E. W. EMERSON, Editor.

DENTON, MARYLAND.

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 25, 1885

THOS. J. CLUVERIUS has been sentenced to be hanged November 20, unless the Supreme Court grants him a new trial.

WITH the hanging of ravishers, the imprisonment of intruders, and the whipping of wife-beaters, Maryland is determined that her women shall be protected from scoundrels and cowards.

FRANK PYERS, convicted of a brutal assault on his young wife, was on Friday flogged at the whipping-post in the city jail at Baltimore by Sheriff Airey. He received fifteen lashes. The punishment was a severe one.

MR. MYER, the wife beater, is reported to have said: "If the sentence has got to be carried out, it must be, and I cannot kick." He's right; the new whipping post is so arranged that he will not be able to move hand or foot.

WE have had a surfeit of crimes in this country recently, but none hardly as bad as the case of the Frenchman now on trial in Paris. The charge against him is the murder by poisoning of six women, including his mother and his two wives.

A POWERFUL text for the anti-tobacconists is furnished by a soldier now on his way to the Washington Insane Asylum. Seven thereto by the consumption of pounds of plug chewing tobacco with. He must have eaten it, one imagine

The experts appointed to examine the ...nn have decided that she does not ...et the requirements of the contract. ...ether this is the fault of her builder or ...f the board which prepared the plans for her construction will probably have to be determined in a court of law.

In Cuba the people get so excited over base ball that they shoot at the umpire. It is more effective than the American method of hooting and brickbat throwing. The report, however, that whenever a shot hits, the umpire cries out "One ball!" is probably untrue.

"AN epicurean doctor," according to an anonymous floating paragraph, "says it in order to obtain the full flavor of butter, the bread upon which it is spread should be introduced into the mouth with the buttered side down." In other words, after dropping a slice, don't turn it over when you pick it up.

"LET'S go locusting" will soon be substituted for "Let's go fishing," for Prof. Riley, the entomologist, and some western Pennsylvanians have been eating locusts and pronounce the insect diet very delicious. The mode of cooking a locust is this: Boil about 20 minutes, then fry in butter until they are brown and crisp, and season with pepper and salt.

PROFESSOR RILEY, famous now as the inventor of cicada on toast, has been informed by the first Comptroller of the Treasury that he cannot lawfully draw salary as curator of insects of the National Museum, while drawing salary as entomologist of the Department of Agriculture. Every locust in the land will sing joyful endorsement. Curator of insects!

THE demand for the revised edition of the Bible is still light, although a little more active when the edition first came out. There are plenty of copies yet in the hands of the dealers, and none of the bookstores have been compelled to renew their orders. They are all hopeful that when the summer sports are over, and the long winter nights come on, that the people will give more attention to the study of the new Bible.

JAMES RENSON, a liquor seller at Newport, Rhode Island, devised a novel plan to put himself out of the world. He took a keg of powder into his cellar and knocked in the head. Then he mutilated himself with a razor and put a lighted match to the powder. The explosion knocked out the whole front of the building but Renson was found in the ruins still alive and able to give an account of his attempt to take his own life. He is evidently a wretched blunderer.

THE talented Mr. Hendricks met the talented Mr. John L. Sullivan in a railroad car the other day and enjoyed quite a pleasant chat with him. Among other things, Mr. Hendricks asked Mr. Sullivan how it felt to be hit in the face, and Mr. Sullivan responded that it hurt, but he made it a point not to get hit very often. Then Mr. Hendricks's eyes glittered with a strange light, and, bending low on the champion's shoulder, he whispered: "I'd like to turn you loose on this administration, John! I've tackeled it, but somehow it's quicker on the hit than I am.

QUOTING the American's exclamation, "How bright the summer prospect would be if seventeen-year locusts were only fond of mosquitoes!" the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette argues, since the English sparrow, "a fine table bird," is fond of the ripe and juicy locust, that were the hypothetical conclusions realized "by this process of incorporation might suffer man to get back some of his lost blood." Professor Riley demonstrates conclusively that the sparrow is not to be considered as at all a necessary link in this epicurean chain. 'Tis simply, man—mosquito—locust—man, and there you are—back again to first sanguinary principles.

