Dear Sir

York 9th March 1815

I Rec.d your second Letter & note its Contents, Mr Robinson spoke to me to day about the Bill, he has tried several ways to pass it, but without Effect he even desired it to be done at 2 or 3 pCt below par (which diff.e he would have lost) but could not do it, he is very much vex'd at the Idea of sending it back, but as he cannot get any of his connexions to take it from him, it becomes of no use to him. — I would not wish to dictate to you, who in most matters can form a very correct opinion of your own, but I have no doubt that your making it payable in London would save you two or three pCent each Time, & would not cost Mr Napier more than ½ pCent & as he could now pay it thro' the medium of one of the Belfast Bankers. the Trouble to him would be very trifling
