DENTON, MARYLAND

THURSDAY MORNING, FEB 12 1885

PRESIDENT-ELECT Cleveland has at last moved to New York. A general advance among Democratic politicians may now be expected from one end of the line to the other.

BEFORE Mr. Cleveland gets through making his Cabinet he will find it necessary to convince about nine-tenths of the statesmen of the Democratic party that they weren't elected President.

IF Rossa continues to improve as he is now doing he will be able to leave the hospital in a few days. If his recent experience teaches him to keep his mouth shut a great many people will look upon Mrs. Dudley as a public benefactor.

WEBSTER improved his memory by telling his wife at night everything he did, saw or heard during the day. Very few men of the present time would care to improve their memories in this way. It would be less dangerous to work in a powder mill.

ALL the passenger cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad will soon be equipped with the Westinghouse train signal. This contrivance will do away with the bell rope, which runs from car to car, and enable the engineer to be signalled at a moment's notice and with great certainty.

AFTER a siege of nine months and seven days Khartoum, on the 29th of January, was taken by the army of the Mahdi, and Gen. Gordon, its heroic defender, was, it is supposed, either captured or killed. This is a melancholy conclusion of a drama in which the whole civilized world has for a year past been deeply interested.

GLADSTONE predicts that a century hence the English-speaking people will exceed in numbers a thousand millions. At the first glance these figures appear visionary, but when we consider that in 1785 the number was only 20,000,000—not one-half of our present population—we cannot but be impressed with the truth of Mr. Gladstone's prediction.

THE harvest of violence has been reached by O'Donovan Rossa, the arch dynamiter being shot down by a patriotic English woman. Of the five shots fired at him but one took effect, and that, it is thought, will not be fatal. Rossa is the "head centre" of the clan of anarchists and murderers in this country and his loss by natural death would be hailed as a blessing to humanity, and when it comes that he is a victim of his own teachings it is looked upon as a righteous retribution.

BOARDING-HOUSE PIE will be looked upon with more distrust than ever, now that "Rough on Rats" has come to have an unaccountable way of getting into it. In an Omaha boarding house one day last week twenty-three persons were poisoned by eating pie in which this poison had been accidentally put with some of the components. Patrons of city boarding houses should make close inquiry in regard to the customary location of the stock of rat poison on hand, and if it is kept near the pastry closet they should refuse pie.

EVERY effort to promote the temperance cause and rid this country of the curse of strong drink should be made, except to vote the Prohibition ticket, which does no good. The latter fact was demonstrated at the last presidential election, the votes cast for St. John throwing victory into the hands of the party in which is centered the rum power of this country. Temperance organizations do good in their way, and instances could be cited to show their beneficial effect in communities where they are rightly conducted. Its principal aim is the good of all mankind.

WHAT article of food is free from adulteration? Investigation by the board of health in New York has led to the revelation of adulterations that are alarming. Tons of poisonous candy have been confiscated, and it has been found that canned fruits, tea, coffee, meats of every kind, sausage, head cheese, and, in fact, nearly every article of ordinary food, not only are subjects of wholesale adulteration, but that the substances used, are in every instance, active poisons. State legislatures should pass the most stringent laws to protect the people from these dishonest practices, and courts should impose the severest penalties.

IT is gratifying to know that Congress is not in the mood to loan any more money to the New Orleans Exposition. The government has already sunk $1,000,000 in the enterprise, and there isn't the shadow of a hope that it will ever get back a single cent. The trouble with the exposition is that the New Orleans people allowed their ambition to warp their judgment. They wanted to have the greatest show ever seen, and they forgot or ignored the fact that New Orleans's geographical position militated against a large attendance from other parts of the country. Instead of endeavoring to make up for probable disappointment in this direction by wise management and economy, the directors have gone ahead in a reckless, slipshod, unbusiness-like manner. The opening of the exposition was postponed because at the time originally advertised for it nothing was in shape. Even now the affair is being mismanaged, and many complaints are made of the mistakes of the directors. We are sorry that this is the case, but it is idle to attempt to conceal the facts, and it would be folly for the United States to contribute money to repair the damage caused by bad management.

Cruelties of Capt. Williams.

WIFE BEATING ADDED TO THE LONG LIST OF HIS CRIMES.

"Give a dog a bad name and hang him." Since the recent murder of Otto Meyher there has been no end to the reports about Capt. Williams, the accused showing his uniform cruelty and brutality. The murder of this poor German, than which no other was ever more pitiless and barbarous, and the crimes since detailed in the Baltimore Sun, which have not been contradicted, show in Capt. Williams such destitution of feeling and such apathy of soul as to place him beyond the pale of human sympathy.

