THURSDAY, June 11, 1885.

☞The Orphan's Court for Caroline county, will meet Tuesday, June 23d.

County and Peninsula.

.....Money is uncomfortably scarce.

.....Hitching posts are being planted at Harris' Chapel.

.....Harvest will commence about the 22d of this month.

.....Will Denton enthuse on the 4th? We should smile if it did.

.....The class and prayer meetings in Denton are well attended.

.....The seventeen-year locusts have appeared in some localities.

.....There will be a festival at Harris' Chapel on Friday, the 12th inst.

.....Man wants but little here bill owe, but wants that little paid—if he is honest.

.....There is a movement on foot looking to the papering of Harris' Chapel.

.....Children's Day at Potter's Landing M. E. Church on Sunday afternoon the 14th inst.

.....Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the M. E. Church on Sunday morning the 14th inst.

.....John W. Powell has sold the mail route between this place and Ridgely to T. M. Cooper, who took charge on Monday last.

.....Strawberries have been abundant in our market for the past week and are selling at various prices, from 5 to 12 cts. per quart.

.....The repairs on the M. E. Church are being pushed forward. The committee thinks the church will be ready for use in about four weeks.

.....Next year's county levy for this county will be one dollar on the one hundred; for schools will be the same as last year, $9,000; for roads $7,500.

.....Wheat is generally headed out. The prospect is more encouraging than it was early in the spring, but there are many fields that are very thin.

.....At the election for Mayor in Wilmington on Saturday last Mr. H. C. Conrad, Republican, was defeated by 452 votes in favor of Mr. Rhoads, Democrat.

.....Something over twenty-six dollars was realized at the festival in the town hall on Tuesday evening last for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society in this town.

.....Messrs. Wm. S. Ridgely, of Ridgely, Md., and Geo. T. Melvin, of Denton, have purchased the Maryland Republican, at Annapolis, and will take charge on Monday next. The price paid for the paper was $4,500. We wish them success.

.....The seventeen-year locusts are said to be great table dainties. A Washington entomologist says they contain the quintessence of the vegetable juices. Some of our farmers who have a large crop of locusts mught try them and report results.

.....Children's Day at Harris' Chapel came off last Sunday the 7th inst. The congregation was overflowing—the music fine—the service well rendered. The floral display was profuse and artistically arranged. The pastor made the opening address. Mr. E. W. Williamson and Prof. Jas. Swann made neat and appropriate addresses. The collection was $5.55.

.....Norwood writes: "The school children belonging to the public school at Preston, with their parents and friends held a very pleasant picnic in the grove near the old academy on Friday afternoon last. Mr. J. Kent Dukes, principal, Miss Gertie G. Stafford and Miss Belle V. Harrison assistants, superintended the affair, and everything went off charmingly."

.....On Sunday last while Mr. O. J. Redden and family was riding along the road, when near Saulsbury's school house in Tuckahoe Neck, and while the horse was walking leisurely along, the side bars of his carriage broke suddenly throwing Mr. Redden and his family heavily upon the ground, but fortunately no serious damage was done. The carriage was new and this was the first time it had been used.

..... A word to road supervisors in this county: Now is the time to repair the public roads. It is useless to endeavor to fill up holes late in the fall, but if done now they will become solid before the frost sets in. Let the roads be attended to at once, and another thing equally important is to finish a road when you begin it and not leave a mile or two thrown up in high ridges to try the patience of every man and the strength of every vehicle compelled to pass over it.

.....The "Careless" base ball club of Hillsborough came over to this place on Saturday afternoon last and wiped out our "Stumblers," or "grumblers," we hardly know which to call them—both are appropriate names. They certainly do know how to grumble, and they always manage to stumble out behind. We are of the opinion that neither club deserve much credit, as the playing on both sides was about as poor as we ever saw. The score stood 10 to 31 in favor of the "Careless."

.....Messrs. Yeakle & Dulin, two worthy young men have formed a co-partnership in the carpentering business in this town, and we hope our citizens will give them encouragement. They are both energetic young men and are deserving of a large share of public patronage. Some of their work can be seen at the residence of W. E. Dunnock, where they have just completed a new front porch. They are now building a large barn, carriage-house and stable for Mr. R. T. Carter, adjoining the residence of Mr. R. J. Jump.