TWENTY lashes "well laid on" is certainly not too much for the inhuman creature who brutally beats a woman and that woman his wife. The whipping-post is a recent addition to Maryland's means for administering punishment for crime, and the crime which it is proposed particularly to punish by the lash is wife beating. We think the new institution will fill a long-felt want. To lock up the wife-beater for weeks or months and feed him at the expense of the state, while the poor woman is left to support herself and family, is not exactly the kind of punishment likely to suppress or diminish this form of crime. The probabilities are that the whipping-post will fit precisely. At any rate, the experiment is well worth trying.

Well Merited Severity.

The sentence of another wife beater to the lash, in addition to imprisonment, will go far to convince this class of criminals that the pleasures of bruising and kicking their wives have their drawbacks. Myer is under the sentence of Judge Stewart, and as soon as the dilatory motion in his case is disposed of will get his deserts. Pyers was sentenced by Judge Fisher on Thursday, and will soon find that the joy of giving blows may be tempered by the anguish of receiving them.

The courts do not indicate a disposition to apply this remedy with undue severity. On the contrary, one other case of wife beating got off on Thursday with four months in jail, but this was not an aggravated case. But when the assault on the wife is brutally violent, endangering life, or where the assaults have been numerous, the lash is a proper penalty.

The good effect of the sentences already imposed may be seen in the extreme anxiety of the prisoners at the trial. The terror of twenty lashes makes a profound impression. It may be set down as a general rule that wife beaters are cowards. The exceptions to this are not numerous. Brave men go after other men to fight, and do not come home to beat and trample a woman, and cowards always shudder at the idea of getting hurt. The fear of the lash will be present in the minds of such men, and will exercise a constant restraint upon their cruel and brutal impulses. Every whipping thus imposed upon a wife beater may act as a check upon ruffianly men, and save their wives the agony and shame of being beaten. Every cut of the lash on the wife beater's back may save some defenceless woman a blow.

Some tender-hearted persons sympathize chiefly with the prisoner. They say that the lash is cruel and degrading We agree to this. We feel sincere pity for the wretch who is to be whipped. But we want him to be whipped all the same, not in revenge, but to deter others from the crime, and thereby to protect helpless women. We agree that it is degrading, and that is precisely what it ought to be. The criminal degraded his wife when he beat her, and he should know what the word Justice means. We feel truly sorry for the men under sentence, but when we remember that severity to them is mercy to their unhappy wives, we re-echo the words of the court and hope that the sheriff will "lay the lash on well."

Wife beating often ends in wife murder. Some ruffians become infuriated by the sight of blood, and the prostrate form of the woman. To check wife beating by judicious severity, may save the wife beater from the greater crime; and though the whipping post is "cruel and degrading," it is not quite so much so as the gallows.—Baltimore American.

A Young Lover's Crime.

There was great excitement on Chincoteague Island on Thursday over a little tragedy that occured there. Wm. Freeman, aged eighteen years, shot Timothy Hills, his wife and daughter, and then killed himself. For some months past young Freeman had been courting the daughter of Mr. Hills, who is one of the most prominent citizens on the island. The parents of the young girl objected to Freeman's attentions to their daughter. One of the objections is said to have been the youth of Freeman. He was anxious to marry Miss Hills, and for a time she appeared to reciprocate his affections. It is reported, however, that on Wednesday night Miss Hills told young Freeman that she could not receive his attentions any longer, and that her parents objected to him. The young man left the house very much dejected. Early on the morning above stated he called at the house again and begged Miss Hills to reconsider her words of the night previous. She told him that her decision was final; she could never marry him. In a passion of commingled grief and anger the youth then drew a revolver and fired at Miss Hills. She fell to the floor seriously wounded. Her mother hastened to her assistance, but she too was shot down, it is thought fatally wounded. Freeman continued his bloody work by shooting Mr. Hills as he came toward the house, and then placing the pistol to his own forehead, the disappointed lover completed his bloody work by killing himself. The doctors think that all three of the Hills will die.

