COST OF RAISING WHEAT

The Department of Agriculture has issued a comprehensive report on the economics of wheat raising based on returns from more than five thousand growers throughout the country.

The average yield per acre for the entire wheat crop is now about 14.4 bushels. The returns of these growers fix the average cost of production in 1909 at 66 cents per bushel, and the average selling price at 96 cents.

Analysis of the report, according to localities, shows that the Mississippi belt produces 40 per cent. of the entire crop, at just about the average cost and selling price. This economic as well as geographical center holds the balance between the East and the West, the yield in the far Western States being much above the average, the cost of production less and the sale price only slightly lower, while in the Atlantic States the yield is much less, the cost much higher and the sale price not proportionately increased.

The low extreme was Montana, with a yield of 28 bushels per acre; costs, 44 cents, and selling prices 87 cents. In the Atlantic States the cost averaged about 93 cents, or within 4 cents as much as Montana's selling price.

This gives food for thought to the Eastern farmer. The statistics, naturally are based on the reports of growers who keep a careful record of their expenses and who, running their farms on a strictly business basis, are apt to make a showing above the average. Indeed, this is found throughout to be the case in regard to yield, their reports invariably indicating a better crop than the average per acre for their total district. The cost to the less intelligent or less systematic Eastern farmer is probably considerably more than 97 cents.

In general, the Eastern wheat-grower necessarily in direct competition with the West, and he must sell at what are virtually Western prices plus freight charges on the grain, or, at best, on flour.

The conclusion is fairly obvious. Wheat-raising in the East can be made profitable only by the most skillful farming, with a large acreage under cultivation, advanced methods of harvesting, careful fertilizing and the practice of other scientific economies—a small net return may be expected. But the small farmer, who plants only a few acres and harvests his crop with inferior implements, seems actually to be paying more for his wheat then he could buy it for in the open market.

BIG CONFERENCE COMING

Methodist Protestants To Hold General Meeting In Baltimore—Will Discuss Church Union.

Baltimore has been selected as the meeting place of the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church to be held in 1912. After a deliberation of several days the executive committee, which met in Atlantic City last week, selected this city, although several other cities were after the meeting.

The conference will begin in May and it is thought will be held in St. John's Church, St. Paul and Twenty-seventh streets, Baltimore. This church is thought to be the appropriate meeting place, as it was in St. John's Church, on North Liberty street, in 1828 that the first conference of the denomination was held. When the congregation sold the old church it purchased a new site at St. Paul and Twenty-seventh streets and at an expenditure of $60,000 erected the present church.

At the annual conference to be held in April delegates for the General Conference will be elected. It is thought that the Maryland Conference will send 13 or 14 delegates.

The most important question to be discussed at the conference will be the union of Methodism. A committee of nine from the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal South and Methodist Protestant Churches, comprising 27 men, has adopted a paper on this subject which will be read at the conference. The Methodist Episcopal Church will hold its General Conference about May, but the Methodist Episcopal South will not meet in general conference for three years. No matter what decision is reached by the other two denominations, the question is not likely to be finally settled until the conference of the Southern church.

Among the ministers who have taken great interest in bringing the conference to Baltimore are Revs. G. W. Haddaway, J. H. Straughn, Eugene C. Makosky, J. M. Kirk and J. Franklin Bryan.

A Welcome Change

Smoke curling up from the farmhouse chimney as the men are coming in from the fields, gives a pretty suggestion of a good supper and a comfortable home. But it also means a hot, tired woman, working hard over a blazing fire.

Your wife can escape this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection keeps a kitchen many degrees cooler than any other range, yet it does all a coal or wood range can do. It saves time, labor and fuel. No wood to cut; no coal to carry; no ashes; no soot. With the New Perfection oven it is the best cooking device you can find anywhere.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.
