I had sent you your money long previously, & on finding Sam had deceived me in the business, I gave the letter for you I allude to into Mr. Dunvills hands myself & he told me he gave it & the money to Mr. Barnett the same day — It now turns out you have got nothing yet & my Dear Uncle when I say to you that my Father made one of the worst Selections that Man could make of Trustees, I offer this little fact in proof that I am not making a misstatement. at the time of his Death all his money was in the hands of Saml Napier, & all his other Property passed into the hands of his Trustees — His Debts were so trifling you may believe as scarcely to be worth naming — by his will they took precedence of every other charge upon his property, & were the first things to be paid, & they are not paid yet —

I was appointed one of my Fathers Executors against my own wish, but at his earnest request, as to use his own words, he depended on me to see the trusts of his will carried into effect. No part of his property passed into my hands. Sam Napier being an Executor as well as myself held on what was in his hands, & the Trustees took all the freehold. One of these Trustees, Mr. Amesly, left every thing to his Co. Trustee, Mr. Dunvill — Dunvill entered into private arrangements with Sam, in direct opposition to the nature of his trusts. He is a weak minded, ambitious man, who wished the public to believe that my father was entirely indebted to him for the fortune he left behind him, & that the disposal of it & management of the family rested solely with him — Saml became a heavy Defaulter & involved Dunvill — they then joined together to buy & throw this default on me — I purchased Joseph Napiers part of the property from him at time of my father's death, paying him part Cash in hand & giving my Bond at 2 years date for the balance. Joseph made a foolish Marriage & passed the Bond to his wife's friends. I have never yet got the possession of this property from the Trustees in whose hands it was, but when my Bond fell due I was arrested & have been kept in prison nearly three years for that & some Debts of my Fathers I gave my security for after his Death, supposing I would receive the funds to meet them. I received 3 letters from you at different times long after they were written. fully concurring in all you said I sent one of those letters to the parties by a Clergyman, stating my wish to act up to the advice — again & again & again have I offered to leave every matter to disinterested arbitrators & expressed my willingness to submit to any Sacrifices — You have no idea what misery the whole business has cost me. People know little or nothing of the real facts of the Case just now, but a short time will now bring them to light, & if I am the erring Party, let me fall in your
