What Then?

After the joys of earth,
After its songs and mirth,
After its hour of light,
After its dreams so bright—
What then?

Only an empty name,
Only a weary frame,
Only a conscious smart,
Only an aching heart.

After this empty name,
After this weary frame,
After this conscious smart,
After this aching heart—
What then?

Only a sad farewell
To a world loved too well,
Only a silent bed
With the forgotten dead.

After this sad farewell
To a world loved too well,
After this silent bed
With the forgotten dead—
What then?

AN ANGEL IN A BAR-ROOM.

A TRUE INCIDENT.

One afternoon in the month of June, 1870, a lady in deep mourning, and followed by a child, entered one of the fashionable saloons (barrooms) in the City of N——. The writer happened to be passing at the time, and impelled by curiosity, followed her in to see what would ensue. Stepping up to the bar and addressing the proprietor, who was present, she said:

"Sir, can you assist me? I have no home, no friends, and am unable to work."

He glanced at her and then at the child, with a mingled look of curiosity and pity. Evidently he was somewhat surprised to see a woman in such a place begging, but without asking any questions gave her some change; then turning to those present, he said:

"Gentlemen, here is a lady in distress.—Cant some of you assist her a little?"—They all cheerfully acceeded to this request, and soon a purse of two dollars was raised and placed in her hand.

"Madam," said the gentleman who gave her the money, "why do you come to barrooms? It isn't a proper place for a lady; and why are you driven to such a step?"

Turning her mournful, yet eloquent, eyes upon the speaker with an expression I shall never forget, she replied:

"Sir, I know it isn't a proper place for me to be in, and you ask me why I am driven to this step. I will tell you in a few words." Pointing to a bottle behind the bar labeled "whisky," "that is what has driven me to this—WHISKEY. I was once happy and surrounded by all the luxuries that wealth could procure, with a fond and indulgent husband. But in an evil hour he was tempted, and not possessing the will to resist that temptation, fell, and in one short year my dream of happiness was over, my happy home forever broken and desolated and the kind husband and the wealth some called mine, lost—lost, never to return, and all by the accursed wine cup. You see before you only a wreck of my former self, homeless and friendless, with nothing left me but this little child." And weeping bitterly, she affectionately caressed the golden curls that shaded a face of exquisite loveliness. Regaining her composure, and turning to the proprietor of the saloon, she continued:

"Sir, the reason I occasionally enter a place like this is to implore those who deal in the deadly poison to desist, to stop a business that spreads desolation, ruin, poverty and starvation. Think one moment of our own beloved ones, and then I appeal to your better nature, I appeal to your heart, for I know you possess a kind one, to retire from a business so ruinous to your patrons. Did you know that the money you receive in exchange for the vile stuff you sell across this bar, is the same as taking the bread from the mouths of the famishing wives and children of your customers? That it strips the clothes from the backs, deprives them of all the comforts of life, and throws unhappiness, misery, crime and desolation into their once happy homes? Oh, sir, I implore, beseech, and pray you to retire from a business you blush to own you are engaged in before your fellow-men, and enter a business that will not only be profitable to yourself, but your fellow-creatures also. Please excuse me if I have spoken too plainly, but I could not help it when I thought of the misery and unhappiness it has caused me."

"Madam, I am not offended," he answered, in a voice tremulous with emotion, "but thank you from my heart for what you have said."

"Mamma," said the child taking her mother's hand, "here's a gentleman who wants me to sing "Little Bessie" for him. "Shall I do it?"

"Yes, darling, if they wish you to."—They all joined in the request, and, placing her in a chair she sang in a sweet, childish voice, the following beautiful song:

"Out in the gloomy night sadly I roam;
I have no mother dear, no pleasant home:
Nobody cares for me, no one would cry,
Even if poor little Bessie should die.
Weary and tired I've been wandering all day,
Asking for work, but I'm too small they say:
On the damp ground I must lay my head;
Father's a drunkard, and mother is dead.

