DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES.

The Democratic voters of Kent County are requested to assemble in the several Election Districts at the usual places of holding primary elections, on SATURDAY, the 7th day of July, 1906, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting six delegates from their respective districts to meet in convention to be held at the Court House, in Chestertown, on TUESDAY, the 10th day of July, 1906, at 12 o'clock noon, to select delegates from Kent county to the First District Congressional Convention which will be held at Ocean City, Maryland, on Thursday, the 12th day of July, 1906, for the purpose of nominating one candidate for Congress.

Where there are two precincts, each precinct will be entitled to three delegates.

BETTERTON has flung wide its portals to excursionists this week and the hotels are filling rapidly with summer guests.

GOV. PATTISON, the Democratic Governor of Ohio, died Tuesday and the State again drops into Republican hands.

"THE Chester river is the prettiest stream in the country," remarked a visitor to Kent this week.

SENATOR GORMAN'S will has been admitted to probate. He left all his prop to his wife and children. His estate was not large.

DR. THOMAS H. LEWIS, the able President of Western Md. College, has sailed for Europe for a year's rest and recreation.

WILLIAM LEE, the negro accused of assault will not be taken to Somerset county for trial, because of the danger of lynching. He will be tried in Baltimore. If there ever was a case justifying lynch law this is one of them.

THE man Kean who kidnapped little Freddie Muth in Philadelphia last week, has been captured, convicted and sentenced to twenty years in prison at hard labor. The little boy was returned by the detectives to his parents unharmed.

THE CENTREVILLE RECORD has been sold by W. Scott Roberts, Esq., who has been its publisher for 32 years, to James T. Bright, Esq., for $10,250. The building is included in the sale. Mr. Bright is the leader of the independents in Queen Anne. We regret to lose Col. Roberts from the editorial ranks. He published one of the best local papers in the State.

COL. OSWALD TILGHMAN, Maryland's Secretary of State, who took Gov. Warfield's place at our College commencement and did the honors so well, made new friends during his stay in Chestertown. He never looked happier and carries his 225 pounds weight with the airiness of an athlete.

IN the distribution of federal plums this week by Secretary Bonaparte, Jackson's friend, Lincoln Dryden, was left without an appointment. Mr. Mudd captured Jackson and caused him to forsake his Eastern Shore friends. Will the Eastern Shore support such a man for Congress?

NEARLY 100 members of the National Editorial Association, due in Chicago for breakfast Wednesday, were poisoned by eating ham and chicken sandwiches in Marion, Ind. Some narrowly escaped death. Many will be unable to accompany the excursion farther. They are confined to their beds at Winona Lake, two miles from there.

THE Commencements this week have occupied the attention of the people in Kent. Everyone could not help but feel proud of our excellent shools and splendid corps of teachers, of the College and its beautiful location and of the boys and girls who graduated there. from. May each one of them be a success in whatever sphere in life they may occupy.

ANOTHER star was added to the Union Friday when President Roosevelt signed the bill admitting Oklahoma and the Indian Territory as one state. The measure also provides that Arizona and New Mexico may be admitted to statehood as the state of Arizona, provided the people of the Territories vote in favor of admission of the terms submitted to them by Congress. The new state has 70,430 square miles. Oklahoma means "Beautiful Land."

THE next dance—see card in this issue—at Dewey Park, on the Sassafras river, will be on the 27th instant. The proprietors, Messrs. Shallcross and Massey, were much disappointed and not a little chagrined, because of the failure of their music on the evening of the 13th, as announced for the opening dance. It was all through a misunderstanding, and will not happen again this season, as they have secured four pieces from the city. We are assured that good music will greet the Park patrons on the 27. Caterer Montgomery, of Middletown, will have charge of the table.

JUDGE PEARCE'S ADDRESS

At the Corner Stone Laying, Washington College.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Hardly had the first gun of the Revolution been fired when the General Assembly of Maryland, under the administration of Governor Paca, provided by chapter 8 of the Acts of the year 1782 for the founding and incorporation at the town of Chester of the earliest college in the State, and directed that it should "have continuance forever by the name of the Visitors and Governors of Washington College, in the State of Maryland, in honourable and perpetual memory of his Excellency, Gen. Washington, the illustrious and virtuous commander-in-chief of the armies of the United States."

