DENTON, MARYLAND:

Thursday Morning, Juue 8th, 1871.

For Sale Cheap.

We offer for sale very low the Press upon which THE UNION has been printed for the last three years. It is a Smith Hand Press, 22 by 32, in good order. The universally neat appearance of THE UNION will attest this fact.—Our only reason for selling is because we have no use for the Press, having been compelled to purchase a new one in order that we might enlarge our paper. Address all inquiries to THE UNION, Denton, Md.

HON. JOSHUA VANSANT was unanimously nominated by the Democrats on Monday evening last for the next Mayor of Baltimore.

THE PUBLIC DEBT statement for June 1st shows a reduction of $4,439,538 during the past month. Honesty and economy are bound to win.

THERE IS TO BE a new railroad constructed between Baltimore and Chicago. It will be an air line from Chicago to Pittsburg, where it will connect with the Connellesville Road, and will strike the Baltimore and Ohio main line at Cumberland.

THE REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE of Maryland is called to meet in Baltimore, on June 12th, to arrange for the coming campaign, and to appoint a day for holding the State Convention to nominate candidates for Governor, Comptroller and Attorney General.

JEFF. DAVIS has again taken the stump and is "swinging around the circle" in the Southern States, making speeches in honor of the "lost cause." His utterances strike a responsive chord in the Southern heart, such as indicates that the lesson of our late war is unappreciated by the Southern people.

THE COURT OF APPEALS has reversed the decision of Judge Dobbin, of the Superior Court of Baltimore city, in the case of the State vs. the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. By this decision the State is entitled to collect one-fifth the gross receipts of the passenger travel over the Washington branch, which the Company had refused to pay.

WE ARE IN RECEIPT of the second annual report of the Maryland Institution for the education of the Deaf and Dumb, located at Frederick. The Board of Visitors present a gratifying exhibit of the work of the institution and announce a degree of success thus far which is truly encouraging. The buildings, when completed, will be among the finest in the State.

THE RESULT of the deliberations of the Maryland Agricultural and Labor Convention, in session in Baltimore last Thursday, was the adoption of a resolution asking each county to raise $500 to aid immigration. The Earle of Queen Anne's proposition to appropriate $250,000 out of the State Treasury developed strong opposition, and it was abandoned.

WILL MARYLAND DEMOCRATS imitate the example of their brethren in Pennsylvania and Ohio and give in their adhesion to the XVth Amendment, or will they "fight it out on the 'White Man's Party' principle?" Will they hearken unto the voice of John Quincy Adams and Vallandigham, or will they follow in the wake of Jeff. Davis who cherishes the "lost cause" with the same veneration as when its chosen head? These are qestions they will be called upon shortly to decide, and upon the decision they will then make will hang the future success of the party.

HASN'T SOME OF OUR CITIZENS public enterprise enough to start a canning factory in this county? There is no section of country which offers superior advantages to this, but there is not a single establishment of the kind within the limits of the county. We have an abundance of fruit and of the best quality, while in vegetables we doubt if any county in the State produces more. Our facilities for transportation are unsurpassed, and our close proximity to the great marts of the Atlantic seaboard render the sale of canned fruits certain.—There is money in a canning factory, if some enterprising men will only unite to work it out.

PRESIDENT GRANT has been interviewed in New York by a newspaper reporter, according to whom he made quite a lengthy statement on several matters of public importance. He thinks the British Treaty is the best settlement possible of the outstanding differences between the United States and Great Britain, and hopes that it will satisfactorily adjust the troublesome fisheries question. There is not a word of truth in the reported retirement of Secretary Fish or any other statements regarding changes in the Cabinet. As for Cuba, he says the condition of affairs on the island does not seem to him or to Mr. Fish to demand action on the part of the United States.

QUIET seems to be steadily returning to Paris. The barricades have disappeared and the pavements are repaired. Theatres are to be opened, but the precautionary measures of still keeping restrictions on the cafes chantants are continued. As regards the future Government of France, the report is confirmed that it will be proposed in the Assembly to extend the power of Thiers as Chief Executive for two years.—It is also said that the majority of the Assembly favors the abrogation of the laws banishing the Princes of the House of Bourbons from France. While the Paris newspapers are discussing what is to be done with the Orleans Princes, the Duke D'Aumale has already arrived in the city.—Perhaps the most important news is given in the Independence Belge, a reliable authority, which says that diplomatic relations will be shortly resumed between France and Germany, the Ambassadors' names being mentioned. This is a sure indication that the Germans believe in the thorough defeat of the insurrection.