"We were so happy till father drank rum,
Then all our sorrow and trouble begun;
Mother grew pale and wept every day—
Baby and I were too hungry to play;
Slowly they faded 'till one summer night
Found their dead faces all silent and white:
Then with big tears slowly dropping I said:
Father's a drunkard and mother is dead.

"Oh, if the temperance men only would find
Poor wretched father, and talk very kind;
If they would stop him from drinking, why then
I should be so very happy again.
Is it too late, temperance men? please try!
Or poor little Bessie must soon starve and die;
All the day long I've been begging for bread—
Father's a drunkard, and mother is dead."

The scene I shall never forget to my dying day, and the sweet cadence of her musical voice still rings in my ears, and every word of the song, as it dropped from her lips, sunk deep into the hearts of those gathered around her. With her golden curls falling carelessly around her little shoulders her face of almost ethereal beauty, and looking so trustingly upon the men around, her beautiful eyes lighted up with a fire that seemed not of this earth, formed a picture worthy of the pen of a poet or painter, although a statue of purity and innocence. The unfinished games of billiards were laid by, the cards thrown aside, the unemptied glasses remained upon the counter, and all pressed near—some with curiosity, some sadness and sympathy for a child, who seemed better fitted to be with angels above than in such a place.

At the close of the song many were weeping—men who had not shed a tear for years, now wept like a child. One young man who had resisted with scorn the pleadings of a loving mother and dear friends to lead a better life, to desist from a course that was wasting his fortune and ruining his health, now approached the child, and taking her hands, while tears streamed down his pale cheeks, exclamed with deep emotion:

"God bless you, my little angel! You have saved me from ruin and disgrace—from a drunkard's grave! If there ever were angels on earth, you are one! God bless you, God bless you!" and placing a bill in the hand of the mother, he said: "Please accept this trifle as a token of my regard and esteem, for your little girl has done me a kindness no wealth can ever repay. And remember whenever you are in want you will find a true friend in me," at the same time giving her his name and address. Taking her child by the hand, she turned to go, but pausing at the door, said:

"God bless you, gentlemen, and please accept the heart-felt thanks of a poor and friendless woman for the kindness and courtesy you have shown her," and before any one could reply, she was gone.

A silence of several minutes ensued, which was at last broken by the proprietor exclaiming:

"Gentlemen, that lady is right, and I have sold my last glass of whiskey, and if any of you want any more, you will have to go elswhere!"

"And I have drank my last glass of whiskey," said a young man who had long been given up as utterly beyond the reach of those who had a deep interest in his welfare—that he was sunk too low to ever reform. "There is a temperance organization in this city, called the "Temple of Honor," and at their next meeting I shall send in my name to be admitted. Who will go with me?"

"I!" "I!" "I!" and "I!" several exclaimed in a chorus, and fifteen names were added to his.

True to his word, the owner of the saloon, where this strange scene was enacted, disposed of his entire stock the next day, and is now engaged in an honorable business. Would to heaven that lady could have gone into every hamlet, and town and city throughout our country, and met with the same cheering result.

Yes, it is the mothers and wives and sisters of the drunkard that can tell what whiskey has done and is doing. You need not follow him to the sumptuous and brilliant palace erected by King Alcohol and his confederates to lure him from the paths of virtue and usefulness, to that of ruin and disgrace. You need not follow him when his money is gone, and he is thrust from the most fashionable resort to those less respectable. You need not follow him to the lowest dens of crime and iniquity, as he daily reels home or lies in the gutter in a condition lower than the brutes of the field. No! but follow him to the place he calls home, and the hollow cheeks, and the dimmed eyes, the tear that rolls down the patient, careworn face of the forsaken wife, and the cries of the starving children, tell their own story in a language unexpressible in words.