.....Advices from some sections indicate that the "June fall" has begun, though in some orchards none of the young fruit has yet fallen and the limbs are already bending with the weight of fruit. A number of growers near Smyrna say their peaches have dropped badly during the past few weeks and in many orchards the fruit remaining is insufficient for a full cr... The yo... fruit there turns black, ...ots, or ...side, and drops. This is supposed ...ime to be the result of the last frost ... "June fall" has just commenced, ...ever, and some view it too gloomily ...ile others are too sanguine.

.....The public is not asleep in respect to sewing machines, and a lady, now-a-days, buys a machine, not because it had a good name fifteen years since, but selects the machine that pleases her best; has the most and latest improvements, runs the easiest, and does its work in the most quiet and lady-like fashion. The New Home fills the bill in every respect.

The Hessian Fly.

On the floor of the Corn and Flour Exchange in Baltimore on Wednesday, specimens of wheat stalk from Frederick county, which had been attacked by Hessian flies, were exhibited. The insect was found in the lower joints, near the root. This is probably the greatest enemy to the growing wheat, and this season in Maryland appears to produce the destroyer in great numbers. There was no hope, after the severe winter, of more than a two-thirds crop, and the ravages of the fly are expected to shorten very much the wheat crop from that estimate.

The Outlook—Peach Crop.

If reports from the Peninsula are not exaggerated, the peach crop this year will be the largest in ten years, if not the greatest known in the history of peach growing. The orchards in Delaware and Maryland are in danger of breaking down with their loads, and for once the trees appear to have been unmolested by the many insidious enemies that prey upon them. This is almost too good news to be true, and it is feared that something may yet happen to change the aspect of affairs. Indeed, the growers suggest that that the crop may be materially lessened by "dropping" in the latter part of this month. But it is to be hoped that this suggestion is only a bit of the natural pessimism of the growers, who can hardly believe that Nature will not play them some trick at last.

A Small Wheat Crop.

The Farmers' Review has made a complete survey of all the Western and Southern wheat-growing States. "The gloomiest views advanced concerning the winter wheat outlook for 1885," it says, "must now be accepted as the most accurate. The absolute uniformity of the returns indicate that the outlook this year is the worst in ten years, and it may be set down as positive that under the most favoring conditions the total winter and spring wheat yield is to fall considerably under the short crop of 1881, when the total product was 380,000,000 bushels." The Review estimates the winter wheat yield at about 200,000,000 bushels, and the absolute percentage from the most trustworthy sources indicate that the yield will fall somewhat under than over these figures. The probable spring wheat yield, based upon continuing favorable weather, will be 130,000,000 bushels. The total wheat crop of the country, therefore, from the present outlook, will be from 320,000,000 to 330,000,000 bushels, against an average yield for the past five years of 464,000,000 bushels.

A Word to Shippers.

As there will most likely from the present outlook, be plenty of peaches this year, the growers had better begin to consider how they can so distribute the crop, that the near markets will not be over-stocked and the price run down below a profitable point. It would also be well for our shippers to remember that fruit well culled and shipped in neat tasty boxes or baskets always command better prices than that shook from the trees, scooped up with a shovel and consigned to your commission merchant in goods boxes. Very often fruit is shipped to the city in such a condition that it will hardly sell for enough to pay the freight on it; then the commission merchant gets abused because the fruit does not bring better prices. Coulbourn & Moyer have no agents this year, and any one shipping them fruit will find that they always get the highest prices. They have made a deposit with the Pennsylvania Railroad company to secure them on perishable freight from all points, which relieves the shipper from the trouble of prepaying freight. This is a new departure in the shipping business, and looks as though it was a good one.

Serious Charges—Denied.

The papers are scattering the news far and near that the charges against Rev. J. E. Mowbray are of a criminal nature. Some of them go so far as to say that the offenses are of such a serious nature that if they are ever made public they will astound not only the church, but the entire community. These charges resulted from his trial at the recent session of conference on the charge of immorality, when he was found guilty of plagiarism and falsehood, and aside from his accusers, his presiding elder and the church counsel, they are known by very few people. They are of such a grave nature that those who do know will not state what they are. Mr. Mowbray was to have been given a hearing by a conference committee this week, but it, wishing to deal with him as leniently as possible and not desiring him to sign a mass of criminating evidence, determined to let the matter rest until the next session of conference. Inability to refute the charges, it is said, has led Mr. Mowbray to confess his guilt, withdraw under charges by delivering his parchments and his church to his presiding elder, and wait until next March for conference to investigate the matter and take such action as it may deem proper.

