J. M. EMERSON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

DENTON, MARYLAND:

Thursday Morning, January 26th, 1871.

THERE IS NO MATERIAL CHANGE in the situation of the contending armies around Paris since last week. The bombardment is still going on, but it is said that but little damage is being done inside the city. Another battle was fought on Thursday, victory again perching upon the Prussian standard.

THE SENATORIAL CONTEST in Delaware is at an end, and Eli Saulsbury walks off with the prize. The two brothers, Willard and Gove, quarrelled, and Eli stepped in and settled the difficulty by taking the place unto himself. This is certainly a novelty in political history, but no more than could have been expected at the hands of such gerrymanderers as the Saulsburys have proven themselves, to be. O, tempora! O, mores!

SENATOR SAULSBURY (Willard) has made an explanation exhonerating himself from all impropriety attaching to the triangular contest which has been going on between the three brothers in the race for the Senatorship. Finding that the Governor would not give up the contest, he wrote a letter to his friends in the Legislature withdrawing his name from such an unseemly struggle. The letter was pocketed by the Senator's friends, and was not read until after the third ballot, when all his friends went over to Eli and elected him over Gove. This action of Willard is commendable in the extreme.

THE EASTON GAZETTE attempts to outdo the Star in writing up the "sharpness" of citizens of this county. In doing so, however, the editor seizes upon a story which is related of his own county and believed here to be absolutely true. We all know that Talbot county prides itself on its salt-water locations, and it is, therefore, but natural that farmers in the "Necks" should scatter oysters along their fresh-water shores to deceive unsuspecting strangers. We even heard of one man over there who scattered a sack of salt into the cove which makes up into his land and invited a land-buyer to taste it and see if his statements were not true! As Caroline county makes no boast of its salt-water locations, the "story" of the Gazette will excite but little merriment.

Wanted—a Bone Mill.

No person who has the least desire for the permanent welfare of this county can stand upon our wharves during, and for a short time prior to, the planting seasons, and be a witness to the immense cargoes of commercial fertilizers which are there semi-annually discharged, without mingled feelings of surprise and indignation—surprise at the credulity of intelligent persons in spending so much money for so small a profit, and indignation because of the "hard times" which they are thus instrumental in bringing upon themselves and others. We are not unconscious of the fact that our lands have been enhanced in actual fertility within the past few years, and that, too, in a measure, by the agency of these same commercial manures, yet, when we take into consideration both the evil and the good results from their use, the fact yet remains that equal, if not greater, fertility can be reached at less cost. There are cases almost within the smoke of our town where farmers have amassed wealth by the use of fertilizers, but these are isolated, while the reverse is the rule.

It may not be generally known, but it is nevertheless a fact, that bone is the base of nearly all the commercial manures, or fertilizers, used in this county, and that the bone alone is the life-giving element to our worn-out soils. Other articles are, of course, added to increase the bulk, but these are of only nominal value; and just in proportion to the amount of bone used in fertilizers may their value be reckoned. Then, since bone has in part supplied the deficiencies in our soils, why not employ it on a greater scale without purchasing, at the same time, so much other matter which is thrown in only that the bone may be taken out and the consumer be cheated out of his money? This can be done, and at less than one-half the cost of what is now paid for commercial manures, by the putting in operation in the county one or more bone-mills. Then, instead of collecting and sending to Baltimore the bones which lie scattered all over our farms, and having them ground up and returned to us, we can grind them at home and know just what amount of value there is in the article we apply to our lands. If we wish to dilute the article with something of less value, we can easily do so without paying for it the same amount we now have to pay for what is valuable and life-giving. Besides, it would be a home enterprise, and would keep our money amongst us.

The Farmer's Club will, we believe, have under consideration at its meeting next Tuesday the question of the utility of these commercial manures. We believe we can safely predict the conclusion which will be arrived at, since we know the views of many of the individual members of the Club upon this subject. If it results as we suppose it will, the Club can best show its earnestness in the matter by opening a subscription book at the meeting and ascertain how much money will be subscribed to furnish a better and cheaper article of manure at home. The investment will be found to be profitable in a few years.

A CONVENTION to secure the recognition of God in the Constitution of the United States was in session at Philadelphia last week. The following prefix to the preamble to the Constitution was deemed sufficient:

"We, the people of United States, acknowledging Almighty God as the ultimate source of all authority and power in civil government and the moral laws of the Christian religion as of paramount authority in order to secure a more perfect union," &c.

PUBLIC OFFICES in Delaware seem to fall by hereditary succession to different members of a family with almost as great a degree of certainty as they do in Oriental countries. Evidencing this curious fact in our system of Government we note the names of some of her former Senators: George Read and George Read Riddle; Richard H. Bayard, James A. Bayard, Sr., James A. Bayard, Jr., and Thomas Francis Bayard, the present Senator; Cæsar A. Rodney and Daniel Rodney; Joshua Clayton, Thomas Clayton and John M. Clayton, and now Willard Saulsbury and Eli Saulsbury. After the succession of Gove and his brother-in-law, Governor Ponder, who, of course, must yet go to the Senate, the Senatorial mantle will fall to some other family in which the succession may be regularly kept.

