Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

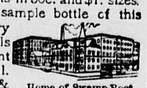
How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.



Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Sawmp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, and the address, Binghampton, N. Y., on every bottle.

THE SMOKE of DECISION

By Frank B. Wells

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

"Move on there!"

Bondell pulled heavily at his cigar in studied abstraction of the limb of the law. The policeman advanced a step nearer, bellowing hoarsely:

"I tell you to get a move on you! You've been obstructing travel on this corner for a quarter of an hour. Now"—

"See here!" the bundle of obstinacy waved the emblem of authority into silence. "I'm going to stand here till I've finished this cigar. You might as well rest on that."

The policeman made a move for the man's collar. "I'll give you an illustration of the way this city keeps its streets navigable!" he roared.

Bondell smiled grimly and stepped out of range of the policeman's muscular arm. Suddenly he became confidential.

"A young sprig asked my permission to marry my daughter just a few minutes ago, and I've sent him around the corner on an errand."

"Well?"

"Well, if he gets back before I finish this cigar he can have the girl. If he fails to show up in time he doesn't get her. That's the long and short of it."

"HOLD ON, SIR!" DEMANDED THE OFFICER. "WHAT'S UP?"

The policeman surveyed Bondell with mute astonishment. "It occurs to me," he said, "that you have a rather fickle grasp of human destiny. What kind of an errand did you send this young fellow on?"

"Not much of anything. Just told him to go down and ask the Stillmans for quotations. They're gone today and the office is closed. It hadn't ought to take him long to find that out."

"Now, see here," exclaimed the blue coat, "that ain't fair! If that young man is any good he will hunt all over the Empire State before he will come back to you without the information you wanted. You will have time to grow baldheaded smoking cigars before you set your optics on him again. That's my opinion."

"You might as well go about your business," retorted Bondell. "This is my affair, not yours. I like to see a young man act promptly, and I'm giving him this for a test. He's good enough for the most part."

"He is, is he? Did you ever see him before?"

"Of course I have. He is one of my clerks. I'm a broker."

"Oh," sighed the officer. "I supposed by your actions that he was some stranger you had picked up on the street. You are more intelligent than I thought you were."

"Now clear out!" blustered the broker. "Give me any more of your impudence and I'll report you."

"You will, eh? Not till you've got through with that cigar, I presume. By the way, you ain't puffin' as fast as you might, seems to me."

The officer wandered down to the next block ruminating. At the turn of the corner he met a young man dashing breathlessly along the walk. He promptly laid a heavy hand on the young man's shoulder.

"Hold on, sir!" demanded the officer. "What's up?"

"Nothing—nothing. Don't detain me. I'm going in an awful hurry!" struggled the youth.

"How do you know you are?" asked the policeman mildly.

"How do I—you blamed fool!"

"There—none of that! I'll pull you in," threatened the officer.

"I beg your pardon," the young man pleaded, "but you don't understand how important it is for me to lose no time."

"How do you know I don't?"

"Because—because—why, there's a man waiting for me up at the next corner. I have an important dispatch. The man is an old crank, and I've kept him waiting half an hour already. He'll give me fits."

"I don't believe a word of this stuff," solemnly declared the policeman. "You haven't got any important dispatches."

"I have!" The youth glared at the officer like a wild animal.

"Then let me see 'em," the policeman demanded.

"I—that is, the message is verbal," explained the other.

"I told you you hadn't got any dispatches. You didn't even see the parties you were ordered to see."

The young man began to turn pale. "How in thunder did you find out all about my affairs?" he gasped.

"I just know. That's enough," asserted the officer grimly. "And I know another thing—you don't want to see that old chap up there on the corner."

"But I do; I must," protested the youth, making an effort to tear away from the officer's grasp.

"No, you don't. He sent you down here on a fool errand. He knew that none of the Stillmans were in the city. You want to marry his daughter, and he wants you to marry her, but he's got it in his head that if you didn't get back by the time he had finished a cigar he wouldn't give his consent. He's got through with the cigar. Now of course, you don't want to see him."

The youth stood wrapped in bewilderment. "Heavens!" he exclaimed at length. "What am I going to do?"

"Well, I'll tell you if you want me to," replied the policeman.

"Then tell me."

"Do you really want to marry this girl?"

"Yes."

"Does she want to marry you?"

"I—she—said she did."

"All right. Do you know where she is?"

"I do."

"How long would it take you to have the matter straightened out, ceremony performed, and all that?"

The young man calculated rapidly. "Two hours would be sufficient," he announced.

"Then get about it quick. I'll tend to the old man."

The policeman turned and sauntered back to where Bondell was still standing.

"Have you seen your man yet?" the officer inquired.

"No!" the broker thundered. "He won't get the girl, you can bank on that."

"How was he dressed?" asked the officer.

"Light brown suit, blue tie, black derby hat"—

"Then it was he. Great heavens!" broke in the policeman.

"Was what? Tell me!" exclaimed Bondell.

"He was run over by an automobile a few minutes ago and taken to the hospital."

"My God! And I was to blame! Which hospital?" the broker asked frantically.

"I'm sorry," replied the officer, "but I can't tell you. If you want to see him you'll have to make the circuit of them all."

Late that night Bondell returned to his home after a fruitless search for the unfortunate lover. As he was mounting the steps a cab halted at the curb.

"Papa," came a wee voice, "Henry and I have been married tonight, and you'll forgive your own little girl, won't you?"

The broker staggered down the steps with arms outstretched. "God bless you both!" he exclaimed fervently.

Wild Beasts of New York City.

As a matter of fact, it is not very generally known that wild trout may be taken and wild game killed within the corporate limits of New York city. Certainly I have found but few that seemed to know that foxes, and not always foxes bred for the purpose, but the genuine wild Reynard, are chased on Staten Island. The city limits are very extended. A good slice is taken off Westchester county at the north, the whole of one end of Long Island at the east, while Staten Island entire is included at the south. There are wooded districts within these boundaries—brushy hills and swampy thickets—some of them well nigh inaccessible. There are fresh water streams and lakes and there are vast areas of salt water; also there are wide set meadows or marsh lands where the waters of ocean and bay and sound swept long ago and where salt creeks and inlets still make and ebb with the tide. Such haunts as these are ideal, and the creatures that have held them against three centuries of civilization are not to be easily driven away.—Albert Bigelow Paine in Metropolitan.

The Hardest Blow.

An artist who has attained fame and an income was telling some friends of his early struggles. "I had spent eight weeks on the picture," he said, "and had put my very soul into it, and we were penniless. My wife was hungry and in rags, the baby was sickly and I was discouraged. I hawked that picture about town desperately, only to bring it home that night. No one would have it."

"I suppose that was the hardest blow of your life," suggested a sympathetic friend.

"Oh, no, it wasn't, either. I could stand that. I knew I was right. But next day I went out to answer every promising advertisement. The last on the list read, 'Dishwasher wanted.'

"I felt secure of that, so saved it for the last. But when I applied the greasy proprietor of the restaurant looked me over with a critical eye.

"'Ah, yes,' he said, 'and what experience as a dishwasher have you had?'

"Of course I hadn't any, and he would not take me. I've never forgiven him for that awful jolt to my pride."

The Reform Fell Through.

The Man—Now, look here, Helen, we're going to run this household on a more methodical system. Everything in its place, so that we will know where everything is kept.

His Wife—Oh, how nice! Now, let's begin with your late hours, dear. I should dearly like to know where they are kept.—Lippincott's Magazine.
