Norway's Capital

The ancient name of Norway's capital was Oslo, and according to Norwegian tradition was founded in 1048 by King Harald Haardraade. In 1624 the city was destroyed by fire and King Christian IV rebuilt it on the opposite side of the Aker river and named it Kristiania, or Christiania in English. After the World war a movement began in Norway to have the name of the capital changed back to Oslo. This was accomplished on July 11, 1924. After January 1, 1925, the official name of the capital was Oslo.
