In an age of fraud and adulteration, is is certainly gratifying to know that such an extensively-used preparation as Ayer's Sarsaparilla may be implicity relied upon. It never varies either in quality, appearance, or effect, but is always up to the standard.

A serious fire occurred at Federalsburg on Monday last. The house owned by F. P. Covey, situated near Wright's mill, was entirely destroyed. Mr. Charles Wright who occupied the property, through the efforts of the citizens saved nearly all his household goods. It is supposed the fire originated from a spark from the mill. Mr. Covey's loss will be about $800, partially covered by insurance. The citizens deserves great credit for their prompt action as that alone saved the town from a disastrous fire as the wind was blowing a stiff breeze at the time.

Mr. Harvey L. Cooper returned to school at St. John's College, Annapolis, on Sunday's steamer.

Lady Avon 2.42 3-4.

Marydel Correspondent.

Last Friday, Sept. 25rd, Mr F. G. Slemmer's mare, Lady Avon, paced a mile at Dover in 2.48½ and repeated in 2.42¾. While this is not so very fast in these times of Nancy Hanks 2.05¼, Hal Pointer 2.05½ and other flyers, yet we believe it is the fastest record ever made by a four year old colt foaled and raised in Coroline county, and we are proud of it. Then it is a remarkable performance when it is known that but two months ago this mare could not go a mile at any one gait in four minutes. Up to Juiy last she was a mixed gaited trotter, very hard to manage and to keep at any one gait, but by careful and patient training, her owner converted her to the pace and now she is the smoothest and prettiest pacer ever seen in this part of the country Her gait is rapid and very close to the ground, without a false move or any lost motion and the expert horsemen who witnessed her performance at Dover predict that she will pace in 2 30 or better inside of three weeks, or at any rate before the ground freezes.

Mr. Haden who drove her at Dover says there seems to be no limit to her speed, always some more back, when spoken to she springs forward at such a rapid gait it is necessary to coax her back.

She was sired by Avonmore, one of the very best sons of the great Strathmore; her dam was old Polly Temple, a little roach back mare less than 14 hands high, but in her younger days she could pace a mile in about 3.10 and was a first class roadster. Mr. Slemmer has not as yet been able to establish old Polly's breeding, but it is supposed she is by Kennedy's Moscow.

This feat of Lady Avon was performed in the rain and with a heavy wind blowing directly in her face while coming up the stretch.

'Tis Even More Than That.

The modern family newspaper must be more than a chronicler of passing events. Besides full and detailed accounts of the world's happenings, its columns must be replete with articles of a miscellaneous character of interest and merit. The family newspaper of to-day, to be a success, must produce a diversified class of matter that furnishes entertainment to all classes. All these qualifications are embodied in Pennsylvania Grit, that peer of illustrated newspapers, published at Williamsport Pa., and whose true merit has won for it a place among the leading journals of this country. Agents and newsboys are wanted in every village and town in the United States, not already supplied, to sell GRIT. Good agents and newsboys make from 50 cents to $5 every Saturday selling GRIT. For free sample copy and full particulars, address GRIT PUBLISHING COMPANY, Williamsport, Pa.

EDITORIAL LETTER.

From Portland, Maine, we took the Maine Central Railroad for the White Mountains in New Hampshire. Here occurred the first hitch or trouble, as regarded transportation for our party. Through some misunderstanding, or lack of instructions, the agent at the station seemed rather uncivil, at least some of our party so construed his "pert" answers to those who had the matter in hand. After a delay of some half hour and the holding of a train for the purpose of getting matters settled, we finally were informed that a car was placed at our disposal and it was soon filled by the members of our association,

From this point commenced the most pleasant part of our trip, not that the other portions of the trip had not been thoroughly enjoyed by our party, but from this point our course lay through a mountain valley interspersed with mountain lakes and streams, where the grandeur of nature could be viewed in its different forms as we were whirled through mountain gorges, or along the shore of some mountain lake. The landscape was ever changing from the fertile plain and villages to the grand and majestic mountain gorges where the railroad is cut through the granit rocks, or winding along the mountain stream. Among the many beautiful bodies of water we passed as we wended our way up the valley were the twin lakes, two beautiful bodies of water resembling each other in every respect, yet entirely distinct from each other, only that they were connected by a small stream. Another beautiful body of water, Sabago Lake, was also passed. There our train stopped for a few minutes, long enough for some of our party to secured souvenirs, of our trip from its shores in the many rare stones which were found along the water edge which were greedily gathered by the relic hunters.

