INTERESTING RECORDS.

Rev. H. W. Robinson, rector of Shrewsbury Parish, writes the following interesting item :

Shrewsbury Parish is one of the oldest on the Eastern Shore and the records still in existence date back to the year 1701. The organization of the parish is said to date back to 1693, which is the date on the parish seal, but of those earlier years the records are missing.

When the taxing of bachelors was instituted, I cannot say, but the first mention of it is in the proceedings of the vestry of Shrewsbury parish August, 1757.

From the records of the vestry July 4, 1758, I learn that a copy of the list was given to the collector, the Sheriff of Kent county, Herculon Coutts.

At a meeting of the vestry July 14, 1761, the proceedings recorded are very full, and the list contains the names of 32 bachelors whose estates were valued at sums ranging from £100 to £300.

The bachelors did not always consent to this taxing without protest. At a vestry meeting held in August, 1761, I read that "Philip Warnner appeared to get discharged of his bachelor tax by saying he was not 25 years of age, but refused to qualify to it. William Boyer and John Boyer appeared to get discharged from their bachelor tax by saying that their estates were not worth £300 each, but refused to deliver an inventory. Jacob Comegys applys as above by his letter, which the vestry rejected."

The last record of the tax is under the date of July, 1763, after which time it disappears from the parish records altogether. According to this it would appear that the tax was levied for 6 years.

I think Mr. Zeigler is correct in supposing that the vestry, having fixed on a certain rate for the "taxables," or heads of families, then proceeded to tax the bachelors who had taxable property.

The records of Shrewsbury parish are fascinating reading and show what a power the vestries of the Colonal period wielded.

Typhoid Fever

How to Prevent Its Spread
—ISSUED BY THE—
State Board of Health
OF MARYLAND.

When Typhoid Fever appears in a family the source of the infection must be looked for in drinking water or food taken within the preceding twenty days. The patient may not have been infected at home, but if a second case occurs this second infection will in all probability be traceable in some way to the first patient. In a majority of instances the drinking water has become infected. Your first business, therefore is to find out the quality of your drinking water.

You can do this by asking your local health officer for instruction about shipping us samples of your drinking water. In about a week we will be able to report on the drinking water, but in the meantime the members of the family must not use the raw water. The daily supply of drinking water must be boiled.

The infectious material of typhoid fever is produced in out one way. It grows always in the bowels and sometimes in the bladder. It therefore escapes from the sick person in the stools and urine. If we kill the germs in the stools and urine as soon as they are passed, there can be no spread of typhoid fever. These discharges should, therefore be disinfected as soon as possible. You will need a large quantity of a good disinfecting solution.

Receipt for a Good Disinfectant.

To four gallons of water add enough salt to make a strong brine. Put this in a five-gallon demijohn or jug and add a quart of crude carbolic acid. Shake it up well and you will have a good disinfectant for stools and urine.

The crude carbolic acid, known as U. S. P. 90 per cent. is very good and a quart will cost about 50 cents. There is a cheaper grade, known as a 36 per cent. acid, which is nearly as effective.

About a pint of this solution should be put in the chamber or bed pan before it is used, so that the discharges will begin to be disinfected as soon as they leave the body. There must always be at least as much of the disinfecting solution as there is of the discharges, so that more of the disinfecting solution may need to be added after the discharges are passed. If the stools are thin and watery their disinfection will be accomplished in half an hour or so, but if the stools are thick or formed very much more time will be required. On that accounnt it is best to have a covered jar or bucket into which the bed pan can be emptied, and to empty this jar only once in 24 hours. If the discharges cannot be finally thrown into a sewer, they should be buried in the soil at a convenient spot where is no chance of their fouling a water supply. The discharges should never be thrown upon the surface of the ground, for you will hardly be successful in killing all the typhoid bacilli, and you must not place them where those not killed by the acid may be blown about in the dust or carried away by flies to infect other people.

In spite of every precaution those who wait on the sick person will get their hands infected, and it is therefore necessary to wash the hands every time one does any service about the patient's bed or body. Whoever waits on the patient must not prepare food or drink for other persons in the house, or if it is impossible to mind this rule one must most carefully and thoroughly cleanse the hands before performing any household duty outside the sick room. Good scrubbing with soap, water and a brush, and then rinsing well in fresh water will suffice for cleansing the hands.

If any one else in the house falls sick within two weeks after the first patient, the probability is that the infection was lodged before the precautions were taken in regard to drinking water and the disposal of discharges. But if the second case occurs more than 28 days after the first case, that will signify that we have made a mistake somewhere in our precautions.

DR. HARRY G. SIMPERS,
Secretary Local Board of Health of Kent county, Chestertown, Md. aug13-tf.
