DENTON, MARYLAND:

THURSDAY MORNING:.....April 14, 1870.

The Rhode Island Election.

Whatever may have been detracted from the glory of the triumph of the Republicans in Connecticut has been restored four fold in the complete victory which has been gained in Rhode Island. In this State the Republicans have swept everything, electing their ticket by majorities averaging 1,400. All hail gallant Rhode Island.

The Connecticut Election

Resulted just as it did two years ago—a Democratic Governor and a Republican Legislature. English, (Democrat) the Governor elect, is a man of wide-spread popularity in his own State, and this, aided by his immense wealth, has secured his election. Whilst Republicans everywhere would have been glad to have seen their own candidate elected, they are not downcast but jubilant. They have greater cause for rejoicing than their opponents from the fact that everything else, save the Governor, is theirs. We would like very much to see such a Democratic triumph in Maryland!

Judge Bond's Nomination.

President Grant has withdrawn the nomination of Judge Pearre, of Alleghany county, to the Judgeship of the Fourth Circuit of the United States, and substituted the name of Hon. Hugh Lenox Bond, of Baltimore.

This action of the President is wise, and is calculated to accomplish more good for the Republican party in Maryland than the nomination of forty Pearres, and at the same time add as much dignity and ability to the United States Courts. Judge Bond is in every respect the peer of Judge Pearre, and in point of loyalty and devotion to the Union, and worth to the party which has saved the Union from destruction, is infinitely his superior. For, while Bond was "bearding the lion in his den"—everywhere holding up to the public gaze the undying principles of the great Republican party and enforcing those principles by the power of his incontrovertable logic—receiving the taunts and jeers and scoffs and sneers of an unmanly and virulent opposition, his life at times in jeopardy—Pearre, ensconsed within his domicile, not even venturing forth to defend the principles of the party at whose hands he has been seeking to curry public favor, but disavowing all the advanced tenets of that party in order to secure his elevation at that time to a position of honor and emoluments. We feel sure that the nomination of no man within the limits of the State could give more universal satisfaction than the nomination of Judge Bond. It is a desired tribute to his ability as a lawyer, his dignity and urbanity as a gentleman, and his firmness and intrepidity as a patriot.

The New Public School Law.

From the Baltimore Sun, of Monday, we obtain an abstract of the new Public School law of Maryland, enbracing the changes at the late session of the General Assembly.—The law is pronounced a decided improvement in that it is shorter, more consistent, less liable to misconstruction, and provides for its own enforcement. The following are the changes alluded to:

The supervision of the public schools is vested, first, in a State board; second, in a county board; third, in a school district board. The State board is composed of four persons appointed by the Governor, from among the presidents and examiners of the several county boards, who hold office for two years. The principal of the State Normal School is, ex officio, a member of said board, and is appointed by them. The county board is composed of three persons, who are appointed by the judges of the Circuit Court, and hold office for two years. In counties having more than one hundred schools, five commissioners are to be appointed. The present county school commisioners are to remain in office for the time for which they were elected, so that the first appointments will take place in January, 1872.—The district boards are composed of three persons for each school, appointed by the county board of school commissioners, and holding office for one year, beginning in May. The duties of the county board and of the district board are the same as under the law of 1868. The State board has the general supervision of the school system, with the power to explain and enforce the law, and to decide all disputed questions arising under it. The county examiner has the same duties as at present, but is required to devote his whole time to the service of the public schools. In counties having more than 85 schools an assistant examiner may be appointed.

The schools are to be kept open as heretofore—ten months in the year—and if they are not open for 7½ months in any calendar year, the comptroller is required to withhold one quarterly installment of the public school tax. The county school commissioners can levy (through the county commissioners) whatever tax is needed for the support of the public schools; but if the tax exceeds ten cents on the hundred dollars, the consent of the county commissioners is needed. Teachers' certificates remain in force for three years, as heretofore, but the State board can grant certificates which are good for life or during good behavior. The county board of school commissioners select text-books for their respective counties, and furnish them to the schools on such terms as they deem proper.

Diabolism!

INCENDIARY FIRES—THREE ATTEMPTS MADE TO BURN THE DEPOT BUILDINGS AT RIDGELY—MANCHA'S STABLES DESTROYED.

Three attempts have been made to fire the depot buildings at Ridgely in a little more than a week. The first attempt was made on Thursday week, and chronicled in the last issue of THE UNION. On Friday afternoon last, smoke was again seen issuing from the depot buildings, and several persons immediately repaired thither to ascertain the cause. Upon entering the building, it was found to be completely filled with smoke, but no traces of fire could be discovered. An axe was then procured and an opening made in the weather boarding in that portion of the building from whence the smoke proceeded, but still no evidences of fire could be seen.—Some one, at this time, going behind the building, discovered that a fire had been kindled under it, in the rear part, on the ground, and that this was the cause of the smoke.—So carefully was the thing done that the fire was communicated to the building between the weatherboarding and ceiling, and its early discovery was all that saved the house from destruction.

Early on Saturday morning, and while Mr. Whitby, the agent, was at his breakfast, volumes of smoke were again seen to arise from the building, and another investigation was at once had. The fire was this time discovered a little in the rear of the former one, and kindled by collecting paper and other combustible matter together. It was speedily extinguished before much damage was done, since which time the attempt has not been renewed.

But whilst the people who had collected were discussing what had just occured, Mancha's stables were discovered to be on fire.—The horses were immediately taken out, but no time was given to remove anything else. Three setts of harness and a goose was consumed with the stables.

One of Mr. Jas. K. Saulsbury's out-buildings was also fired, but the fire went out before any damage was done.

The most singular part of the whole affair is the manner in which the incendiary escapes. The town is located on a gentle eminence in the centre of a vast cleared tract of country, with nothing to screen from view any one leaving the town, but notwithstanding this no one was seen loitering about the building or making a hasty departure across the fields. It is evidently the work of some malicious devil, who is thus seeking to avenge an old grudge against the railroad company or the citizens of the town, or both. We hope the parties may be ferreted out, and that they will receive the penalty which the enormity of their crimes so richly deserves.