"EVIL COMMUNICATIONS corrupt good manners," the addage tersely expresses it, and we can account for the "sharpness" complained of by the Easton papers only on the ground of too frequent intercourse with the Talbot people. The construction of Dover Bridge and the final completion of the Md. & Del. R. R. has so obviated the difficulties of old time travel and swept away the natural boundaries between the two counties so completely that the manners and customs of our neighbor have inundated the entire county and well-nigh obliterated the rustic simplicity of our people. Being possessed of a remarkable aptitude to learn, the "sedge" and "oyster" transactions are by no means remarkable. But great as is the susceptibility of our people to foreign impressions, their "sharpness" has never yet admitted of their purloining from immigrants to the tune of ten thousand! Since, however, our very honest neighbor has set us the example, we will not promise how long it will be before our people essay imitation.

THE LADY'S FRIEND FOR FEBRUARY.—This is a very handsome number, not falling behind that for January in any respect. Indeed, we prefer the leading steel-plate, the three earnest faces bent over "The Letter" are so suggestive. The Fashion Plate is beautiful and stylish, and the colored pattern for a Tidy will please industrious young ladies. Then there is a very natural picture of a Farm-Yard in February, and some attractive costumes for walking and skating and dining. A plate of winter fashions for girls and one for boys will be interesting to mothers. There are numerous designs for winter garments, patterns for which are supplied on application; and Work-Table Department is very rich in captivating fancy work The stories and poetry, as usual, are unsurpassed for excellence and variety. Price $2.50 a year (which also includes a large steel engraving). Four copies, $6. Five copies (and one gratis,) $8.

The Dying Year.

BY MAUDE.

Slowly the old year is dying;
Soon 'twill be named with the past;
Around us the dead leaves are lying,
Scattered by Winter's rude blast.

Like the hopes which blossomed so brightly,
When Spring, with its flowers, was here,—
Our happy hearts then beat lightly—
For the future we had not a fear.

Now, all ruined and dead they are lying,
'Long the pathway our foot steps have made
And wearily, sadly, we're sighing
For the pleasures that never will fade.

We have loved thee, Old Year, and in sadness
We watch through the fleeting hours;
Though the future may bring joy and gladness,
Past joys can ne'er more be ours.

GREENSBORO', Dec. 31st 1870.

The Methodist Book Concern—End of the Lanahan Trial.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Methodist Book Concern committee brought their deliberations to a close this evening. The following is the substance of the resolutions arrived at. The charges made by Dr. Lanahan and the replies thereto have been withdrawn, and Dr. Lanahan is to be retained in his position. A sub-committee of four, of which Bishop Scott is to be a member, will be appointed to-morrow, whose business it will be to investigate the general management of the Book Concern, and also the method of bookkeeping in use in the establishment. They will be authorized to call to their assistance two experts, to be approved of by Bishop Scott, and should any question of law arise it is to be referred to Judges Reynolds and Faucher for decision. The sub-committee are to report the result of their labors to the next General Conference.

ANOTHER NEW YORK SCANDAL.—The leading editorial article of the New York Post of Tuesday tells a sad story, illustrative of a peculiar phase of New York life. The facts, condensed, are as follows: A few days ago a brilliant wedding was solemnized in one of the fashionable churches. The bride and bridegroom were well known in society. The former was connected with one of the leading families, and the latter was an agreeable ladies' man at parties, receptions, etc.

The pair had spent but a few days together, when the husband, after an interview with his young wife which left her almost crazed in mind, hastily called at his late bachelor rooms, which he had not yet given up, burned a large number of papers, packed up a few precious articles, and suddenly disappeared, and no one of his friends now know where he is to be found.

But one dreadful truth reached their ears too quickly, and that was that the man had already been several years married, and had several children. He still supported and visited them, and on the very day of the second marriage, at noon, he made them a long visit in his usual manner. For several years the man was an internal revenue officer, and latterly had been employed in a down-town bank.

THE VIRGINIA BOUNDARY QUESTION.—The Virginia Senate has passed a supplemental bill for a commission to consider the boundary lines not only of Virginia and Maryland, but between Tennessee and North Carolina also. Five thousand dollars is appropriated to start the commission. In the course of the debate it was calculated that the recovery of disputed territory by Virginia would in taxation much more than reimburse the State in one year for any expense incurred. The Senator from Bland county (Mr. French) stated that within the last twelve months it has been discovered that the proper line of Virginia in the vicinity of Bristol would include some four or five miles now under the jurisdiction of Tennessee. As for Maryland, it is claimed that she is in possession of a very large and valuable area that belongs to Virginia. Should this resolution pass both houses, the commissioners may expend a portion of the money appropriated in supplying the proofs of Virginia's title to the area now included in Maryland which Mr. Angus McDonald procured in England, and which was destroyed just after the war closed.

TO THE WEAK, THE WORN, AND THE WEARY, the Editor of the Boston Recorder says, "We can most unhesitatingly recommend the Peruvian Syrup, a protected solution of the protoxide of iron, to all the weak, the worn, and the weary, having richly experienced its benefits. It possesses all the qualities claimed for it by its proprietor.

WOOL.—The fact must never be lost sight of, that Wanamaker & Brown make up only all-wool goods. The low prices at which they sell, have led some people to think that there MUST be some cotton in their materials. But this is not so, "All-wool" goods at "cotton prices" is the rule at Oak Hall.