THE FIRST STAIN.—Did any of our young readers ever think how little it takes to stain their characters? A single drop of ink seems a very small thing, yet dropped into a tumbler of clear, pure water, it blackens the whole. And so the first oath, the first lie, the first glass, may seem very trivial, yet depend upon it, my young friends, they leave a dark stain upon your character. Look out for the first stain.—Remember that small vices lead to great crimes, and that every little vice is a stain upon your character; and remember, too, that if you continue to indulge these vices, the stain grows darker until your whole soul is blackened. It is a very easy matter to brush aside the single drop of water, but when drops enough have united to form a torrent, it sweeps on with irresistible force. So with the little vices; it is a comparatively easy thing to rid ourselves of them at the beginning, but if we allow ourselves to indulge them, they will soon have a mighty power over us.

Young friends, look out for the first stain.

AN IRISHMAN, applying for license to sell whiskey, was asked if he possessed a good moral character. "Faith, yer honor," replied Pat, "I don't see the necessity for a good moral character to sell whiskey."

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous, and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

CLEAR AND HARMLESS AS WATER!

NATTAN'S
CRYSTAL DISCOVERY for the HAIR.

A perfectly clear preparation, in one bottle; as easily applied as water, for restoring gray hair to its natural color and youthful appearance; to eradicate and prevent dandruff; to promote the growth of the hair and stop its falling off.

It is entirely harmless and perfectly free from any poisonous substance, and will, therefore, take the place of all the dirty and unpleasant preparations now in use. Numerous testimonials have been sent up from many of our most prominent citizens, some of which are subjoined; in everything in which the articles now in use are objectionable, "Crystal Discovery" is perfect; it is warranted to contain neither Sugar of Lead, Sulphur or Nitrate of Silver. Clear and clean as water, it does not soil the clothes or scalp; it is agreeably perfumed, and makes one of the best dressings for the hair in use; it restores the color of the hair more perfectly and uniformly than any other preparation, and always does so in from three to ten days. Virtually feeding the roots of the hair with all the nourishing qualities necessary to its growth and healthy condition, it restores the decay and induces a new growth of the hair more positively than anything else. The application of this wonderful discovery also produces a pleasant and cooling effect on the scalp, and gives the hair a pleasant and elegant appearance.

Washington, D. C., July 25, 1870.

Mr. Arthur Nattans: Dear Sir—It affords me pleasure to say that I have used your Crystal Discovery with perfect success. Having tried many others, I find yours superior to any I have heretofore used, and I cannot too highly recommend it as a rapid promoter of the growth of the hair, and by a few applications restoring it to its original color. It is perfectly clean and free from any objectionable matter.

Very respectfully yours, R. W. SILVOY,
K st., bet. 4th and 5th. N. W.

We call especial attention to the fact that a limited number of trial bottles will be given away gratuitously to those wishing to try.—You will notice that in pursuing this course, our aim will be to convince by the actual merits of the article.

Given with Each Engraving!

We have obtained the entire control of the following engravings, which we offer at the low figures of

$2.00 EACH!

Although they are really worth $5.00 each.—They are 19x24 inches, and each is a gem of art.

LURLEY:

A legend of the Rhine. A female of rare beauty sits on the shore of the river, where the rocks are the most dangerous, and with her song and music charms the unwary sailors to near her, when they meet a watery grave.—The subject is full of life, full of emotion, and is altogether a success.

THE DISINHERITED!

A young man, through the wiley influence of some one of the household, is deprived of a share in his father's house. Having but sorrow as his lot, he departs, and from a neighboring hill he takes his last look and farewell to the scenes of his younger and better days. The heart fills with deep sorrow in examining this subject so well drawn.

THE CHILD CHRIST!

A child with human body and dress, angelic face and divine eyes, is represented so well that words cannot tell half its worth.—We do not think that any engraving has yet reached the excellence of this, in touching the heart and lifting it away to a higher world. The eye never tires to look. The more it is seen, the greater the desire to look again and again.

Also a correct lithograph likeness of

Gen. STONEWALL JACKSON,

The best, largest and handsomest ever published, 19x24 inches, worth $5.00, which we will sell on the same terms, for $2.00. It is truly a gem of art.