A gentleman from Princess Anne, where Williams is incarcerated, (and with him the gentlemen is well acquainted,) adds to the list of the crimes and brutal deeds which have already been heaped upon him. Williams violence and harshness to his wife is well known, but our informant mentioned one instance in which he put a halter around her neck and hanged her to the wall to die, and it was only when almost in the jaws of death and when she was feebly gasping for breath that his hard heart relented and he released and saved her. At one time he joined the church and was looked upon by the public as a changed and converted man, but it is said that while this impression of him prevailed, he would call his crew together for prayer, and after he had worked them up to a state of religious fervor, would rush upon some one of them and beat him mercilessly. It seems that humanity and tenderness had no place in his composition, and that he indulged wantonly and without cause in cruelty for the sake of the pleasure that inflicting pain upon one of his fellow creatures gave him.

It is to be hoped that many things reported about him are not true, but in the absence of contradiction we cannot do otherwise than believe them.—Cambridge Chronicle.

For the Boys.

The Wide Awake gives the following story, which is all the better for being true: Two men stood at the same table in a large factory in Philadelphia working at the same trade. Having an hour for their nooning each day, each undertook to use it in accomplishing a definite purpose; each persevered for about the same number of months and each won success at last. One of these two mechanics used his daily leisure hour in working out the invention of a machine for sawing a block of wood into almost any desired shape. When his invention was complete he sold the patent for a fortune, changed his workman's apron for a broadcloth suit and moved out of a tenement house into a stone mansion. The other man, what did he do? Well, he spent an hour each day during most of a year in the very difficult undertaking of teaching a little dog to stand on his hind feet and dance a jig, while he played the tune. At last accounts he was working ten hours a day at the same trade at his old wages, and finding fault with the fate that made his fellow workman rich while leaving him poor. Leisure moments may bring golden grain to mind as well as purse, if one harvests wheat instead of chaff.

Wife and Mother.

Keeping her house well, and making the little world over which she rules happy, faithful, beautiful, the womanly woman has neither time nor inclination for the life of out-of-door glaring publicity which many of the sex affect. What ambition she has goes to the fame and well-being of her husband and to the future success of her sons. She feels that it is a far more blessed thing to be the wife and mother of heroes than a "personage" on her own account, and that the glory cast by the man whose name she bears is brighter and more sufficing than any with which she is able to surround her own name. She does not wish to make speeches on platforms, to see her name in the newspapers, to be a leader of movements, to talk arrant nonsense on difficult subjects; but she helps her husband in his study, in his labratory; and many a man has owed as much of his fame and success to his wife's quiet and silent aid as he has owed to his own native power.

A Split in the Party.

Cleveland's reticence in regard to his Cabinet and the line of policy which he intends to pursue, causes several of the leading Democrats to feel that they have been snubbed, and fears have been expressed that a split in the party may be the result. Already Watterson, of the Louisville Journal, has expressed his disapprobation of Cleveland's course in strong terms and many of the prominent men of the party are said to agree with him. The leaders all feel that they have been snubbed, or are not properly appreciated, and although hoping for the best their fears are of a very sombre character. The Southerners are growing restive and it will require some skill to soothe the troubled waters. It will be a great relief when the fourth of March arrives, as the fears of the partisans will then be dispelled or confirmed, and all hands will breathe free again.

Liberality and Frugality.

There is a loose way of handling money, without thinking of the purposes it ought to serve, but which is nothing but wastefulness. There is also a gasping way of withholding it which is mistaken for frugality, but which is only miserliness. The wise man values money for certain ends which it will serve, and striving to promote these ends, he is too intelligent to be either miserly or wasteful. He systematizes his means, whatever they may be, and by wasting nothing in unprofitable ways he can afford to be liberal, while in being wisely liberal in the right direction he is most truly frugal.

How to Make Dynamite.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA'S RECIPE FOR THE DEADLY COMPOUND.

"Anybody can make dynamite," said a prominent druggist of Baltimore a few days ago.

"Is the process a simple one?" was asked.

"Yes, very simple. All the ingredients that are required to make the deadly compound which Rossa admires are sulphuric acid, nitric acid and glycerine. They are mixed in equal proportions and then soaked in three-times their combined weight of sand, sawdust, or silicious ashes. The nitric acid and sulphuric acid are sold in every apothecary shop and glycerine is a common household article. When mixed they constitute what is known as nitro-glycerine, and to convert it into dynamite the sand or sawdust is added. When ready for action dynamite has the appearance of damp Graham flour."

"How much does it cost to make dynamite?" asked the reporter.

"About 25 cents per pound," was the druggist's reply. "The large dealers reap a big profit in its sale."

"Is it much experienced with by amateurs?" was the next question.

The druggist laughed and answered: "No, they are afraid of it. Even the druggists won't handle it. However, there is not as much danger about it as is commonly supposed. It requires no more careful handling than powder. It withstands an even temperature as high as 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and is affected by neither light nor electricity, nor an ordinary shock. It burns in the open air like powder, and produces no sound save a slight spluttering, giving no indication of its terrible power in confinement. It gives off nitrous fumes. When exploded it leaves a pile of white ashes, accompanied by but little smoke."