As we neared a place called north Conway, in New Hampshire, a pleasant surprise was in store for us. Mr. Boothby, superintendent of the Maine Central Railroad, having got on our train at one of the stations at which we stopped, on learning that our party was on board came into our car and made himself known. He informed our party that anything he could do to make our trip a pleasant one, while on the line of his road he would cheerfully do. To say that we found him a gentleman in every sense of the word is only putting it mildly. He informed us that there was a Coaching parade at North Conway that day and if our party desired he would make arrangements for us to stop off and see the parade aud take a later train for Fabyan, which was our destination, and that he would have a "special" meet our party the next afternoon and take it to Portland in time for the evening boat to Boston. By this means our party was enabled to see the Coaching parade, (which by the way was a novelty to our entire party) and were also enabled to go to the top of Mount Washington, which would not have been the case had not Mr. Boothby placed the special at the parties disposal. The entire party availed themselves of the superitendent's offer and got off at North Conway. The parade had just started as train arrived and our party only had to go a short distance to the Kersarge House where they could witness the entire procession as it passed in review before the Judges stand situated near the hotel. The procession was one of the grandest as well as the most novel we ever witnessed. The mountain Coaches, from all the summer resorts in the mountains for a distance of forty miles away were here and each hotel with its guests tried to send the best decorated coach to this parade, no expense was spared by the proprietors of the hotels or their guests in the decorations of their coaches, all were finely decorated, some of the four and six horses ones were loaded to their utmost capacity with the guests of the hotels from which they came. It was estimated that there were over 10,000 people who witnessed the parade and that from 50 to 75 coaches with two to six horses attached participated in this parade. Each coach or party in it had a song or cry similiar to the college students society cry, which they sang as they passed in review.

North Conway situated in the heart of the White Mountains about 35 miles from Mount Washington, is one of the noted resorts of this region. Mount Kersarge lifts its lofty peak in the distance and is one of the noted peakes of this region, something over 4000 feet above sea level.

After the parade was over and the prizes awarded we took the train for Fabyan at the foot of Mount Washington. Among the most noted peakes which we viewed as we passed up the valley between the mountain ranges were Mount Webster, Mount Willard, Mount Cannon, Eagle Cliffe, Jackson, and many others we have not time to mention. In going up to the foot of Mount Washington over a mountain gorge we passed the Frankenstein tressel where it seems as though the train was passing through the air, as the tressel work, which is of steel, is so slight that the web work cannot be seen from the car window and the tops of the trees are far below you as you pass over. Here too the ascent is so great that it took two of those powerfnl mountain locomotives to take our train up to what is known as the Summit. Another noted place in our ascent is the Crawford Notch. This is a notch in the mountain that the railroad passes through where it seems as though the rocks on either side were hundreds of feet high and only room for the train to pass between.

Arriving at Fabyan arrangements were at once made for those of our party who wished to go to the top of Mount Washington, about 50 of the party availed themselves of the opportunity. The ascent to the top of the mountain. (6300 feet above sea level) while it is said to be perfectly safe, looks like a hazardous undertaking. The ascent from the foot of the mountain is made by rail on what is known as the cog-wheel road, that is the railroad has three rails, the middle rail is fitted with cog-wheel machinery and each locomotive takes a single car. The ascent is slow and takes about an hour and a quarter to reach the top, about 3½ miles. Those of our party who made the ascent stayed all night on the top of the mountain. The weather was quite cool and overcoats and wraps were one of the requisites of the trip. The view from the top is said to be grand beyond description and our party was highly favored as it was perfectly clear, no mist hanging around the mountain brow as is usually the case and a vistor to the top is fortunate indeed if he gets an uninterrupted view from the top as was the case with our party. The party came down early in morning and enjoyed a pleasant stroll among the foot hills around Fabyan. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon we took the train for Portland. The special which had been promised met us at a station a short distance below Fabyan and speedily took us to Portlaud where we were to take the steamer for Boston and then home. The businese meeting of the association took place on top of Mount Washington where its officers for the ensuing year were elected.

We cannot close these letters without returning our thanks to Mr. Boothby and his able assistance, Mr. Wm. E. Wood, of the Maine Central Railroad, who rendered so much valuabie aisistance to our party while in the mountains; to Proprietors of the American for their courteous treatment of our party while in Boston; the managers of the Phliadelphia and New England Railroad which so generously placed their cars at our disposal and to the executive commitee, especially Mr. H. C. Carpenter who had the management of the excursion, for his uniform kindness in looking after the comfort of all who enjoyed this, one of the most pleasant of the many enjoyable excursions participated in by our association.
