Death of Marion R. Pippin.

Marion R. Pippin, well known to most of the business men of the county, through business intercourse with them during the several years he was engaged in the National Bank of this place, died at six o'clock on Monday evening at the residence of his father-in-law, Robert J, Jump, Esq.

Mr. Pippin entered the bank in this place as book-keeper soon after it was established and served with the utmost satisfaction for a number of years. His books were always models of neatness and correctness in which he took great pride.

He left Denton to take a position in a Bank, in Baltimore, at a salary of $1,000 per year, where he remained until failing health compelled him to resign. Since leaving the city Mr. Pippin has made his home with his brother, Trustin Pippin, near Ridgely, and with the parents of his wife in this place.

Scarcely a week ago he was on the street and the end came even more quickly than his friends expected He died of consumption, after having suffered with patience and resignation for more than a year. His relatives will have the sympathy of his many friends by whom he was held in high esteem.

Chicago Letter.

For the "UNION."

Perhaps never in history has the world seen such decorations as it has witnessed during this past in Chicago. From centre to circumferance, from basement to the highest tower, from Government Buildings, to the humblest cottage of this vast city, has been one blaze of color. Our national colors red, white and blue, mingled with the red and yellow of Spain, together with flags of all nations, with a beautiful display of Chicago colors, terra-cotta and White made one grand effect. Banners bearing the word "Welcome" "Chicago Welcome the World" "1492-1892" pictures of Columbus and our own heroes could be seen on all sides; look where you would naught but colors of the brightest hue greeted the eye, for Chicago is literally wrapped in stars and stripes, and the brilliant colors of other nations.

Chicago has indeed entertained and right royally too, all nations of the earth not only the doors of every hotels but private residences in the city have been thrown open to visitors. Chicago has done her best; but that best was inadequate to the crowds who flocked here to attend the dedication of the World's Fair Buildings and to witness the magnificent parades held during the week. "Not even room for a grip" was the cry of the Hotel men, and still the visitors came by thousands. Excursion trains from north and south, east and west were constantly arriving with their loads of enthusiatic visitors.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday all business was practically suspended and Chicago devoted herself to sight seeing, entertainment of her guests, and participation in all the events of each day.

Thursday the great civic parade took place.

The columns of the UNION would hardly suffice to tell the whole story of this and the other days of this great celebration. Comfort was out of the question; no one had any higher thought than personal safety, and at night, crushed hats and torn clothes told the story of the dreadful jam. The representatives of all nations marched, bands played and the crowds cheered themselves hoarse.

On Friday the military parade was among the interesting features, 12,000 men were in line at one time. The governors of the different states passed in carriages, McKinley probably received more cheering than any other governor unless perhaps it was the governor of this state. When Governor Brown passed your correspondent was the only Marylander in our crowd, and my handkerchief waving was acknowledged by a graceful bow and tip of the hat. Many of the Governors with their full staffs were on horseback. McKinly rode a manificent black. Many rode in carriages and the different states to which they belonged were indicated by printed cards upon the door panels. As Governor Peck, of Wisconsin, passed, some one yelled out, "What's the matter with 'Peck's Bad Boy?'" and the answer came ringing back, "Spooner's got him."

The Fair grounds were eventually reached and the dedicatory services begins by the offering of prayer by Bishop Fowler.

Henry Watterson, of Kentucky, delivered the dedicatory address and Chauncy M. Depew the Columbian oration. The exercises closed with prayer by Cardinal Gibbons. Many of the daily papers of the city have been printed with stripes of red and blue running through the paper and some on Terra Cotta colored paper. These are scenes of a life-time, probably never equalled before and quite likely not to be equalled again for years.

Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure is warranted to give satisfaction in every case or money returned. Sold by George & Redden-

Maryland Dashes.

——Gov. Brown has appointed Joseph Malilieu supervisor of election for Queen Anne's county in place of E. B, Pierce, deceasd.

——Wild ducks arriving are on the Susquehanna flats in a large numbers. Most of the ducks now there are baldpates, although many red heads are also to be seen. Plenty of celery and other grasses are said to be on the flats and in the river.

——It is reasonable to suppose that as Ayer's Sarsaparalia has benefited others it will benefit you. No other medicine is as effective in producing a radical change in the blood and imparting renewed life and energy to the whole system, both nervous and physical.

——However solicitous mothers may be about the health and comfort of their little children they cannot prevent them contracting croup and whooping-cough. But while they cannot prevent their troubles they can readily cure the little ones with Dr. Bull's cough Syrup.

——There are about 100 more pupils in attendance upon the public schools in Cambridge this year than last. The blessings of free education are yearly extending, and the school commissioners have made admirable arrangements for accommodating all scholars. There is no excuse for ignorance in these days.

——Goff, known as the "razzle" bigamist, was convicted at Chestertown last week of bigamy and sentenced by Judge Wickes to five years in the penitentiary. Goff located the past summer in Chestertown and started a merry-go-around, and in a few months thereafter married a young lady of that town, and removed to Baltimore a few weeks after the nuptials were celebrated. Wife No. 1 put in appearance with two children shortly after Goff's departure with wife No. 2, and finding what had taken place had a writ issued for his arrest. This was accomplished and Goff lodged in Chestown jail and tried with results above named.

——The corner-stone of the new Methodist Protestant Church at Mt. Pleasant, Worcester county, has been laid. The subscription amounted to nearly $4,000. The new church will be finish with brick, with marble trimmings on the outside. It will cover an area of 60 feet by 100 feet, 18 feet corner height, slate roof, of modern style of architecture. The inside will be divided into three separate apartments—audience room, class room and Sunday school room. The seating capacity will be about 1,000. The building when completed will cost about $20,000.

——It has been five weeks since there has been any rain of any account in Talbot county, and everything is as dry as tinder. Monday Gen. E. L F. Hardcastle's woods caught fire on his home farm, "Leehaven," and many acres of valuable timber was burned. The fire spread to the surrounding field, burning plank fences and corn in the shock. The fire reached the cornfields of Radcliffe Manor, the home of Senator Gibson, adjoining, and burned the board fences and about twenty-five or thirty barrels of corn in the shock. Senator Gibson with coat off, fought the flames manfully, and assisted in saving the mansion and outbuildings on the farm. The wind was blowing a stiff breeze from the northwest.