The Harrington Enterprise assumes the responsibility and denies these charges. It says: "There is not a word of truth in these statements, and the great trouble to-day in regard to Mr. Mowbray is jealousy on account of his talents. Mr. Mowbray is a well educated and talented gentleman, and we believe truly a christian; but a few of the laymen and a portion of the 'Fry' of the conference were determined to drive him from the Wilmington Conference. The great charge is now that he drew a check and signed another man's name to it but never presented it. Is this a criminal act? Any fool can answer the question. Mr. Mowbray throughout this embarrassing vexatious and trying ordeal not only demonstrated clearly to the minds of our best men, that the charges brought against him were false and of a malicious character, but acted the man and christian. You have been digging for his downfall, and have in a measure succeeded, I pray you 'examine yourselves.'"

"Thirty Days" Whiskey.

HOW CRISFIELD DEAD-BEATS PLAYED SHARP WITH A LIQUOR DEALER OF BALTIMORE.

No one calls it "whiskey" in Crisfield any longer. The beverage is now known as "thirty days." To a wholesale liquor dealer in Baltimore is due the credit for this original slang sobriquet.

A month ago a dashing drummer representing that firm scoured the peninsula on a business tour, scattering far and wide reams of circulars notifying the bibulous portion of the population that Westheimer would sell whiskey on 30 days' credit. If this didn't suit, and money was scarce, the purchaser could have 60 days. He went further, and, as an inducement to trade, even announced that if, at the end of that time, the cash is not forthcoming, the purchasers may "pay when they can."

The "boys" caught on at once, and the scheme seemed to work like a charm. The mails were loaded with orders, and the demijohns have been promptly delivered and equally promptly claimed. In two weeks at least $400 worth of whiskey went to Crisfield and vicinity. The dealer thought that he had struck a gold mine. He thought, however, that it was now about time to see how many could comply with the 30-days arrangement.

An agent of the liquor dealer arrived in the town on Thursday morning with a long list containing the names of debtors. He went at once to the postmaster to find out the addresses. The postmaster scrutinized the list of names slowly and carefully. As his glance moved down the page a queer twinkle was visible in his eyes. Then his countenance broadened into a grin, and finally, handing the list back to the collector, he said:

"See here, young man, I wouldn't give you three cents for the whole bill."

The collector stared in amazement and left the postoffice in a daze. He went to several merchants to inquire for the whereabouts of the parties. His luck was no better, and one man remarked to him in cold blood:

"My friend, if you want to find those parties you got on that list the best thing you can do is get a spade and dig 'em up. Eleven of 'em have been in their graves to my knowledge for at least five years."

The collector took the boat back to Baltimore in the evening. The firm will have to carry out the third scheme, and let its debtors "pay when they can." The names sent in were fictitious, but the demijohns all found owners on their arrival. As the boat moved off with the collector all the urchins in town were at the wharf yelling "Thirty days!"

For the Union.

Educated Crime.

This is a fact that society must face, however unwilling it may be so to do. The criminality of brute-cunning is a thing of the past. Crime of the future will be of the Eugene Aram order. The cunning of ignorant caution has been superseded by the deep-laid schemes of perverted, crafty intellect, assisted by science and the best of mechanical skill. It has often been asserted that the burglar is backed with capital; his (kit) tools can only be fashioned by the best of skilled labor, for science and mechanical skill has been at work to fashion and plan receptacles for valuables which would defy the clumsy tools of the midnight thief. But he invokes the same aids, and that aid costs money, and no little of it. Many murders are planned with the most consummate skill; the person is found dead, but no trace is left of the hand which committed the deed. So too, the poisoner, it was once a fine art, and who dare say that science can detect all deeds of the kind. May there not be even to-day a drug which once taken is sure death, and it leaves no tell-tale evidence behind; who can say that man cannot fire another's property in the most subtile way, and yet leave no trace of the deed. The fact is some men know secrets of science which they scarce dare breathe to themselves. Now then it needs but a depraved mind to put the machinery in motion; a revenge; the removal of a rival; an ambition; or worst of all, an itching avarice so as to gain wealth which they do not earn.

