injured herself. She is confined to her bed in a critical condition, great fears of several bones being broken. Dr. Ritchie, of Middletown, is in attendance. And much to our sorrow Mrs. I. Gunkie, mother of Mrs. John Ernest, of this town fell last week and broke two ribs and otherwise injuring herself. We trust these accidents to these ladies will be greatly improved and they will soon be well.

Thursday June 14th, will be the anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the American ensign. The day is now known as "Flag Day" and is generally observed by a display of the "Red, White and Blue."

Mr. Irving Spry our bright young merchant here, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. Ford at Still Pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Vansant have been entertaining at a house party for the past several days the following guests: Messrs. Frederick and Raymond Vansant, of Wilmington; Paul Vansant, of Chestertown; Mr. Price Stanly, Still Fond; Bayard and Edgar Jones, of Wilmington. These gentlemen all came to visit their relatives here and to attend Childrens day.

Childrens Day was observed here. The program in full will be given next week and the amount realized.

Resolutions of Respect.

WHEREAS on May 20th, 1906, our Heavenly Father removed to the spiritual realm, thereby terminating the mortal existance of the beloved brother of our order, and a good citizen of our community, Harry C. Vansant.

Resolved, That while we bow in submission to the will of the Divine Mind, yet we feel a pang of sorrow and sadness, not seeing him any more amongst us and mourns as he was young in years and had all to hope for in earthly life, his age being 24 years. We shall keep our Charter draped in mourning for some time.

Resolved, That he filled the office of Prelate honorably and sincerely, always prompt to assist in doing good.

Resolved, That we extend to his bereaved mother, sister and brothers our most sincere sympathy in these their sad days of affliction.

Resolved, That these resolutions be placed upon the Conclave minutes, be published in the county papers and be sent to the mother of the deceased.

CONSOLATION.

Mortal or material belief, cast off,
The dream called human life is over,
Change of belief, this change,
By mortal mind called death,
When passed, the spiritual, the immortal,
the real man,
Reflecting naught but good,
If not before, then now, is welcomed by
Divine Mind's angels;
"Thoughts from God, winged with Love and Truth."

THE LADIES STORE—H. F. JEFFERSON—CHESTERTOWN, MD.

Prices Pulsating With Economy

The new goods—dainty, delicate, desirable—the harbingers of this season's fashions, fads and fancies. Without style, a garment is nothing in the eyes of any self-respecting woman. She looks, also, for service and economy. Some greater writer has said: "The nearest approach to heaven on this earthly sphere is experienced by the woman happy in the knowledge that she is well gowned." And it is hardly necessary to say that the trinity, "Style, Service, Economy." are important features in her dress, skirt, waist, or what-article of wear she may be looking for. Journey hither, to the benefit of your pocket-book.
