DENTON, MARYLAND:

THURSDAY MORNING:::::January 27, 1870.

THE PRESENT Board of Police Commissioner for Baltimore city has been continued.

THE assent of but one more State is required before the XVth Amendment will become a part of our fundamental law. The Legislature of Nebraska will convene in special session early in February, when the assent of that State will undoubtedly be given, thus making up the requisite two-thirds of all the States.

VIRGINIA has been restored to her former position in the sisterhood of States. The Senate bill for the re-admission of the State passed the House on Monday, and it has been sent to the President for his approval, which will undoubtedly be given. Some idea of the conditions upon which the State was re-admitted can be formed from our Congressional summary.

GOING IN FOR FOR "STAMPS."—Among one of the first acts of the present Legislature of Maryland was the passage of an order allowing each member forty dollars' worth of postage stamps. Both houses consist of 111 members, which make the aggregate amount expended $4440, which will buy 148,000 stamps, and gives each member one thousand three hundred and thirty-three. Now, is it likely that any single member will use that number of stamps, or that all the members together will use 148,000? We call this going in for the "stamps" pretty heavily, and have no doubt some members will have stamps enough to last them as long as they live.

The Treasuryship.

The general reader is doubtless well acquainted with the result of the election for State Treasurer, which took place at Annapolis last week. It is generally known that Mr. Merryman, of Baltimore county, outstripped his competitor in the race—Robt. Fowler—one the friend of the Potomac and other railroads in the state; the other the champion of that merciless and greedy corporation, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad—the one the advocate and exponent of a Free Railroad system;—the other the protector and defender of a monopoly, which knows no right only as it makes the right, and which concedes no justice only as comports with its own aggrandizement.

The war between the rival factions has been a long and exciting one. It began away back in the nominating convention for a State Comptroller, and even before that time, and ever since has been increasing in bitterness. At the outset, the Baltimore & Ohio corporation seemed to be in the ascendancy, and its money flowed as free as water. Perhaps some of our Democratic friends in this county bathed in the stream, and can even yet relate the marvellous healing powers it possessed.

But the contest, although carried on exclusively by Democrats, was not utterly devoid of principle; and it is that principle alone which causes us, in common with other Republicans, to feel any interest in the matter. For several years the State has been cursed by a corporation which wielded the power of the State, and shaped and directed its policy. It was the avowed enemy of all railroads, especially competing ones, and so strong and powerful had it become as to be actually dangerous. Like the Camden & Amboy, of New Jersey, it had power to do as it pleased, and would, ere long, we doubt not, have pursued a policy similar to that corporation, by compelling the abandonment of the Potomac railroad and the tearing up of its track.

What made the matter still worse was the fact that the Board of Public Works, composed of the Govorner, the Comptroller and the Treasurer was evenly divided before the election, with the preponderance rather in favor of the Governor, who was President of the Potomac road, which is a competing road for the travel between Baltimore and Washington. The election of Treasurer must, therefore, decide the victory, and each party entered the arena with a determination to win at all hazards. The friends of the Potomac road carried the day, and we trust will follow up their victory by, as Mr. Merrick expresses it, "teaching the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad that it is not the master of the State, but only its creature." We have no patience or sympathy with monopolies, and always account their defeat as a public blessing. We want no monopolies. Heaven knows the interests of our State are already languishing enough, without being crippled by monopolies. We want a free railroad law so as to grant to anyone having the means, the free and undisputed right to construct these arteries of trade, provided always they pay an equivalent for damages, without asking permission of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, or any one else, to do so. When we have arrived at this point of Republican liberty, we may then feel assured that ours is not an oligarchic government, but that every man may invest his wealth in whatever way to him seemeth best.

THE last Legislature of Delaware passed an act applicable to Sussex county forbidding the killing of partridges in the night time under a penalty of $2 for every partridge so killed, and every one found in the fields with dog, gun or net, between 8 o'clock at night and 7 in the morning, with any partridges in their possession, shall be deemed to have killed them unles they prove to the contrary. Acts were also passed prohibiting any person taking terrapins in Indian River or Rehoboth Bay, unless the under shell measures four inches, under a penalty of $10, one-half to the informer. Also prohibiting the use of dredges in catching terrapins in the same River and Bay, under a penalty of $20.

Congressional.

In the United States Senate on the 17th Mr. Sumner reported a bill preserving to this Government equal rights in all telegraphic cables landed within its jurisdiction, and prohibiting companies from consolidating or combining to fix their tariffs without the consent of the Postmaster General. The House bill for the immediate and unconditional admission of Virginia was taken up, and after being substituted for that under debate in the Senate, was read the second time. Mr. Edmunds offered an amendment requiring the members of the Legislature and the State officers to take the oath prescribed by the Fourteenth Amendment, but without taking a vote the Senate adjourned. In the House Mr. Butler, of Tennessee, offered a resolution declaring all acts, except judicial, which have been done by any Legislature disqualified under the Fourteenth Amendment, as null and void. A number of resolutions were passed calling for information from the Departments on various points. Several Western members offered amendments to the Apportionment bill, in order to obtain for their States the increase of representation in the next Congress, none of which were acted upon.

