Balto 7th Mar 1834

Edward my dear father arrived yesterday & sold his oats 51 bls at 37½ which I & father think was a cent or cent & half above the market price He sold 49 bs on the road at 37½ subject to a rise of higher here

I had a conversation with the stove man he thinks the plates were lost in the waggon however he sends a pair, a new iron pot & a lid for it which last was forgotten & then all is complete as he furnishes — You have all the lids to which you are entitled, one to each set of reflectors, & the intention is for instance when you take off the steamer you must take its lid off & put it on the iron pot on which it sits — he changed the roasting for a reflector & gave a tin pan in. — There is no pot for the coffee pot place only a lid to cover the hole — no broiling iron given in, they did so formerly when on a different plan

I am afraid you have not put it up right you had better put your arm into the different holes & feel if there is not an aperture somewhere that should not be, you might have lost a plate in the waggon, I dare say you got all, better examine it closer or get Helman to look at it — I send you yesterdays patriot containing a report of the conversation had with Mr Taney & Genl S, by the committee from here on the bank subject — You forgot to change your paper whilst here I believe — Tell Rogers I rec'd his remittance,

When last in Annapolis I consulted with Wharton but he told me the committee had done nothing yet & as to a repeal which Price advised it would be impracticable

Dear Sir

After my best respects to yourself & family — I inform you that the bearer is the man I recommended to you as a suitable person to take charge of your Brine Yard — from his general character I have no doubt but he will suit you

Yours respectfully
