A SAVINGS ACCOUNT
Makes the Sun Shine on Dark Days

¶ THE CHILD who receives an early training in saving small amounts will acquire a habit that will make it natural and easy to save larger amounts in later days.

¶ THE CLERK who saves 50 cents a week will soon have a fund that will start him in a business of his own. The clerk who saves nothing will always be a clerk.

¶ THE SCHOOL TEACHER OR STENOGRAPHER who lays by $1.00 a week out of her salary will have nearly $5,000 to brighten her declining years.

¶ THE FARMER OR MERCHANT who keeps a savings account separated from his business bank account, and deposits a few dollars a week, will be amazed to see how quickly he will have a good sized balance against a rainy day.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE OPENS.

On September 20th, Washington College opened for the 129th session with a good attendance of students. The enrollment will be fully up to the attendance of former years and will probably exceed the records of the past, when all have reported for matriculation. The applicants are mostly for admission to the college proper, and seem to be unusually matured and well prepared. To those interested in the athletic side of the college it will be of interest to know that there are several big men among the new students, and several others who come with some reputation as high school athletes. The outlook for good football material has never been so good.

The new instructors have all reported and taken up their duties. Professor Howell, a graduate of Milligan College and a post graduate of Yale University will be professor of Philosophy and Education. W. Raymond Moody, '09 has been appointed Assistant Professor of Mathematics and Science. James C. Turner, Jr., '10 has been appointed Director of Physical Training and instructor in the college. Mr. Turner is one of the best athletes Washington ever had, being a star player in football, base ball and track. He will introduce method and system into the physical training at the college, and, with his faculty for leadership, will undoubtedly develop teams that will add much to the name and reputation of Washington. The list of new students is as follows:

CAPSIZED IN THE BAY

The schooner C. W. Seward capsized in the Chesapeake Bay Thursday night about three miles to the eastward of Seven Foot Knoll while bound from Centreville, loaded with tomatoes for Baltimore. Capt. Howard Phoebus and his crew, consisting of James H. Carter and Charles Matthews, escaped from the sinking vessel in the schooner's yawl and was afterward picked up by the tug M. Mitchell Davis, which landed them safely at Fort Howard.

The Seward sailed from Centreville at 9 o'clock Thursday night with about 1,300 baskets of tomatoes, consigned to the Gibbs Packing Company. When within a short distance of Seven Foot Knoll a sudden squall struck the vessel, which carried her over, hardly allowing time for those on board to escape in the yawl, which, fortunately, was being towed astern.

For three hours the three men were adrift in the yawl, which was without oars, and the frail craft was at the mercy of the heavy wind and rising sea. Fortunately, along about three o'clock they were sighted by the master of the tug M. Mitchell Davis and their prompt rescue from peril effected.

The capsized schooner when last seen was lying on her starboard side about three miles east of Seven Foot Knoll. When she capsized all the cargo on deck went overboard and all that remains on the vessel now are a few baskets in the hold.

The Seward is owned by parties in Baltimore and for the past few weeks has been engaged in plying between Centreville in the tomato trade. She is a small vessel of 18 gross and 17 net tons register. Her dimensions are 58 feet long, 15.7 feet beam and 3 feet deep. She was built in 1881 at Madison, Dorchester county. Charles W. Lewis has been engaged to float the vessel and bring her to port, where she will be placed on a marine railway for repairs.
