It gives me great pleasure to understand that Worthy is doing so well. Hugh Cameron after he left the office, went to John Shaw & staid with him only about two Months when he left that. I suppose the reason was, his old infatuation, you would not know him if you saw him now, if you write him soon ~~you can~~. perhaps it might do him your advice good. but I am much afraid poor fellow he is over. he still lives with his Father, It hurts my feelings every time I see him to think what he has brought upon himself & Family. but advice from me is useless -, I think the appearance of affairs here at present, is very bad. Government won't allow the Catholics to have publick meetings now. & have arrested some of the principal people in Dublin just now on that head, & therefore I think, if it is continued the people will be apt to be as bad as in year 1798 - but God forbid such event should happen. ~~but~~ it is however generally thought such will be the case I have mentioned every particular, that I think of at present, & when you are next writing to this Country I hope you will not forget your affectionate friend

Remain &c

Walter Macfarlan

Belfast 28. August 1811