THE JOURNAL, as usual when cornered, seeks to evade the direct question at issue between us in reference to the corporation election, by the introduction of other subjects having no relevancy. We do not propose to be drawn off from the main issue, and request the Journal to "stick to the point."

We have urged the propriety of holding an election for the reasons, first, because the law requires it, and second, because it is the duty of the present Board of Commissioners to hold the election. They have failed to discharge this duty, and the Journal, in endeavoring to excuse them, relies chiefly on the fact that a Republican (Union) Board, several years since, refused to hold an election, and charges that their "immediate purpose was to keep the town from falling into the hands of the 'rebels.'" It further charges that, on the day appointed by law for the election, all the members of the Board were absent by preconcerted arrangement, except Mr. Moore (a Democrat) who, "like a true man and citizen, was ready to discharge his duty," but "his Republican friends and associates evaded by willful, premeditated action the performance of their duty." The Journal then says: "Modesty, decency and self-respect may well blush at the performance of such a low and contemptible part as was played on that day by our 'city fathers.'"

Now, if this language be properly applied to the old Republican Board of Commissioners, because of their refusal to hold an election, does it not, with equal propriety, apply to the present Democratic Board because of their refusal to hold an election? Are "modesty, decency and self-respect" blushing now? Where, of the present Board, is the "true man and citizen ready to discharge his duty?" Does not a majority "by willful, premeditated action evade" it? We desire another pin stuck here.

This language, remember, is not ours, but the Journal's. We have endeavored to discuss the subject calmly and courteously. Perhaps the Journal did not perceive the attack it was making on its own friends, while abusing others.

Again, in speaking of the President of the old Board, the Journal says: "Whatever may have been his advice in the past, he now holds different views—has repented of his wrong." If he advised the old Board not to hold an election, and so advises the present, we can see no difference; nor can we see evidence of repentance. It appears more like a disposition to sin again. Or, does the mere fact of joining the Democratic party make a difference in the same views?

We are at a loss to understand how the failure to collect taxes is an excuse for not holding the election. It is a strong argument in favor of an election. If the present Board cannot collect the taxes we should have one that can collect them.

We come now to that part of the Journal's argument wherein fraud on the part of the old Board is insinuated, although not directly charged. Understanding, however, that the member of the Board to whom the insinuation referred has hunted up his books and made a full exhibit of the financial affairs of the corporation whilst under his management, not only to the total disproving of all semblance of fraud, but to the entire satisfaction of the Journal as well, we refrain from any remarks upon this subject. The editor of the Journal, honest in politics as in the social relations of life, will, of course, make the amende honorable and thus relieve some of our best citizens from the stigma which his insinuation of last Saturday fastened upon them.

BLOOMING GROVE, Ia., May 30.

Mr. Editor,—

We are in receipt of a letter from some of our friends in Caroline county, stating they have been informed that we were dead—killed in a saw mill and also by the indians. This, we are happy to state, is entirely without foundation. As far as indians are concerned, we are nearly as far from them as when we were in old Caroline. We expect there are but few people here who ever saw an indian.

We live in a very pleasant little town on the ridge between two rivers, four miles from one and seven miles from the other. Our county seat is at the confluence of the two rivers, and about forty miles from the Queen City of the West. We have two railroads in our county, and there is at present a company surveying for a road about two and one-half miles North of our village. This road is to connect Sandusky, O., with Louisville, Ky. When our Southern railroad is finished, from Cincinnatti to Chattanooga, we will have a direct route through the Southern States.

We have a flourishing lodge of Good Templars here—have been progressing finely ever since we organized, and, should we meet with success in the future, the day is not far distant when we can say, "We have not a drunkard in our township."

The citizens of Southern Indiana are mostly eastern men, and it is useless to say are very sociable. They, we think, have made some improvement on eastern farming, as the land is well adapted to the growth of blue grass. They are engaged in raising stock for our eastern markets.

Wheat is almost a failure. The late frosts have not only cut our corn but killed the fruit in some localities, and it is generally thought the average will not exceed half a crop. The weather has been very dry for the last month and farmers have enjoyed the pleasure of planting their corn twice this spring.

Yours respectfully,

THOS. E. HARRINGTON.

A BANKING HOUSE in Frankfort, Germany, has purchased the State of Maryland's stock in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, over five thousand shares, and has made the proposition to buy the large amount owned by the city of Baltimore, thirty-two thousand shares, or if this is not granted, to take the new issue of city bonds, amounting in all to $5,670,000. The price paid for the railroad stock was $140 per share.