In the United States Senate on the 18th a discussion took place upon the California whiskey seizures, after which the remainder of the session was occupied with debate upon the Virginia bill. In the House the bill to transfer the Philadelphia Navy Yard to League Island was taken up, and Mr. Dawes made it the pretext for an extended speech in condemnation of the expenditures of the Government, and charging an extravagance upon the present Administration in lieu of the retrenchment that had been promised. The bill for the apportionment of State representation in the next House was debated without action.

In the United States Senate on the 19th the presentation of memorials in favor of the abolition of the franking privilege brought out some remarks upon the proposition, in which a majority of the members speaking showed a decided sentiment for its abolition. The bill for the admission of Virginia was further debated, and the amendment offered by Mr. Edmunds adopted. This amendment does not delay the immediate admission of the State, but provides that members of the Legislature who have taken oaths as various officers prior to the rebellion and afterwards engaged in it shall not hold their positions unless relieved of their disabilities by Congress. With this amendment the bill was adopted—yeas 45, nays 16—and will now have to go back to the House of Representatives for its action. In the House the Committee on Pensions was directed to inquire into the expediency of a bill providing that no invalid pensioners shall be deprived of their pensions during the time they are employed in the civil service of the United States. The bill to remove the navy yard from Philadelphia to League Island, in the Delaware river, being under discussion, Mr. Kelly and Mr. Dickey took occasion to defend the Administration from the charges of extravagance in its estimates which were made on Tuesday by Mr. Dawes. Mr. Dickey argued that if any extravagance existed it was caused by bills passed by Congress for which appropriations were necessary, and not by the action of President Grant or his Cabinet. A resolution was adopted declaring the meaning of the Income Tax law to be that all persons are liable for the payment of tax on incomes accruing up to the end of the year 1870. The Pension and West Point Millitary Academy Appropriation bills were discussed, but not voted upon. The former appropriates $30,000,000 and the latter $315,260.

In the United States Senate on the 20th Mr. Anthony presented a communication from the Governor of Rhode Island, tendering the statue of General Nathaniel Greene, of Revolutionary fame. Mr. Sumner offered resolution of acceptance, which were adopted. Mr. Ramsey introduced a bill to establish a postal telegraph under the control of the Postmaster General, which was laid over for future action. The bill for the admission of Virginia was talked over during the afternoon, and much time consumed in fillibustering. The agreement was finally made to take the vote at four o'clock on Friday. In the House several important bills were referred to various committees. The League Island bill came under debate, and was again made the cover for the arguments and assertions of members in regard to the expenses of the Government. Mr. Scofield very sharply reviewed Mr. Dawes' speech of Tuesday, made some personal statements regarding him, and entered into a general defence of the expenditures of this Administration. A motion to print the report of Mr. Wells, Special Commissioner of Internal Revenne, brought on a general discussion as to the correctness of his statements and deductions regarding the tariff and and manufactures. The House finally resolved to print the document.

The United States Senate on the 22d took up the Virginia bill, and several hours were occupied in a personal quarrel between Mr. Trumbull and Mr. Sumner. Afterwards the Senate came down to the pending question, and the amendments of Mr. Drake were adopted, providing that the Constitution of Virginia shall never be altered so as to deprive those now entitled to the franchise of the right to vote, except as a punishment for crime, or to deprive any one of the right to hold office who is now entitled to it by the Constitution of the United States. The bill was then passed—yeas 48, nays 10. Mr. Sumner declined to vote. The bill will now be required to be returned to the House for its concurrrence in or reflection of the amendments of the Senate. There was an immense attendance in the Senate Chamber during the debate and a great interest manifested. The House of Representatives had a very short session and a great part of it was occupied with an ineffectual attempt by Mr. Butler to obtain the floor for an opportunity to reply to Mr. Mr. Dawes' speech and charges against the Administration. Mr. Butler indicated that he had a very effective and destructive speech to refute Mr. Dawes' statements, but the inexorable rules prevented him from delivering it.—After going into Committee of the Whole speeches were made by a number of members.

THE RURAL GENTLEMAN.—We observe that this most estimable Maryland Agricultural journal has been changed in form, considerably enlarged and a new feature added—a department for the ladies. Of course all the ladies want it. It only cost $1 per year. Send this amount to J. B. Robinson, publisher, Baltimore.

Maryland Legislature.

