The Mischief That Rumor Does.

"The manner in which reports about anything become exaggerated as they travel from mouth to mouth on the shoulders of babbling rumor was conspicuously exemplified in my town ten years ago," said O. J. Elgin, of Akron, O. "About 9 o'clock one morning a runaway horse dashed through the plate glass window of one of the biggest banks in the city. The incident, of course, caused considerable excitement for a moment, and as the news of it spread through town some nervous and excitable individual connected the words 'run' and 'bank' in an ominous way. This idiot soon was convinced that there was a run on the bank, and he so told all the shop people in his neighborhood. That was enough. Nothing more was needed. By 12 o'clock that day there were hundreds of money mad and frenzied men and women around that bank scrambling to withdraw their deposits.

"The broken plate glass window only served to increase their excitement, and all attempts by the bank officials to explain the situation were howled down. By the closing hour in the afternoon thousands of dollars had been drained from the vaults of the bank, and but for other banks coming to the assistance of the unfortunate institution that night by distributing circulars around the city telling depositors that they (the other banks) would cash all checks properly certified on the bank with the broken plate glass window the run would have continued the next day and resulted in 'busting' the bank, for there is no institution that can withstand a run without warning."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Leading Him On.

A clever ruse was that adopted by counsel, who afterward attained to distinction, who had to examine a witness in a disputed will case. One of the witnesses to the will was the deceased man's valet, who swore that after signing his name at the bidding of his master he then, also acting under instructions, carefully sealed the document by means of the taper by the bedside.

The witness was induced to describe every minute detail of the whole process, the exact time, the position of the taper, the size and quality of the sealing wax, "which," said the counsel, glancing at the document in his hand, "was of the ordinary red description?"

"Red sealing wax, certainly," answered the witness.

"My lord," said the counsel, handing the paper to the judge, "you will please observe that it was fastened with a wafer."—London Tit-Bits.

Wonderful Work of Bees.

Bees must, in order to collect a pound of clover honey, deprive 62,000 clover blossoms of their nectar. To do this the 62,000 flowers must be visited by an aggregate of 3,750,000 bees; or, in other words, to collect his pound of honey one bee must make 3,750,000 trips from and to the hive. The enormous amount of work here involved precludes the idea of any one bee ever living long enough to gather more than a fraction of a pound of nectarine sweets.

As bees are known to fly for miles in quest of suitable fields of operation, it is clear that a single ounce of honey represents millions of miles of travel. It is no wonder that these industrious little insects have earned the reputation of being "busy" bees.—St. Louis Republic.

A Bottomless Pot.

An East Side dealer in New York was lately made the object of a swindle that was rather novel and original. A middle aged woman came into his store one day carrying on her arm a large basket, in which was a pot with a lid. She placed the basket on the floor, made numerous purchases, had her bill counted up, and then carefully put all her articles into the pot and replaced the lid with the greatest caution. She next asked permission of the store keeper to leave the articles in his care, as she wished to do a little more shopping in the neighborhood, promising to return in the course of an hour.

This request was willingly acceded to, and lifting the pot out of the basket she carried it carefully to a corner, where it would be out of the way, set it down, and again slipping the basket under her arm, left the store, after profusely thanking the man for his kindness. Hours went by, but the woman failed to call for her precious pot. At last, when closing time came, a salesman went over to the corner for the purpose of placing the earthen ware in a safer place, and quickly discovered that, like a certain locality to which sinners are supposed to be consigned after death, it was bottomless. The mere mention of a pot is now sufficient reason to cause the victimized dealer to go into convulsions.—House Furnishing Review.

Bear's Gall Is Worth Money.

A bear's gall was recently sent to a gentleman in this city as a slight token of esteem from an intimate and dear friend in the country, with the suggestion that it might possess a pecuniary value in the Chinese language. Thinking that it was intended to imply that he lacked gall, our city gentleman threw it in the street. Soon afterward a Chinaman came in, and, on being interrogated, offered one dollar for it.

The work of redeeming it by a side door occupied one minute, and the price obtained was two dollars. They are considered very valuable by Chinese physicians, and are much sought after. We now quote bear's gall in fair demand, with limited supply; political gall abundant, with few takers.—El Paso Herald.

Consumption Cure

An old physician, retired from practice having had placed in his hands by an East India Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by his motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. Noyes, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Messrs. Bowes & Hall.

Managers Equitable Life Assurance Society, Baltimore, Md.,

Gentlemen—It gives me pleasure to express my appreciation of your company's promptness in paying claims, the check you sent me having been drawn the day the proofs reached the home office. I was surprised to find that the amount of the policy on my father's life, originally $5000, had been increased $2000 by dividends added to its face value.

The above facts speak for themselves and need no comment to emphasize the value of a policy in the Equitable.

Very Truly Yours,
Wm. H. Adkins.