Mr. Editor,—

As I enjoyed the pleasure, which you did not, of being present at the exhibition given by the scholars of public school No. 13, under the charge of Miss Bel. Collison, on last Friday afternoon, and as I was greatly pleased with what I saw and heard, I will give the public, through your paper, a brief outline of the proceedings there had.

The school-house is a new, neat and comfortable building, centrally located in public school district No. 13, on a triangular strip of woodland lying between three public roads, shaded most agreeably by a growth of young oak, hickory and dogwood trees, and is distant from Denton about 2½ miles.

When I reached the school-house, at an early hour in the afternoon, I found many of the parents of the children and some visitors already assembled in the little grove just described, and in the house were seated the little misses and masters who constitute the school, with some of their juvenile friends, who were the visitors. All were neatly and tastefully dressed and were looking glad and bright.

As time passed until 2½ o'clock, at which hour the exercises of the day began, there was a steady influx of the parents of the little ones and invited guests, until I began to think of an extemporized platform out of doors that all might see and hear; but the necessity therefor was, however, skillfully obviated by giving to the ladies and the little ones the occupancy of the house, and leaving the gentlemen, "not out in the cold," but outside at the windows and doors.

At 2½ o'clock, your correspondent addressed a few brief congratulations to those present on the interest manifested by them in school matters, and, in a lame manner, urged upon them the importance of education, and concluded by announcing that the exercises would then begin.

The first thing on the programme was singing by the whole school; 2nd, declamation by Master Isaac Dukes; 3rd, declamation by Miss Laura Saulsbury; 4th, declamation by Miss Mollie Fleetwood; 5th, declamation by Miss Mary V. Dukes; 6th, dialogue by Misses Fleetwood and Draper; 7th, declamation by Miss Ida Cannon; 8th, dialogue by seven misses under 10 years of age; 9th, declamation by Isaac Dukes; 10, declamation by Miss Ida Collison; 11th, declamation by Master Kimmey; 12th, dialogue by Misses Laura Saulsbury and Ida Cannon; 13th, declamation by Willard Melvin; 14th, declamation by Miss Ida Turner; 15th, singing by the whole school; 16th, declamation by Nehemiah Draper; 17th, declamation by Geo. Joiner; 18th, dialogue by Misses Collison, Fleetwood and Cannon; 19th, declamation by Miss Annie Fleetwood 20th, declamation by Miss Sallie Saulsbury; 21st, declamation by Miss Ella Cannon; 22nd, declamation by Miss Martha Kimmey; 23rd, declamation by Miss Ida Draper; 24th, singing by the whole school.

The programme throughout was performed in a manner most creditable both to the teacher and her pupils, and was followed by an address from the Rev. Geo. F. Beavan, who, in a most agreeable manner, congratulated the teacher and pupils on the excellence of the exercises they had gone through, and exhorted the happy little ones and their well-pleased parents to make the best use of their educational advantages—the one by constant application to their studies, the other by affording to their children uninterrupted opportunity to pursue them.

The assembly then adjourned to a tastefully arranged table, which, decked with beautiful flowers, occupied a place under the leafy canopy of the grove, and was bountifully supplied with cool and grateful lemonade and rich and delicate cake, over which the flow of pleasant chat went on for perhaps an hour, and then gradually the company dispersed to their several homes, well pleased, I doubt not, like your correspondent, with their afternoon's entertainment.

I cannot conclude without expressing the opinion that the next year will witness a number of these exhibitions, that through them greater interest in schools will be awakened in our community, and the cause of education will thereby be materially promoted.

Mr. Editor,—

On Friday last, I went to hear a temperance lecture at the Denton Church by a gentleman from Kent county, and after listening with immense patience I felt myself much disappointed on the subject, and instead of listening to a temperance lecture I got in exchange a political lecture, spiced with some anecdotes, and urging the people to vote—for whom? For men who will not allow, or rather prohibit, the sale of liquors at the next session of our Legislature.—This was amended by the State's Attorney, J. W. Bryant, Esq., to no less than five gallons at a time. The gent. forgot that there are some small flasks to pour into from the five-gallon demijohn.

Now, Mr. Editor, if there is any man, or woman, opposed to drunkenness to the utmost, it is your humble servant. And not alone this; there are more evils existing in this and any country where people are opposed to it, but they are necessary evils and cannot be avoided until the time comes when the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and a little child shall lead them. O, thou great men Isaiah, how I would like to see your dreams realized. But your beau ideal has got to be caged yet, or he will devour the lamb.