Put all these things together and you have a paradise of crime, especially if you combine skill, science, capital, and crafty educated cunning. Can society find law to counteract, detect and punish with a swift and sure hand? The easy-going or active money-making business man has no time to bother with the present or future of crime, unless it strikes him in person. The pulpit, the would-be awakener of all the sins of the world is quiescent on the subject; her repose borders on the sublime; it is not the fort of the pulpit to anticipate anything beyond the subject of faith, original sin, incarnation, regeneration, or apostolic succession. The statute laws may be plain, but the doubtful, the conflicting decisions of jurists enables the subtile lawyer to ably and in too many cases, (especially if there is a big fee in prospect) to successfully defend the most guilty.

As crime becomes more expert the subtility of the lawyer increases; the sometimes vague reading of the law can be deftly construed in the criminal's favor, and the shadow of the doubt in purely circumstantial evidence is by the eloquence of the advocate, and the influence of influential friends whittled into a fact. This is now, and graver still the fact in the mind of the public that plenty of money, exalted position, powerful family connections, coupled with influential friends, makes the conviction of crime in what is denominated the upper classes a doubtful thing. What then will it be when the science of chemistry is more fully understood? The perverted brain more fully developed? The antipathy to labor more deeply rooted? The desire of show and vanity more firmly engrafted? The wish to be wealthy, gained a firmer hold, and the itching for the so-called good society has sunk its poison deeper into the political body. Verily, we will have a paradise of crime, and all contained in this is not beyond the range of possibility or probability. PARCHER.

A Summer Rose.

Now nature fair with odors rare
The woodlands is perfuming,
And in the golden summer air
The sweet June rose is blooming.

The modest daisy decks the lea,
The fields their bloom are wearing,
And to resorts beside the sea,
The wealthy are repairing.

Doors and shutters now we'll close,
Eluding observation,
And then our neighbors will suppose
We're off on our vacation.

A Valuable Invention.

Mr. W. E. Bartlett Jr., of this county has just invented a useful machine to protect poultry and fruit from destruction, by crows, hawks, owls and birds. A large fish is made of wood to swing to the wind on which four wheels are made to revolve in opposite directions, the fan of the wheels are nickel plated causing when in action a bright reflection. The large master wheel is made when revolving to lift a lever, which strikes a set of bells arranged on the side of the fish, so with the joint arrangements of the glittering wheels, and the bells constantly ringing, are well calculated to cause crows and hawks to give the machine a wide berth. A small machine has also been made to fix on cherry trees, thereby ensuring protection to early cherries. Both inventions will be patented, small models as required by the Patent Office have been made, and the necessary papers will be forwarded to Washington at an early day. Four of the machines are now at work, and have given entire satisfaction. Orders have come in so rapidly that they cannot be executed, caused by the want of the necessary castings which are to be made in Philadelphia.—St. Michaels Comet.

Don't Skip This.

So many schemes are put before the public for the increase of newspaper circulation, which seem to be plausible and yet are fraudulent, that when a legitimate, honest effort is made to build up the circulation of a legitimate, honest paper, by legitimate, honest means, people who have been so many times duped, are slow to respond to the genuine scheme. We are led to this train of thought by a perusal of the advertisement of The American Rural Home of Rochester N. Y., published in this issue of our paper, to which we call the attention of our readers. We are acquainted with both paper and publishers and take pleasure in recommending it as one of the very best farm and family journals in this country. Every person who sends one dollar for a year's subscription to the paper receive a handsome present which is donated by the advertising patrons of the paper. These premiums consist of Cattle, Land, Reapers and Mowers, Plows, Books, Pictures Organs and thousands of other valuable articles. The Rural Home Co., is endorsed by Hon. Cornelius R. Parsons, Mayor of Rochester, to whom you can write if you have any doubts as to its reliability. It will pay you to send for sample copy if nothing more than to get a look at this great twelve-page, sixty column illustrated paper. Address Rural Home Co., Limited, Rochester, N. Y.

.....Commencing with Sunday, June 7th, the magnificent Steamers Joppa and Ida, will land at Travers' Wharf both ways, offering daily (except Saturday) facilities for the shipment of perishable freight.