Many of the men who enacted this law had stood behind and fired these guns. For eight years the able-bodied men of Maryland, with their brothers from the other colonies, had followed the varying fortunes of war, and all calsses and occupations had responded to the constant need of fresh troops to maintain the arduous struggle.

At that period there were but few public schools, and when the close of hostilities came with the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, few of the people were able to avail themselves of the private schools which survived the war. Private means and public finances were alike prostrated. But no sooner was independence actually achieved than our representatives in the General Assembly, knowing that liberty is the sure possession only of an enlightened people, turned to the duty of building up the State which their sacrifices of blood and treasure had created, and made wise and munificent provision for an institution of learning in which the principles of civil government should be taught, and where future statesmen and scholars might be trained for the preservation of liberty won by the sword, and for the advancement of the arts and sciences which are the pursuits of peace. On such an occasion as the present it should be interesting to reproduce a passage from the quaint and stately preamble of that enactment, showing the importance attached by the Legislature of that day to the cause of education, and I shall therefore venture to do so,

"Whereas, institutions for the liberal education of youth in the principles of virtue, knowledge and useful literature are of the highest benefit to society, in order to raise up and perpetuate a succession of able and honest men for discharging the various offices and duties of the community, both civil and religious, with usefulness and reputation, and such institutions of learning have accordingly merited and received the attention and encouragement of the wisest and best regulated States; and whereas, former legislatures have, according to their best abilities, laid a considerable foundation in this good work in sundry laws for the establishment and encouragement of county schools for the study of Latin, Greek, writing and the like, intending as their future circumstances might permit to raise on the foundations of said schools more extensive seminaries of learning, by erecting one or more colleges or places of universal study, not only in the learned languages, but in philosophy, divinity, law, physic, and other useful and ornamental arts and sciences; and whereas, the present visitors of the Kent County School, in the town of Chester, have represented to this General Assembly that there are now about 140 students and scholars, and the number expected soon to increase to 200, and that if they were made capable of erecting the said school into a College very considerable sums could be raised in a few years by free and voluntary contributions for the establishment and support of such college, and have accordingly prayed that a law may be passed to enable them to improve the said school into a college, with the usual privileges Now this General Assembly, being desirous to encourage and promote knowledge within this State, do enact, &c.," proceeding with the text of an elaborate charter.

The sum of £10,000 was promptly raised by private subscriptions on the Eastern Shore, and in 1783 Gov. Paca laid the corner-stone of an imposing structure, 160 feet in length, upon the site now occupied upon the terrace above us by Middle, East and West Colleges. When this building was completed the General Assembly, by chapter 7 of 1784, "annually and forever granted an endowment of £1250 as a donation from the public, to be applied upon the payment of the salaries of the Faculty." This building was destroyed by fire in 1827. From that time until 1844 a reduced faculty instructed the students in a large rented building situated on the southwest corner of Water and Cannon streets, which was also destroyed by fire; and upon its destruction the present middle building was erected upon the terrace, the corner-stone being laid by the President of the Visitors and Governors, Judge Ezekiel F. Chambers, a distinguished graduate of the college, a former member of the Senate of the United States, and then a member of the Court of Appeals of Maryland.

In 1854 East and West Colleges were built, while Rev. Dr. Francis Waters, of happy memory, was Principal of the Faculty; and in 1897, after the establishment of a Normal Department by the Legislature, Normal Hall was erected. During the period between the destruction of the original stately building, in 1827, and the erection of its modest successor in 1844, the college saw its darkest days, and its existence was only preserved by the devotion of the Visitors and Governors and their wisdom in husbanding its slender resources. Between 1844 and 1890 there were long periods of depression and anxiety, but in recent years there has been a marked awakening of interest in the college throughout the State, and the Visitors and Governors desire now to acknowledge gratefully an increasing liberality on the part of the State in harmony with the broad views of the importance of generous State aid to its institutions of learning so impressively declared in the charter of Washington College.