"Where does the bulk of the dynamite come from?"

"Over half is made by Du Pont de Nemours & Co. at their factory in New Jersey. There is a homeopathic dynamite pill, sugar-coated, which is frequently prescribed by physicians. The ingredients are precisely the same as dynamite."

JUDGE MORRIS, in the United States District Court, last week rendered his decision in the case of Martha Stewart and three other women, colored, against the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Richmond Steamboat Company. The libellants purchased first-class passage tickets on the steamer Sue, after having been told that they would not be admitted to the sleeping apartment occupied by white females. This suit was brought to recover $500 damages each for exclusion from that apartment. Judge Morris said it was the right of the common carrier of passengers to make regulations for a separation of different classes of passengers, but they have no right to make any difference in the comfort and convenience of those who pay equal fare. The forward cabin assigned to colored females was not in as comfortable condition as that assigned to white females, and he therefore awarded a decree of $100 to each of the libellants. Notice of appeal was given.

Give Water to Infants.

A physician of the New York Nursery and Child Hospital believes, from his practice, that infants generally, whether brought up at the breast or artificially, are not supplied with sufficient water, the fluid portion of their food being quickly taken up, and leaving the solid too thick to be easily digested. In warm, dry weather healthy babies will take water every hour with advantage, and their frequent fretfulness and rise of temperature is often directly due to their not having it. A free supply of water, and restricting the frequency of nursing, has been found at the nursery to be a most effectual check in case of incipient fever, a diminished rate of mortality and marked reduction in the number of gastric and intestinal complaints being attributed to this cause. In teeth-cutting water soothes the gums, and frequently stops the fretting and restlessness universal in children at this period.

Study.

We should come to our studies with a clear, unprejudiced mind, and with a resolution to persevere until we fully understand our author—to read him, in short, with candor and industry. It is indispensable that we should strive to discover the truth or beauty of a book rather than its errors. We should begin with a trusting rather than with a carpspirit. The fault generally float upon the surface, and may easily be discovered. But the truths lie deeper, and must be sought for. The latter will strengthen and tertilize the mind of the reader. The discovery of the former will merely feed his self-conceit.

Neatness and Taste.

If you go into a dwelling and behold order and neatness and taste in arrangement, you see the disposition of the tenants indicated by these material things. If you see unchanliness, untidiness, and disorder, you do not simply see filth and a want of order—you see a mind that is not pained by disorder and uncleanliness. If you see beauty and attractiveness, you do not see these alone, but through these you perceive the mind that arranged them.

Amount of Sleep Required.

Every man must sleep according to his temperament. Eight hours is the average. If a man requires a little more or less, he will find it out for himself. Whoever, by work, pleasure, sorrow, or by any other cause, is regularly diminishing his sleep is destroying his life. A man may hold out for a time; but nature keeps close accounts, and no one can deceive her.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully, HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

Order of Publication.

B. G. Stevens vs. Maud Boynton, Edith Boynton, Mary Lee Boynton, and Bertha Boynton

In the Circuit Court for Caroline county, in Equity:

The object of this suit is to obtain a decree for the sale of certain mortgaged premises in Caroline county, which were on the 7th day of September, A. D. 1870, mortgaged by William M. Boynton to Elizabeth Kellogg, who assigned said mortgage to Eleonor A. Boynton, and by the said Eleanor A. Boynton was assigned to Charles B. Boynton, and by the said Charles B. Boynton re-assigned to Leonard Eleanor A. Boynton, and by her said mortgage was assigned to B. G. Stevens, complainant.

The bill states that on the 7th day of September, A. D. 1870, the said William M. Boynton conveyed certain real estate which is particularly described in the bill and in accompanying exhibit unto one Elizabeth Kellogg by way of mortgage to secure the payment of the sum of five hundred dollars with interest from the 7th day of September, 1870, which mortgage was assigned as above stated, to complainant; that no part of the said sum of money or the interest thereon has been paid; that William M. Boyton died intestate, and there has been no administration on his effects, leaving Maud, Edith, Mary Lee, and Bertha Boynton, his only children and heirs at law; that the said Maud, Edith, Mary Lee, and Bertha Boynton are infants, under twenty-one years of age, and non residents, not living within the jurisdiction of the State of Maryland.

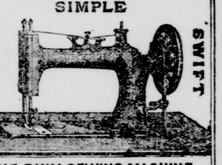

It is therefore adjudged and ordered that the complainant by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published at Denton, in Caroline county, once in each of four successive weeks before the third day of March next, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, and warn them to appear in this court in person or by guardian on or before the first day of June next, to answer the premises and show cause, if any they have why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.