Making Sugar by Electricity.

An entirely new process for refining sugar, electricity being the agent employed, is one of the latest discoveries. If the half that is claimed for it be true it is also one of the most important that has been made in the last half of this century. The process is said to be a dry one throughout, dispensing, altogether with boiling and the use of bone-black. It is claimed that no syrup whatever is produced, the whole product being hard sugar of nearly if not quite absolute purity—namely 100 per cent. cane sugar, per analysis. This result has been obtained from the lowest grades, the parcels treated ranging all the way from ten pounds to over a ton in weight.

The refined sugar is obtained within four hours from the time the machinery is set in motion, and the process is continuous, the output of the sugar being kept up so long as the raw material is fed in and the machinery kept in motion. The cost of the process is rediculously low, being set at not more than eighty cents per ton, with a guarantee that the loss will not be greater than one-half of one per cent. The cost of the requisite machinery including power and the apparatus needed to put the sugar in barrels, and the buildings required to enclose the works, is estimated to be about $100,000 in England for an output of 4,000 barrels every twenty-four hours.

Fourth of July Excursions.

For the benefit of those who would enjoy the great national holiday in visiting friends or making short excursions to attractive points, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets, at greatly reduced rates, on the 3d and 4th of July, good to return until the 6th, between all stations an its lines, comprising the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, Baltimore and Potomac, Alexandria and Fredericksburg, Northern Central, West Jersey, and Camden and Atlantic railroads.

The Silly Season.

For some reason which proud science has not yet explained, there comes upon humanity at this season of the year a strange appetite for fantastic and incredible yarns. This human infirmity is reflected in the newspapers. Journals that during ten months of the year show commendable good judgment and taste in printing and discussing the news, begin to display in June and July in their news columns evidences of senile gangrene. The sea serpent always selects midsummer for his appearance. The well-conceived snake story is pretty sure of a kindly reception. The Keely motor shows symptoms of revival. Those ornaments to society, babies with six legs and no head, are born at this season of the year.

A fine running start was given to the season this year by the remarkable case of dog resuscitation conducted by Mr. James L. Finch and Dr. Armitage, of Denver City. They bled a dog to death, and after he had been dead four hours and was cold and stiff, they put him in a warm bath, applied friction, and then injected into his veins blood from a living dog, whereupon the dog came to life.

This is a very interesting physiological fact. If it be true of a dog, why not of a man? It is known that a large part of the diseases that flesh is heir to are taints of the blood, zymotic maladies, blood poisonings, etc. Hereditary diseases of all sorts are said to be "in the blood." Hitherto medicines have been given to "purify the blood." Now the shorter and simpler method will be to emty all the bad blood out of the patient, and pump into him some pure country blood warranted genuine. Modern chemistry can imitate human blood with such accuracy that it will deceive the smallest capillary, and the bungling expedient of pumping blood from a healthy person to the patient can be avoided.

Moral improvement can also be effected in the same way. The tendency to lie and steal and cheat is often inherited, handed down, with additions and improvements, from father to son. These faults "are in the blood." Prisoner's aid societies, tracts and reformatories have often worked at curing these hereditary tendencies, but have worked in vain. Now they can work in vein. They can drain the criminal propensities out of the blood vessels of a ruffian, pump him full of philanthropy from the veins of a clergyman, and send him forth on his mission of mercy to the human race.

The only discovery of magnitude comparable to this was the discovery of the patent reversible dog ointment. A gentleman whose dog had had his tail cut off by a street car anointed the wound with this unguent, and another tail grew. He then anointed the tail, and another dog grew. Thus he had two dogs. Now, by combining these two discoveries it would be possible to take one criminal and convert him into two missionaries. It is to be hoped that science will continue thus to ameliorate the woes of humanity as it wanders through this vale of tears.

