Agricultural Course Urged For Kent High Schools

On Monday evening, Nov. 12, Dr. J. D. Blackwell, State Director of Vocational Education, addressed the P. T. A. of the Chestertown High School at the high school. The theme of Dr.Glackyell's address dealt with the possibility of instituting a course in agricultural in the local high school. He pointed out very clearly that such a course is an absolute necessity in a rural community,such as this, and showed that such a course can be had at practically no additional cost to the county. The speaker explained that the colleges and universities were admitting graduates in agriculture as well as those who take the academic course. The talk was very interesting and inspiring and it is hoped that the course may be instituted in the near future so that the boys of Kent county may obtain a scientific education in farming.

Game Scarce As Season Goes Into Second Week

Duckers Disappointed. . . Rabbit Hunters Get Best Shooting . . . Dr. Conley Bags Geese Limit

Robinson only bagged two birds the first day. Jonathan Jones. of Millington, returned last week from a successful trip to Pennsylvania where he and his friends killed sixty grouse, one of the finest game birds to be found.

Chestertown gunners shooting from Turkey Point on Kent Island bagged only nine ducks at the first day's shooting, while practically the same reports were made from other sections.

Those in the party were: Paul R. Feldie, William Blunt,Jr., Wm. H. Green and Trippe Callahan. The trip is considered one of the most successful ever made by Queen Anne's hunters for deer.

The goose that laid the golden egg had nothing on the duck Uncle Dick Harvey, of Easton, shot last Thursday—according to Uncle Dick and a "white gent'man expert," who assayed the yellow flecked "innards" of Uncle Dick's duck.

It was while he was preparing the duck for dinner that Uncle Dick found the 'li'l yallow gravels" that aroused his interest and hope. Now he is assured that his was a gold bearing duck which probably flew there from some distant, gold-mining country.

So far Uncle Dick has not sold this gold. He's been too busy hunting for more ducks.

Rev. Frank White introduced the Bishop and Dr. Litsinger, Rev. Mr. Atwater and Rev. Ivanhoe Willis took part in the program. The audience included a bus load from Millington.