In the Maryland Senate on the 17th but little legislative business was transacted. A letter was received from the Governor stating that, in his opinion, he had the right of appointing a successor to Judge Nelson, (lately deceased), without the concurrence of the Senate, but requesting the opinion of that body upon the subject. He claims that under the State Constitution and decisions of the Court of Appeals the power of appointment to fill vacancies arising from death is vested in the Governor alone, and that the concurrence of the Senate is not required, the person appointed to serve until the next regular election for the office he fills. Judge Nelson was elected in November, 1867, to hold office for fifteen years, and under the Governor's construction of the Constitution and the decisions of the Court of Appeals, his successor will fill the position for the unexpired term—about thirteen years. The House of Delegates received a petition from merchants of Baltimore, asking a change in the management of the iceboat Chesapeake. An order was adopted requesting the Adjutant General to inform the House what amount of money has been paid to him on account of commutations and fines under the Militia laws. Several local bills were read the second time, and the House adjourned.

Neither House of the Maryland Legislature transacted any business of general interest on the 18th, the Treasurer contest absorbing all minor questions. Governor Bowie transferred to each House an official copy of the Fifteenth Constitutional Amendment for their action, and referred them to his Message regarding his opinions on the subject. The Senate Judiciary Committee decided that the assent of the Senate is not necessary to the appointment by Governor Bowie of a Judge in the place of the late Hon. Madison Nelson. The appointee will hold only till the next election for members of the General Assembly.

In the Senate on the 19th memorials were presented from holders on the construction and repair bonds of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company regarding the indebtedness of the Company to them, and asking for a settlement of the question as to priority between their lien and that of the State of Maryland, so that they may obtain the amounts due them. In the House of Delegates no business of special importance was transacted, the House, like the Senate, being absorbed in the Treasuryship contest.

In the Senate Thursday a committee of five was appointed to examine into the expenses of counties, with the view of making them more uniform throughout the State. The Committee on Printing reported in favor of awarding the contract for Legislative Printing to William Thompson, who made proposals on behalf of himself, S. S. Mills and Luther J. Colton, and the Senate adopted the report. The Senate then adjourned until Monday. In the House of Delegates orders regarding the examination of county expenses, similar to those passed by the Senate, were adopted, the remarks of members indicating that great abuses existed in this connection, and that the amount of money spent was unnecessarily large. The House also adopted the recommendations of the Committee on Printing, giving the contract to William Thompson. At the time the report was passed there were very few members attending to business, and when too late they discovered that this important matter had been disposed of. An ineffectual attempt was them made to call the yeas and nays, but the Speaker decided the report adopted.

SPEAKING of the anticipated financial panics and business failures consequent upon the "hard times," the New York Tribune remarks: "There is not the least necessity for that exaggerated alarm which some people are trying to disseminate in reference to coming "panics" and "failures." The dry goods dealers are of opinion that if gold went down to par it would cause no further disturbance in their business. The year 1869 was one of average prosperity in all departments of trade, and if profits have not been so large it is owing to the fact that merchants and dealers have not brought down their expenses in proportion to the fall in goods and prices. Rent, for instance, is very high, and unavoidable charges generally press heavily upon all classes of business men. The look-out for 1870 is by no means one to create despondency, and if people would only give up frightening themselves about shadows, trade would soon settle down of itself into its ordinary safe channels.

The Press.

THE HAVRE REPUBLICAN.—This paper, published at Havre de Grace, begins the new year in an enlarged form and improved appearance. It is the only paper printed in the town, is radically Republican, and edited with no mean ability. We wish you success, brother Mc Combs.

THE TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1870 has been received and is full of useful information as this little annual visitor is generally. Greeley seems to be a sort of walking encyclopædia of useful knowledge. The price is 20 cents per copy.

PUBLIC LEDGER ALMANAC.—We have received from Mr. Geo. W. Childs, proprietor of the Public Ledger, Philadelphia, with the compliments of the season, the Ledger Almanac for 1870. It contains a variety of statistical and other information, condensed with great care, and is printed on excellent white paper. Mr. Childs is a man of energy and taste, and does nothing by halves. To his other noble traits of character, is added that of unbounded charity.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—The February number of this favorite magazine leads off with a fine steel engraving of "The Frst Ball"—a scene which will be particularly interesting to young lady readers. Then follow the large sheet of Colored Fashions, tasteful and stylish; and a variety of superior woodcuts, illustrating the latest mode for costumes, bonnets, hats, &c. The music for this month is, "I Wish that I were Young Again." The literary department has excellent articles in prose and poetry. The editor's department is also as interesting as usual—while among the novelties are patterns for fancy-work, kniting, embroidery, &.—Published by Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut Street, Philadelphia. Price $2,50 a year (which also includes a large steel engraving). Four copies, $6. Five copies (and one Gratis) $8.
