Washington College.

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Washington College in another column. Ninety-six students have been in attendance during the past year. A new gymnasium, contributed by the citizens of Chestertown and old students at a cost of $1,200, with an equipment worth $500, furnished by the Board of Governors and Visitors is one of the attractions of next year It will be in charge of a thoroughly trained instructor. A co-operative boarding club has been established in the college, by means of which the total expenses of a student can be reduced to $125 and $135. Twenty-one students were members of this club during the past year, The course of study as shown by the catalogue will compare favorably with that of the best catalogues of the country.

We are glad to bear testimony to the fact that our Eastern Shore college is fast gaining the reputation of being one of the best, as well as the cheapest colleges in the State.

Death of Robert B. Jump.

Robert B. Jump died at his home in Dover, July 27. He was 89 years of age.

The deceased was born near Sandtown, Kent county, in 1803, and had been a member of the Masonic order for 67 years. He was an active member of the order in Greensborough, Md., until the lodge there was disbanded during the excitement to the disappearance of Morgan of 1829, and afterward assisted in the reorganization of Union Lodge, No 7. of Dover, and has been in active membership during all of its subsequent history. He was treasurer of the lodge for several years.

He was the oldest Mason in the state and one of the oldest in the United States, and one of three living charter members of Union Lodge. The remaining charter members are John A. Nicholson, of Dover, and George W. S. Nicholson, of Seaford. His remains were buried at 3.30 o'clock on Friday afternoon, July 29.