This is not the time or place to dwell upon what we believe to have been a mistaken and unwise policy on the part of the State, by which in 1798 the endowment "annually and forever granted" in 1784 was first reduced and subsequently entirely withdrawn, a system of small annual doles, coupled with an equivalent in tuition, being substituted for the broad and liberal scheme of aid provided in the charter. Had that policy been maintained there can be little doubt that a literary and scholastic atmosphere would have been created around this ancient and honorable institution in which it would have flourished and grown with the growth of the State, and would have fixed itself immovably in the affection and pride of the people. When the original building was destroyed it would, in such an atmosphere and under the stimulus of State pride and affection, have risen from its ashes before they were cold. Its equipment in buildings, appliances and instructors, necessary for the reasonable development of its usefulness, would have been immeasurably in advance of what it is to-day. This beautiful campus might have been surrounded by a group of buildings worthy of its history of a century and a quarter, and we might have counted among our alumni, with all the traditional interest and affection which unites men to their Alma Mater, hundreds of our citizens whose hearts now turn to Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dickinson or the University of Virginia as the shrine of their affections.

But we have no weak or vain regrets to utter to day for that which might have been in the years that are past. We rejoice in the awakening of public interest in this old college. We thank the Board of State Aids and Charities for their careful investigation and recommendation of the needs and merits of this institution, and the Legislature for its generous aid in response to their recommendations, through which we are enabled to erect the handsome and commodious building whose corner-stone would be laid to-day by Gov. Edwin Warfield if he were able to be present, and we believe it will repay the State a hundred fold for its expenditure, in enabling us to send out year by year a succession of honest and able young men and good and true young women, as necessary to the State to-day for the discharge of the duties of life, as they were, and as the Legislature declared them to be, in 1782. One of the most finished scholars which this country has produced, in an oration delivered at the commencement of Union College in 1877, uttered these beautiful words: "To those who, constantly and actively engaged in a thousand pursuits, are still persuaded that educated intelligence moulds States and leads mankind, no day in the year is more significant, more inspiring, than this of the College Commencement. It matters not at what college it may be celebrated—it is the same at all. We stand here indeed beneath these college walls, beautiful for situation, girt at this moment with the perfumed splendor of midsummer, and full of tender memories and joyous associations to many of those who hear me; but on this day, and on other days, at a hundred other colleges, this summer sun beholds the same spectacle of eager and earnest throngs. The faith that we hold they also cherish—it is the same God which is worshipped at different altars."

If this day is significant and inspiring to the thousands who gather at the wealthy and powerful seats of learning, built up by more than a century of rich gifts and bequests, and supplied with an overflowing treasury, much more significant and inspiring should it be to those who gather at a small college like our own, venerable in years and honorable in history, though poor in purse; when, after years of struggle with adversity, it sees its advancing pathway, long clouded, now arched by the bow of promise, and can rest in assurance of an increased equipment in some degree, at least, commensurate with its growing field of usefulness.

In selecting a name for the building now rising from the ground, the choice of the Visitors and Governors was prompt and unanimous, and the hearts of those who are familiar with the early history of the college should go before my tongue to name him. The choice fell upon the founder of the college, the first Principal of its Faculty, the leading spirit of the College and Academy of Philadelphia and of the early days of the University of Pennsylvania, the first American chosen to be a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States, distinguished alike as a scholar and a divine—the Rev. Dr. William Smith. Long may "The William Smith Hall" stand to commemorate his virtues and talents and to aid in the education of the youth of the land!

THE game of base ball played Wednesday between Washington College and Alumni resulted in a victory for the latter by score of 7 to 5. It was one of the most interesting games ever seen at the college requiring eleven innings to decide the victors. About 500 people witnessed the game. Burris and Zearfoss were the battery for the winners and received an ovation from their many admirers. Massey, Hitch, Crew, Brice, Charles, Cameron and Eliason comprised the balance of Alumni team. Wilson and Knotts played fine ball for the College boys and star plays were made by Meginnis, White and Garrison. Dixon played his position perfect. Big Moore at short is a coming man. George White has been elected captain for next year.