I was furthermore astonished to hear the lecturer say that the revenues of liquors and malt liquors were of no account to the profits which the prohibition would make flow in our pockets. Does he think we are Hottentots? Or did he never read the statistics of the U. S. Revenue? I will refer him to it and all his listeners. What a mistake he made! Or is the thing not old enough, and the saddest results been experienced from the agitation of this question? Hence, why revive or stir up an old sore? Why not plan something new—such as to promote education or the elevation of our beloved free country, instead of agitating politics in Church? This I consider a more dangerous foe than even the worse rotgut whiskey that ever was distilled in any country. Why, even in monarchical Europe, they have separated Church and State matters, and they belong, together with the Papal concordat, to oblivion.

Yours, with respect, A. M.

Riding An Elephant.

A menagerie gave an exhibition recently at the Indian village of Pottawatomie, in Kansas, and during the night a party of braves broke into the tent and stole the elephant. They undertook to ride the animal about town. In a few minutes the air resounded with the crash of demolished wigwams and the shrieks of the terrified Indians.

The child of the forest jabbed knives and arrows into the sides of Old Emperor—for so the beast was known to showmen—without doing him a bit of good. On he rushed, half mad with rage and fright, destroying everything within reach, and driving the people out into the prairies. When he had trampled a large part of the village into ruins, and stripped the roofs off the rest of the lodges, his keeper came up, and "the father of all the animals" was secured.

The Southern Democrats have just been trying to ride an elephant, with similar results. Their Old Emperor, Mr. Jefferson Davis, was a picturesque and profitable feature in the Democratic menagerie so long as he was securely hobbled and kept quiet in his corner. Once in a while a cautious showman might walk him around the tent, to the delight of the gaping rustics and small boys, and occasionally he raised his trunk and emitted a mild roar, not at all alarming in itself, but suggestive of terrible possibilities. But his principal occupation after all was to stand still, and be fed with cakes, and stared at as a marvel, with the strength of a giant and the docility of a child. In an evil hour some unauthorized persons let the Old Emperor loose, and what an uproar he has made! The new platforms which the valandigham Democrats built with so much pains have been knocked into splinters. Organizations have been scattered, and the Northern leaders run about screaming in the darkness, and breaking their necks trying to get out of the animal's way. His path is strewn with ruins, and before his rampage is over he will probably have done the Democracy more mischief than they can repair in another four years.—N. Y. Tribune.

A REAL AID TO TEMPERANCE.—Here is something which we commend to the attention of the temperance people. Mrs. Jas. T. Fields and some other charitable and wealthy ladies have established on Cambridge street, Boston, the "Holly Tree Inn," which furnishes many of the articles obtained at restaurants, with the exception of liquors. It gives good tea and coffee, for instance, at five cents a cup; soup five cents a bowl; cold meat, either ham, roast or corned beef, with bread and butter, ten cents; pies five cents a piece. During the summer they will also have ice cream at five cents a glass. Two hundred men from a neighboring manufactory dine daily at the "Holly Tree," many of whom previously frequented the drinking saloons in the vicinity. Some of these places have been compelled to close for lack of patronage, and the new movement is thus unexpectedly carrying on a genuine temperance reformation. The sewing and shop girls, who have hard work to keep soul and body together, are firm friends and steady patrons of the "Holly Tree." The movement has been so successful that cheap eating houses on the same plan are to be established by benevolently disposed individuals in different parts of the city, which is hoped will eventually be nearly self-sustaining.

AFRICAN WINES.—It is not generally known that Cape Colony produces the most delicious wines grown on the face of the earth. A cargo received as a remittance by our neighbors Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., contains several varieties raised there, among which the Constancia commands the highest price of any wine in the world. Almost the entire crop of it is consumed in the palaces of Europe, this rare exception being sent to them in exchange for their medicines, which have long been the staple remedies of South Africa.—Boston Journal.

A terrible cyclone passed over a portion of Illinois on Friday. In its pathway it entirely devestated the earth, leaving not a particle of vegetation alive, and plowing up the earth to the depth of several inches. It was accompanied by electric phenomena and a sulphurous smell. Fortunately no houses were within its line of progress across the country.

The flood from the breaks in the Mississippi river levees is increasing, and there is an area of six square miles in New Orleans under water, including about three hundred thickly inhabited squares. The suffering of the inhabitants, especially amongst the poorer classes, is described as very great.