What Wives Are For.

It is not to sweep the house and make the beds, and darn the socks and cook the meat, chiefly that a man wants a wife. If this is all he wants, hired servants can do that cheaper than a wife. If this is all, when a young man calls to see a young lady, send him into the pantry to taste the bread and cake she has made, or send him to see the needle work and bed-making; or put a broom in her hands and send him to witness its use. Such things are important, and the wise young man will quietly look after them. But what the true man most wants of a wife is her companionship, sympathy and love. The way of life has many dreary places in it, and man needs a companion with him. A man is sometimes overtaken with misfortune; he meets with a failure and defeat, trials and temptations beset him, and he needs one to stand by and sympathize. He has some stern battles to fight with poverty, with enemies, and with sin; and he needs a woman, who, as he puts an arm around her, feels that he has something to fight for and will help him to fight, who will put her lips to his ear and whisper words of counsel, and her hand to his heart and impart new inspiration.

How Bruin Hugged a Busy Saw.

"Talking about funny things," said a big, bronzed, bearded man in the reading-room of a New York hotel the other night, "the funniest thing I ever heard of happened in my saw mill out in Michigan. We used a heavy upright saw for sawing heavy timber. One day not long ago the men had all gone to dinner, leaving the saw, which ran by water-power, running at full speed. While we were away a big black bear came into the mill and went nosing around. The saw caught his fur and twitched him a little. Bruin didn't like this for a cent, so he turned around and fetched the saw a lick with his paw. Result: a badly cut paw. A blow with the other paw followed, and it was also cut. The bear was by this time aroused to perfect fury, and, rushing at the saw, caught it in his grasp and gave a tremendous hug. It was his last hug, and we lived on bear steaks for a week. When we came up from dinner there was a half a bear on each side of the saw, which was going ahead as nicely as tho' it had never seen a bear. This is a fact, so help me Bob," and the big lumberman bit off a fresh chew of tobacco.

What Makes a Man.

Mere polish does not make a man. nor does a rough exterior necessarily make a man. The man is within. What is the heart made of? What is the grasp of intellect? What is the quantum of solid common sense? What are you doing for others and God? These are questions by which to test manhood. See that your life and your work, wherever your place is, will abide these tests.

Thos. Grubb, Crockett's Depot, Va., says he has used Powell's Prepared Chemicals for three years in succession. Last year he used it by side of fertilizer that cost $45 per ton, and made as much wheat, and got as good stand for grass from the chemicals as from the $45 fertilizer. This economical fertilizer costs only $6 per bbl., a sufficient quantity to make one-half ton of complete fertilizer. Write to Brown Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Man, Duster, and the Lamppost.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Times tells the following funny story about a fat printer he knew once: "He had a linen duster on that was a mile too big for him, and he was 'full.' What I mean by that is, he was drunk, and awfully drunk, too. Two of his companions were trying to get him along, when they met a third party, who invited them in to drink. The fat fellow wasn't able to stand alone; they didn't want to let him fall, and he wouldn't sit down on the curbstone until they came out, so they deliberately pulled him over to a lamppost and buttoned him to it by his duster, while they went into the saloon. It was the funniest sight I ever saw. It was moonlight. The fat fellow had lost his cap, and the moon glistened and shone on his bald head like dew on a flower. When his friends came out of the tavern they found him all right, as erect as the lamppost to which they had fixed him."

Woman's Position.

Ninety-nine out of every hundred young women are destitute of an independent income adequate to their comfortable support; they must work or marry for a living. But in industry, woman's sphere is exceedingly circumscribed, and her reward, as compared with the recompense of masculine efforts, very inadequate. Except as household drudges, it is very difficult for seven single women out of eight to earn a comfortable, independent livelihood in this country, and it is generally much worse in others. Hence false marriages, which lead to so much misery.

REV. DR. TALMAGE has been lecturing on "The Influence of Clubs." If it happens to be a flush, the influence is said to be of the kind that makes a man feel glad clear down into his boots.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.
