Dear Sir

I received your kind letter yesterday, with your friendly enquiries respecting our Brother Jeremiah, who has been very unwell for some weeks: as some of the symptoms of his disease are similar to those of Poor Stevenson's, it has given us great alarm & anxiety. he does not improve much, but continues very much in one state; he is at present very weak, with a quick & changeable pulse with some feverishness, but entirely free of all pain: we trust & hope that he will soon improve & be able to get about again.

I have received a letter from W. Scanlan respecting employment & have written to
